

EVERYTHING IN READINESS FOR ROSE CARNIVAL

Every Committee Has Completed Its Work and Festival Will Open on Minute Without Slightest Delay.

The Rose Festival might commence tomorrow, instead of a week from that date, so far as readiness is concerned.

"The effect of the work will be seen in the opening of the most splendid festival week in the history of the west," said George L. Hutchin, manager of the festival association and designer of the floats to be used in the electrical parade of Tuesday and Saturday nights, June 6 and 11.

This completeness of preparation means that the events of each will be presented without a hitch according to schedule. The blooming of the roses has kept progress with the preparation for the festival. The city next week will be a bower of bloom.

Festival to Begin Sunday. Rose Festival week will really begin next Sunday morning. It will be called Rose Sunday, with sermons appropriate to the day preached from the pulpits of the city.

Monday, June 6, will be known as "Home Coming Day." The city will welcome its visitors. On the stroke of high noon East Oregonians will arrive at the Stark street wharf, with the Rose City as flag ship, conveyed by 75 water craft of every description from ocean going vessels to the smart motor boats, and all under the direction of the Motor Boat club.

Tuesday marks the opening of the rose show in the Armory. The doors will swing open at 3 p. m. and the exhibit of splendid roses will continue through Wednesday.

Wednesday brings the automobile parade with its artistically decorated machines. The number of prizes offered, the quick competition among automobilists, the weeks of preparation, all are expected to combine in making the automobile parade distinctive.

Thursday comes the horse and vehicle parade with its battle of roses when the parade counter-marches before the review stands.

Friday will end with the Festival's great social feature, the military ball in the Armory given under the auspices of the Oregon National Guard.
