RULING BROADENS FEDERAL POWER:

Decision in Oklahoma Natural Gas Case Gives Government Greater Scope and Lessens That of Communities.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, D. C., May 23.—That the decision of the supreme court in the Oklahoma natural gas case broadens the adjudicated power of the federal govern-ment and limits that of the state governments, is the view taken by the officials of the department of justice. In some respects, indeed, it is regarded as more vital than was the Standard Oil decision. It is related that, when Justice McKenna read his opinion for the court, deciding the Oklahoma case, lawyers who were in the court room said to each other that it indicated unmistakably that the court was about to declare for the government's contentions as to Standard Oil.

In fact, it is being held that the court has reversed itself on all former de-cisions that were looked on by the "trust busters" as obstacles in the way of regulating or inhibiting the large embinations which are in restraint of overturned by the Oklahoma decision Cole against Errol, in which the court commerce, and took the narrow view of the nation's power. Kidd against Pearson, in which the court held that a distillery in Iowa might not make alcohol for interstate commerce, because a state law prohibited it from making it for use in that ments from the start.

The third decision said to have been brated Knight case—the sugar trust decourt in somewhat emasculating the Sherman anti-trust law enacted in 1890, and which also, according to common holding, revivified the threatened sugar the rule laid down in the two other cases cited, and held that production and commerce are two different things; that the state has control over production, and that, therefore, if a combination bought up certain refineries and controlled the production of sugar, that was no concern of the federal governbecause sugar-making was essentially different from interstate commerce in it. The mere monopoly of the instrumentalities of production was no sign of intent to restrain commerce in Consequently, the court held that the government had not proved violation of the Sherman act when it proved that the sugar trust had come into monopoly of the instrumentalities of making sugar. This decision has since been accounted a serious obstacle in the way of the osecution of trusts. It is overturned in the Oklahoma decision,

The effect of this decision, stated in broad terms, is to invest the general government with powers over trusts and monopolies when viewed from the standpoint of production as well as from that asserted that it was vastly more signifi-cant than was that in the Standard Oil

The court has laid down a rule about

"Instead of the state being the sole and absolute sovereign to rule over pro-duction within a state, the nation is the sole sovereign, and the court will regard the national interest as paramount to that of the state." Question Is Settled.

In its bearing on the trust issues, the Oklahoma decision settles for all time that combinations shall not hide within the twilight zone that has existed between the limitation of federal authority on one side and that of the state authority on the other. Under the Knight decision, it was competent for the sugar trust to monopolize sugar-producing plants the country over. and then, owning all sugar production, there would be no necessity of agree-ments in restrain of trade, and the Sherman anti-trust law would have no application to that trust. The remarkable decisions of May 15 have developed two distinct schools of thought-one insists that competition must be kept alive at any cost; the other concedes that competition is practically a thing of the past in all important lines of industry and in interstate traffic. The one would amend the Sherman enti-trust law so as to define with precision what shall be "unreasonable re-straint of trade." The other holds that, competition being dead, regulation of industry must supplant competition as the public's safeguard against extortion.

Alveolar Dentistry

In a majority of our advertisements we lay great stress on our specialty, Alveolar dentistry, replacing missing teeth without a plate or bridge work, and the curing Pyorrhea (loose teeth). The work is so remarkable in its character that it is apt to overshadow those other cases which come to us—the simple cases. We don't want the idea to obtain that we are Alveolar specialists alone. We are that, but seemething more general practitioners of the first class. We do dentistry in all its branches, from the simple piece of filling up. It's a boastful statement to make, but we can do anything that is possible in dentistry, and what we do is always of the very highest class. Our booklets Alveolar Dentistry and examinations are free. There are 12 Alveolar Dental Co. offices in the west. About 50,000 people are wearing our Alveolar Dental Co. offices in the west. About 50,000 people are wearing our Alveolar teeth. About 2000 people in this city and state have teeth supplied by this office. Ninety-nine per cent, if not every single one—will tell you if asked that it's the best investment they ever made in dentistry. In many cases where bridgework is impossible and all cases where it is possible, we can replace your teeth with beautiful, artistic, comfortable, cleanly and everlasting teeth that we will defy anyone, dentist or layman, to tell from natural teeth. "It may seem strange, but for a fact I was told in California." continued Mr. Denler, "that of all cities on the coast, Portland is one with a future where the investor or business man will find opportunities. And so it appears to me. And back in Michigan Portland stands out prominently through the adtions. When I left home a great number of my friends requested me to be sure and let them know how things look out here, and my report, I am afraid, will make travelers out of them. Portland's realty board is going to hold weekly meetings hereafter instead of monthly. In other words there is to be four times as much ginger injected into the body as heretofore and the members expect to accomplish much more for the upbuilding of Portland than ever before.

The real feature of the meeting was an address by C. J. Franklan, superindent of the P. R., L. & P. company, on the proposed "no seat no fare" or-dinance to be voted on at the June election. Mr. Franklin insisted that the adoption of this ordinance would have the effect of greatly discommoding the traveling public in getting, to and from the business center to the suburbs.

"It is a physical impossibility to pre vide cars enough to seat all the people who travel at the rush hours," said speaker. "The average load is 75 to 80 passengers, and there are seats for about half. This means that to provide seats for all it would be necessary to double the number of cars.

This is impossible; the tracks will not hold them on the lines penetrating thickly populated districts."

A new constitution and by-laws was submitted by the committee appointed to draft them. Their discussion was made a special order for next Monday's meeting.

Next Saturday afternoon, the board will go in a body to North Jonesmore upon the invitation of the Umbdenstock & Larsen company, to see what has accomplished on this fine property during the five weeks it has been on the market.

The individual members of the board will make a strong effort to double its membership within the next 60 days. New members were elected as follows at yesterday's meeting: Samuel R. Norton, the Bilbert-Tilbury company, the United Trust company, Coing & Purcel. R. W. Salem, Or., May 23.—Going upon the proverbial assumption that there is always room for one more, Secretary of State Olcott searched that state house over for a location for the new purchasing agent, C. D. Frazer, and found "commodious quarters" in the wash room back of the senate chamber. Ingress and egress may be had to Mr. Fraser's room via either the architect's quarters or the secretary of the board of agriculture offices.

Temporary rollef, by means of witch Mr. Fraser will be let out of the wash room, will come in a few days when secretary Frank Meridith moves his office to the state fair grounds for the summer. Owing to the preparations for the coming fair there will be work on the grounds to require all his time and Mr. Fraser will occupy his office in his absence. The law, however, requires the secretary of the board agriculture to maintain an office at the state house, so it is presumed that Mr. Meridith's office will be somewhat of a will-'o-the-wisp about the halls of the
