

SALMON CANNOT PASS PUNCH BOWL

Fish Ladder Greatly Needed at Cauldron, on the West Fork of Hood River.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Deer, Or., May 26.—At the Punch Bowl, a great blowout in the west fork of Hood River, into which pours the waters of the west fork and those of Dead Point creek, forming a great whirlpool, salmon are having their annual hard time. The salmon come into this whirlpool and attempt to leap the falls but without success, the leap being too great. The sight of the fish darting out of the seething waters is a novel one to those who have never before witnessed the faithful efforts of a salmon to reach the headquarters of a stream. A fish ladder is most certainly needed there.

Forty rigs loaded with people were at the Punch Bowl last Sunday. Several salmon weighing eight pounds were lifted.

Power of Hood River Surveyed.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Deer, Or., May 26.—J. P. Newell, a Portland civil engineer, has been in this locality for several days, surveying. It is supposed, for eastern capitalists who are contemplating utilizing the power at the junction of the east and west forks of Hood river at Wain's station on the Mt. Hood railroad. An immense dam 100 feet high is said to be contemplated.

PORTLANDERS SEEK DIVORCE IN GILLIAM

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Condon, Or., May 26.—Three suits for divorce have been filed in Gilliam county for Portland people by Attorney J. B. Hoarford of Portland. Percy vs. Percy, on ground of desertion; Ewers vs. Ewers, desertion, and J. W. Mallet vs. Florence Mallet. Mallet charges his wife with drunkenness, infidelity, violent temper and an unsuccessful attack upon him with a razor and a revolver. He says she snatched the trigger several times but that she shells were empty and that she attacked him with the butt of the revolver, striking him with it. He charges also that she attempted to throw the contents of a bottle containing carbolic acid into his face.

ATTORNEY YANCKWICH SUED FOR ACCOUNTING

Attorney Harry Yanckwich is made defendant in a suit filed in the circuit court by the five Roumanian laborers who charge he collected money for them and never turned over their share. This transaction was the cause of a criminal charge against Attorney Yanckwich, in which he was discharged. He then filed a $50,000 suit against Judge Olson of the justice court and others for defaming his character. The suit filed yesterday was by Attorney Ben E. Hayman. He represents Peter Fagoff, Nick Rusoff, PH Angeloff, Joe Sherman and Alex Ladish. The five men were unable to collect $1483 on a piece of work on the Natron cutoff of the Southern Pacific railway. Attorney Yanckwich was to receive 25 per cent of the amount collected. He collected the full amount and kept $1000. The five Roumanians told their story to Judge Olson, who caused the arrest of Attorney Yanckwich. Two of the laborers also told how Yanckwich had proposed they take more than their share of the money and leave the state, thereby defrauding the others out of their part. In this way the attorney would make more money, it was charged. The laborers refused to do so. Justice Bell conducted the preliminary hearing of Attorney Yanckwich, and discharged him.

Knew Chicago Years Ago.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Chicago, Ill., May 26.—Fernando Jones, Chicago's oldest pioneer citizen, kept open house for his many friends today on the occasion of his ninety-first birthday anniversary. Mr. Jones was born in Chautauque county, N. Y., in 1820, and came to Chicago with a boat load of hardware 16 years later. The "city" at that time consisted of a few houses clustered around old Fort Dearborn, and the trade was principally with the Indians. Mr. Jones has seen Chicago grow from a town of a few hundred people to a metropolis of 2,500,000, and, as he told his friends today, he hopes to see 100 years and a Chicago of 4,000,000 persons.
