

OLD CHAMPION'S PAGES TURNED BACK TO OLD CHAMPION

Shrine Where Epoch-Marking Event Took Place 68 Years Ago Visited by 1000 People, Mostly Pioneers.

At old Champion, on the ground where a group of early Oregon pioneers met just 68 years before for the purpose of organizing some form of provisional government, about 1000 people assembled yesterday for the eleventh annual celebration of that epoch marking event.

Particularly appreciated was the presence at yesterday's celebration of F. X. Matthieu who was present at the historic meeting and the vote which determined whether Oregon should belong to Great Britain or to the United States.

Moore is Principal Speaker. The principal speaker of the day was C. B. Moore, of Portland. P. H. D'Arcy, president of the Oregon Pioneer's association, introduced him.

In reviewing the trend of events on Oregon not only had a part in moulding the destinies of this coast in earlier days, but also in moulding the destinies of the American nation.

Mr. Moore urged the necessity and the appropriateness of establishing enduring monuments on the sites of the historic events of early days. He said that the memory of the struggles of the men who gave to the present generation its wonderful heritage, inspired patriotism and good citizenship.

TESTIMONY IS ALL IN CONFESSION SUIT GOES TO JURY

Witnesses Place Value on "S" Block Property From $125,000 to $200,000; C. J. Reed Quickly Excused.

Both the government and the defense have finished offering testimony in the Espey estate condemnation suit and the question of the value of the west half of block "S" will go to the jury this afternoon or tomorrow morning, upon the conclusion of the closing addresses of counsel.

G. W. Boschke, chief engineer for the Hartman lines in Oregon, who has charge of the construction of the new steel bridge, testified this morning he expected to have the steel bridge completed by November of this year, and if his plans did not miscarry, the new bridge, the territory gained 137 more acres.

Reed Quickly Excused. C. J. Reed, former United States marshal, was called as a witness for the defense, and maintained his reputation as a humorist while on the stand.

Harvey O'Brien placed a valuation of $150,000 on the west half of the block. L. F. Monters placed the value of the property at $150,000. E. L. Thompson of Hartman & Thompson, said the half block is worth anywhere from $125,000 to $175,000, the value depending upon the man who bought it.

J. M. Toomey, proprietor of the Barr hotel and who owns the property upon which the hotel stands at Sixth and Gilliam streets, one block from block "S," said the west half was worth $175,000.

Major R. W. Espey of Oysterville, Wash., president of the Espey Co., testified to the ownership of the property to be condemned.

CLARK BOOSTS FOR COMMISSION FORM

Attorney Makes Strong Plea for New Government Plan; Others Make Addresses.

Attorney A. E. Clark strongly advocated a commission form of government for Portland in his address last evening before the Waverly-Richmond Improvement club.

Clark is not exactly the fault of the men, but of the system. This is fundamentally wrong, and the sooner we get away from it and get a better one, the better for the city. There has been a great appeal for numbers, but I wish to say that it is not numbers alone that make a city, it is the quality of its people.

HOW BADGER GAME WAS WORKED TOLD BY PRETTY WOMAN

Wealthy Washington Merchant Lured to Apartment and Photographed With Her in Compromising Positions.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Washington, May 3.—Wearing a Paris model gown bought with money raised by pawing her rings, Mrs. Florence Bennett Knott, 20 years of age, today took the stand here and fully detailed how, by means of the "badger game," she had aided in a scheme to pluck Charles Rosenthal, a wealthy merchant.

Knott, his brother Benjamin, and Albert Armstrong, who were all in the plot, pleaded guilty. Their sentences were postponed. Judge Wright declared that James Knott's statement did not indicate the degree of his guilt and ordered him to be tried by a jury. It is probable that the woman will be released on parole.

Knott and Armstrong were arrested December 14, for the attempt to secure money from Rosenthal. After her arrest Mrs. Knott talked freely. She told the police that she had run away from her home and after various adventures met and married Knott in Washington.

Knott said she met Rosenthal by accident, and that she took him to her apartments because he was "the first wealthy man who had flirted with her." There was no design against Rosenthal in particular when the scheme was conceived.

Rosenthal, according to the story told the police, visited the Knott apartments three times on the third of August. Suddenly appeared and seized him. Mrs. Knott helped bind him with ropes. When he was lashed and gagged photographs of himself, taken in the very room where he was sitting when Knott appeared, were shown him.
