A Great 3-Day Sale of Bedroom Furniture and Bedding Begins at Powers' Tomorrow

During Rose Festival Week a great many Portland folks will be called upon to entertain visitors from out of town. For the benefit of those who will be obliged to buy additional things to the furnishings of the spare room, we inaugurate a great three days' sale of Bedroom Furniture and Bedding at exceptionally low prices. All of these things will be on sale, of course, at our usual terms of dignified credit. We have also made provision for quick delivery, so that the purchasers may rest assured of receiving their goods in ample time.

Some Thorough-Going Economies in Bedding

We have yet to hear of a display of these splendid Bed Coverings that will compare with the collection we have gathered this season. It is unequalled—its completeness in keeping with the high character of the furniture and floor coverings you have become accustomed to find at "POWERS." We offer for the week's end some very attractive inducements—all on sale cash or credit, with terms to suit.

ASSERTS PRESENT GARBAGE SYSTEM MENACES HEALTH

A. L. Mills, President of First National Bank Makes Very Strong Talk at Sellwood Favoring Municipal Collection.

"We never see a garbage collector. The draymen won't even haul the ashes away, because they say there is no place to put them. We have to dispose of garbage and waste the best way we can," declared A. L. Mills, president of the First National bank, in an address at Sellwood last night, in behalf of municipal collection of garbage. The members of the Sellwood Commercial club were amazed with statements like the one just quoted.

"While all the city is supposed to have its waste removed in order that, especially in warm weather, the menace of decaying matter to the health of the people may be averted, the Sellwood people made it known that other suburbs are treated in the best way. Garbage collection services, such as it is, is only for the more central portions of the city.

"There could be no better argument for the municipal collection system," said Mr. Mills.

Responsibility Placed.
"With a system of collection owned and operated by the city, Portland will be districted, with a collector for each district, responsible for the efficiency of the collection. We will have responsibility for the kind of garbage collection, too, for the first time in the city's history. If the collector doesn't do his work, the men in charge must get one who does. For the sake of efficiency and public health, we must have municipal collection of garbage."

Mr. Mills expressed the conviction that the municipal collection system is a revenue to the city, an argument that he asserted should appeal to business men and taxpayers. He said private collectors or contractors were anxious to have the work. The experience in other cities is that these, giving indifferent service, yet reap fortunes. Why, he questioned, should not Portland have this profit, while at the same time being provided with a cheap and satisfactory service?

Speaks Thursday Evening.
Mr. Mills will speak again in behalf of the municipal collection of garbage and the proposed $15,000 bond issue with which to buy equipment, Thursday evening before the East Side Business Men's club in Ringier's hall.

One of the most effective arguments for municipal garbage collection produced during the present campaign was given by Dr. C. H. Wheeler, city health officer, before the East Twenty-eighth Street Improvement association last night. As guardian of the people's health, Dr. Wheeler expressed great desire for the approval of the bond issue. Decaying waste matter, he said, is the natural breeding ground for disease, and from them it is distributed by flies and other agencies.

Actual Menace.
He vividly depicted the actual menace of the present unsystematic plan of collection by independent collectors, and at the close of his address the audience, after expressing consternation that such conditions as he described should be permitted to exist so long in enlightened

ITALIAN COMEDY FLAWLESS SHOW

Miss Marlowe and Mr. Sothern Present "The Taming of the Shrew."

By J. F. S.
In striking contrast to the terrible tragedy of the night before, Sothern and Marlowe gave "The Taming of the Shrew," last night at the Hellie. The sombre and weird atmosphere of the Scotch settings of Macbeth were replaced by the color and warmth of the Italian comedy and the stars, most happily cast, moved through the series of gorgeous stage pictures, delighting the audience with their extraordinary facility as comedians.

Both Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe were known as players of the light and fanciful. It is true, before they undertook the heavier work of the Shakespearean tragedies, and yet the demands of the two roles of Katherine and Petruchio are so varied and so extensive as to tax the abilities of the ablest. Not since Ada Rehan delighted theatergoers of a generation ago with her Kate has the role been so strongly or so interestingly handled as by Miss Marlowe. Last night she gave rein to the beauty that the richness of costume and the playfulness of mood of her role permitted her to display to the greatest advantage. Miss Marlowe, to her audience, was a high spirited and more or less malicious shrew, but she was never an unlovely nor an unlovable one.

Sothern, the Veronese gentleman, was the gentleman, and in a role which permits of much careless and hit or miss work upon the part of the actor, he displayed a knowledge of the character that puts to shame that of even the more persistent Shakespearean characters.

No lover of Shakespeare could witness Sothern's Petruchio without crediting him with not alone unusual ability as a creative artist, but unusual patience and industry as a scholar.

Rowland Buckstone, a faithful follower of the bard if there ever was one, did exceedingly well as Grumio, Petruchio's servant. Miss Lamison was good as Katherine's sister Bianca, and Frederick Lewis, Eric Blind and Sydney Mather won individual applause. The large number of parts in the play were capably filled without exception. The costuming and stage settings were marvellous—it is said that every suit and gown of the production is historically accurate in material and cut. It was a happy and flawless performance, and one that whets the appetite still more for those to come. This afternoon and tonight are "Romeo and Juliet" while tomorrow comes "The Merchant of Venice."

and progressive Portland, unanimously endorsed the proposed bond issue.

Among the other speakers of the evening was Dr. Dav Rafferty, who endorsed all that Dr. Wheeler had said. It has been determined by the members of the allied women's organization that are participating in the clean-up crusade and campaigning for municipal garbage collection, that both campaigns shall continue until the eve of the election next Monday. As that is the beginning of the Rose Festival, it is hoped that the town will then have been put into attractive condition, and that the voters will on Monday approve the garbage collection bond issue. It was first planned that clean-up week should end today.
