

ALCOHOL ON BODY, AFIRE FROM LAMP

B. B. Herrick, Rheumatic Cripple, Sues Osteopath for $10,000.

Salem, Or., May 22.—Enveloped in flames while being given an alcoholic bath, B. B. Herrick of Silverton was severely burned and has started suit in the Marion county circuit court today against C. F. Holsley, an osteopath, to recover $10,000 damages. The old man alleges the osteopath caused him to be seated in a chair where he was given a hot vapor bath while covered completely with blankets. During this vapor bath an alcohol lamp was kept burning under the chair. When the vapor bath was ended the lamp should have been extinguished before the alcohol was applied for the massage which followed. This the osteopath neglected to do, Herrick says, and his body was immediately wrapped in flames. He claims that he had been suffering from rheumatism and nervous disorders prior to the accident but was able to get around fairly well with the aid of crutches but that since he was burned he has been suffering greatly and unable to move.

BOOM FOR WILSON

Wilson delegates, and that he is one of the most enthusiastic Wilson men in the national capital. Another known fact is that O'Gorman has told Murphy as to his face, and that he did not mislead his words when he so informed the Tammany chieftain. Contributing to the interest in these discoveries, is the record of the dinner lately given to honor Senator O'Gorman in New York City when the only conspicuous speaker, besides O'Gorman himself, was Woodrow Wilson, who looking over towards Murphy at another part of the dining room, launched forth into a diatribe against political bosses, and in his definition thereof, made it plain that he referred to bosses of the Murphy type. Since the new New York senator was elected, it has been recalled that years ago, he belonged to the Henry George party in the metropolis; that he imbibed views at that time, when much younger, which he retains to this day, is admitted by those who have talked with him there.

Dix Really for Wilson

Political forecasters in Washington who enjoy the confidence of New Yorkers expect that the delegation from that state will cast complimentary votes for Governor Dix in the national Democratic convention; but that they will be merely complimentary is not doubted, and it is being averred that Dix will be really for Wilson.

These things are regarded here as partial explanation of the split between Dix and Murphy, which now is generally admitted to be more or less serious.

Promoters of the Harmon boom in Washington—and that boom centers largely in this city now—have laid claim to New York's delegation for 1912, along with practically all of New England, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Texas, Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, California, and some other states.

Wilson Boom Gaining

It has been ascertained, however, that Georgia has slipped from the grasp of the Harmonites, and gone over to the Wilson column, that Mississippi has almost as certainly done the same, that Harmon hasn't a show to get California, and that New England, as well as all of the mentioned western states, is honey combed with Wilson sentiment.

A statement printed in the Washington correspondence of the Newark Evening News more than a year ago—that John Pierpont Morgan, before sailing for Europe, called men prominent in finance and industry to the Metropolitan club, and gave the word that Harmon must be nominated, and that immediately a movement was organized under Francis Lynde Steierson's direction to capture the Democratic nomination for the Ohio—has traveled the country over; it has been copied, editorialized on, rewritten and made the basis of newspaper and magazine articles, so extensively, that the Harmon boomers are finding their candidate losing ground, and interest centering around Wilson and Champ Clark as the two men, one of whom probably will be the Democratic nominee for the presidency.

Wilson Followers Optimistic

It is the opinion of the Wilson followers that he will get the nomination. It is probably beyond doubt that within the past few weeks Wilson sentiment has grown amazingly, and that as it grew Clark sentiment lessened. It had been known that the movement for

Speaker Clark had gained significance. But as information trickled into Washington from local leaders the country over, it was apparent that the existing state of opinion among Democrats was crystallizing in this form:

Wilson could carry every state Clark could carry; he could carry some states that Clark could not carry; hence, Wilson would seem to be the logical candidate, in view of the progressive character of the New Jersey executive's policies and his demonstration of ability to transmute legitimate political desire into statute against the machinations of skilled politicians of the old school.

Bryan's Possibility

It cannot be overlooked that many influential Democrats retain a desire to nominate Bryan, and all who calculate political probabilities realize that the Nebraska has by no means been removed from the list of those who must be accounted nomination possibilities.

Mr. Bryan, however, discourages mention of his name, and he would support either Wilson or Clark earnestly. Bryan knows that he could not carry eastern states, and that Wilson could. According to men who are in Bryan's confidence, he is not a candidate.

HYDROPHOBIA MICROBE FOUND IN PITTSBURG

Pittsburg, Pa., May 22.—Dr. Frederick Proescher, pathologist at Allegheny General hospital, it became known today, has discovered the hydrophobia microbe, for which Pasteur sought for years. He gave a brief talk on his discovery and exhibited magnified lantern slides of the germs at a clinic this morning. The clinic was attended by many noted medical men.

Dr. Proescher says he made his discovery from microscopic examinations of tissues from the nervous system of dogs, cats and horses naturally infected with hydrophobia; also of rabbits inoculated with virus. Twelve dogs infected with virus were examined and these peculiar microbes were found in each. Similar microbes cannot be found in any other disease.

School Outgrown in Two Years

Pasco, Wash., May 22.—By a vote of 441 for and 226 against, Pasco Friday approved bonds of $40,000 for a new school building, the large building erected about two years ago having been outgrown. At another election Saturday block 1 of Whitehouse addition was selected as the site.

State Welfare Convention. Richmond, Va., May 22.—With the opening of the State Welfare convention here today special speakers from the Russell Sage foundation and other child helping institutions have come to the assistance of the charitable forces of Virginia. Governor Mann will deliver the address of welcome.
