

WOMAN KIDNAPS POLICE OFFICER

Desk Man Flack Has Thrilling Time Trying to "Take" Autoist.

How a woman with a "house" and an automobile kidnaped Desk Officer Robert S. Flack is the topic of discussion at police headquarters today. Flack himself is chary of talking of the matter, as he has hardly recovered from the hair raising experience in which he was involved in the course of his duty. The woman in question is the wife of a man prominent in local business circles, and her only fault is said to be too frequent indulgence in the cup. In this latest case she visited the Louvre at Fourth and Alder streets, and at the close of the afternoon she zigzagged to her automobile which stood outside. Difficulties presented themselves in cranking the machine, and her vehement exclamations attracted a crowd. One man finally cranked the auto for her and then she was unable to work the levers and start it.

Crowd Watches On.

The gathering hundreds who watched her with deep amusement finally drew Patrolman Sherwood. He threw up his hands in helplessness when he took in the situation and telephoned to police headquarters. Flack, who is an experienced auto driver, was sent to the corner. He started the machine and took the intoxicated woman to police headquarters. Chief of Police Cox advised that she be taken home. Flack got into the machine and started it again, but the woman declined to tell him where she lived. Then she insisted that she owned the machine, and that she ought to be permitted to drive it. Naturally Flack demurred, and the woman suddenly pulled out the spark plug and stopped the engine. Flack had to get out to crank the machine, and when he did so the woman jumped into the driver's seat. Then she started off. Flack leaped back into the auto, but was unable to get the woman out of her position. Hoping to get her home he asked her to drive in that direction.

Safety Misses Collisions.

"I won't go home if I have to exhaust every drop of gasoline," she replied, her words punctuated with hicoughs. "And do you see that tree over

DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP HER

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pound, Wis.—"I am glad to announce that I have been cured of dyspepsia and female troubles by your medicine. I had been troubled with both for fourteen years and consulted different doctors, but failed to get any relief. After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I can say I am a well woman. I can't find words to express my thanks for the good your medicine has done me. You may publish this if you wish."

—Mrs. HERMAN SIETH, Pound, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free.

there," she continued. "I am going to 'shave' that." She missed the tree by about half an inch and then "slaved" a telegraph pole and also a vehicle. Flack's thoughts turned to his family and life insurance policy, but he bravely stood by his post. For more than an hour the woman drove about the city, at one time passing Flack's home on the east side. Finally sobriety began to return, and through a ruse Flack managed to learn where she lived and induced her to steer in that direction, at length getting her into the custody of her husband. He then returned to police headquarters to report that there are more serious things to face than burglar's bullets.

ARCHER, EWART, HOGAN HOLD JOBS AT ABERDEEN

(Special Dispatch To The Journal.)
Aberdeen, Wash., April 21.—Mayor Elect J. W. Parks, who with the newly elected members of the city council will take his seat on Wednesday, May 3, will appoint E. R. Archer to succeed himself as chief of police. C. W. Ewart will be retained as city engineer. John C. Hogan will continue as city attorney and W. H. Tucker will be appointed police judge. Mr. Parks is considering consolidation of the departments of engineering, water, light and streets under Ewart and the departments of fire and police under Archer. He has requested the chamber of commerce to discuss such consolidation at its luncheon next Tuesday. Mr. Parks says he was elected on the understanding that he should take up the duties of his office unpledged, and that no one will receive an appointment who has not "made good." This he declares has been true in the cases of Chief of Police Archer, City Attorney Hogan and City Engineer C. W. Ewart, all of whom have been subjected to criticism.

RECRUITS HARD TO GET FOR NATIONAL GUARD

(Special Dispatch To The Journal.)
Hoquiam, Wash., April 21.—A week from tonight the national guard company here will be officially inspected and unless a material change takes place in that short time, will probably be mustered out. Forty-five members are required present for drill that night, the company now has not nearly that number of active members and a call for recruits has brought little response.

