HOUSE SOBS WITH OLGA NETHERSOLE

Tears and Handkerchiefs in Evidence at Heilig Theatre Last Night.

The hand of Louis Parker is strongly evident in Henri Bernstein's "The Redemption of Evelyn Vaudray," in which Olga Nethersole appeared at the Heilig last evening.

The first two acts of Evelyn Vaudray are Henri Bernstein enough to leave no doubt of who wrote them a rich business man engaged in commercial affairs, his bored wife, and a litterateur lover being the characters.

The Bernstein play so nicely adapted by Mr. Parker gives nearly everyone in the company a chance to do his best. Walter Edwards—if we are not mistaken, was leading man with Margaret Illington when she was here, earlier in the season.

Memorial Day will be observed with fitting ceremonies and services in Portland this year as usual. Partial arrangements for the day on which tributes of honor are to be paid to the nation's soldiers on the water.

At 2 o'clock p. m. the procession will be formed and after marching through the principal streets of the city, will assemble at South Plaza block between Third and Fourth streets on Main.

WILL DEMAND EXTRA LIGHTS FOR THE CITY ROSE FESTIVAL WEEK

The Retail Merchants' association proposes to go in a body before Mayor Simon and the executive board and the ways and means committee of the council Monday to demand that the usual $2500 be appropriated for the illumination and decoration of streets during the Rose festival.

The council has already voted favorably on the appropriation, referring it, however, to Mayor Simon, who said he was willing that the appropriation be made, provided there were funds in the city treasury, set aside for the purpose, to cover the amount desired.

This the Retail Merchants' association has called "all politics," adding that the committee members are afraid for various candidatorial reasons to spend money in any way that might seem extravagant.

That Banks will rapidly extend to the junction of the two railroads is the belief of the citizens of Banks and the coming of the electric line is welcomed generally for it is realized the future growth of Banks will be in proportion to the rapid development of the surrounding country.

Provision has been made for the future growth of the town. What is known as Electric addition has just been platted at the junction of the two roads.

Banks now has a population of about 250 with a commercial club identified with the Oregon Development league. The town has business houses of various kinds and a weekly newspaper.