Klamath Falls, Or., April 21.—With scarcely 25 applicants for enrollment in the proposed company of the Oregon National Guard here, there is little likelihood sufficient names will be secured to make a company. The effort may be renewed next fall, this being the hardest season of the year to get recruits.

MOTORMAN FALLS HEIR TO THOUSANDS, BUT SHOWS UP FOR WORK

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Redondo, Cal., April 21.—Although Motorman Edward McGuire of the Pacific Electric company was notified yesterday that he had fallen heir to $70,000, the news of his fortune did not prevent him from appearing for work today. He took out his regular run at 5:15 a. m. McGuire's fortune comes from his father's estate, which consists of tracts of coal and timber lands in Arkansas, Mississippi, Kentucky and Virginia.

Rear Your Children In the Country

Little Sermons for Portland Mothers From the Pens of Great Men and Women

WHO WAS IT SAID: "To make men out of boys, and women out of girls, there is no place like home. Character is not best formed in an apartment house or hotel." Whoever it was might have added that healthy bodies are not best formed in congested quarters—or even in a city. It was the immortal Cowper who wrote: "God made the country and Man made the town—What wonder, then, that health and virtue should most abound and least be threatened in the fields and groves?" And it was Ruffini said: "If country life be healthful to the body, it is no less so to the mind." "Say to mothers," wrote Mrs. Sigourney, "what a holy charge is theirs; with what a kingly power their love might rule the fountains of the new-born mind." Even the world-conquering Napoleon found time to observe: "The future destiny of the child is always the work of the mother." Hers is the great responsibility of rearing clean-minded, healthy-bodied and happy-hearted children.

Where Do Your Children Play?

ARE they confined to cramped and stuffy corridors, or are they in the city streets? They should be in neither place. They should have the clean, fresh air, the elbow room and the innocent and healthful employments of the country. Have you ever thought of this? Of course you have. You have thought of it often as a blessing you should like to give them. But have you ever thought of it as your DUTY to your children—as their inherent RIGHT? "Children," wrote Locke, "generally hate to be idle. All the care, then, should be that their busy humor should be constantly employed in something that is of use to them." Where may this be better done than in the country, close to Nature, where they can learn the primal lessons of the soil?

Childhood Memories

WHAT will your children's recollections be when they are grown? Will the home association linger in their minds and hearts, or will the only home remembrance be of crowded rooms and the monthly call of rent collectors? "The homes of the nation," said Holland, "are the bulwarks of personal and national safety and thrift." He did not say the RENTED homes. "What gift," wrote Cicero, "has Providence bestowed on man that is so dear to him as his children?" What gift, we ask, can parents bestow upon their children that will be so dear to them as a HOME? No truer words were ever written than Payne's in "Home, Sweet Home": "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

The Ideal Home

THE ideal home today is neither in the city nor in the country, as city and country were known a generation ago. It is between the two, in easy access of the advantages that make city life attractive, and possessing all the allurements of the country life. It is an evolution wrought to supply the want of the great middle class American—the citizen of limited means and cultured tastes—the citizen wedded by bonds of training to the industries and businesses of the city, yet with the God-created yearning for the open places, where there is sweet, fresh air, elbow room for the little ones, garden room and health.

We Have Such a Place

WE HAVE such a place for you. It is out on the beautiful Powell Valley road, a superb macadamized highway, extending like a ribbon from the eastern limits of the city of Portland far into the green miles beyond. It is a gently-sloping, almost level reach of land, and is just a little more than six miles from the business center of the city. You may have seen it. If you have you will remember it well. WE OWN THIS PROPERTY. It was very carefully selected to partition into acre home lots before the onswep of development forced values to their present level. The entire body of land is now platted, a WATER SYSTEM conveying good pure water to every acre has been installed, plowing and grading of streets is under way, and we are offering lots for sale at prices and on terms that are well below the market. If you buy at present prices you will have a home for your children and an investment for yourself and family. Bring your husband with you to our office. Bring the children, too. Pick out your lot before it is too late. You will not buy close-in acreage so cheap again.
