MADAME DIAZ WON PRESIDENT OVER TO PLAN OF QUITTING

Dread of Massacres and Riots Caused Sympathetic Wife to Force Aged Diaz to Give Up Struggle.

Mexico City, June 5.—Marie Ocampo, an Oaxaca Indian woman, 35 years old, who was in the service of Mrs. Porfirio Diaz for nine years, declared that she had guided the fastidious hand of the president to his resignation and then took the message from the reluctant hand of the old man and sent it herself to the chamber of deputies for action on the evening of May 26.

The servant declares that Mrs. Diaz forced her husband to flee the city at 4 o'clock in the morning through the fear that he would be assassinated. President Diaz protested at his wife's actions and used every argument possible, but finally was overcome by her pleas and he and the family fled. The Ocampo woman said:

"To his family Diaz always said that he would never resign, and that he would not be driven to it, but would stay and fight it out and that if need be, die fighting, but my mistress argued night and day with him and told him that his life was worth more to her than to the ungrateful Mexicans or to a country inhabited by such people. Resignation was planned.

"His resignation had been made out for more than a month by Diaz's attorney and on the afternoon of May 25, about 3 o'clock, Mrs. Diaz brought the paper to Diaz who was seated in the library of his home on Old Cadena street with his head buried in his hands and the tears coursing down his cheeks. "No, no, I will not sign that," he declared. Then Madame urged in a low voice, caressing him soothingly, and finally took his hand, in which she placed a pen and started to guide it over the paper at the bottom of the resignation. Diaz jerked his hand away and springing to his feet, his eyes blazing, cried 'I will not sign this. I will stay here in my country and care for it.'

"Madame Diaz soothed him and then rang the bell. I answered before any other of the servants got there. His wife left the old man with me, and I took his right hand with the pen and guided it as he re-wrote the entire signature. I stood watching and listening. When it was signed Madame reached for it with one hand and with the other rang a bell and called the chamber of deputies was in session, that there was a terrible turmoil about her husband's resignation.

"Diaz thrust the paper in his pocket and refused to hand it over to his wife and brushed her aside. The aged man's resignation made up by the lawyer fell to the floor and it was afterwards burned up and never used. Woman Finally Won. "There were tears on the beautiful face of the madame as she begged Diaz to give her his resignation or at least send it at once so as to avert massacres and riots. She argued for more than 20 minutes and then Diaz tore the crumpled paper from his pocket, thrust it into her hands saying: 'There, do what you please with it.' He threw himself on a couch sobbing as if his heart would break.

"Madame rang the bell and called the military messenger and with him sent the resignation to the chamber of deputies. "At 3:30 in the morning of May 26 the family left in two automobiles and secretly passed down the side streets. None of the servants went to the depot except the driver of the presidential automobile and one guard who sat with the chauffeur. "The president, his wife and daughter went one way to the depot, while Porfirio Diaz Jr., his wife and children went another and joined along the way by automobiles carrying friends, none of whom went further than the depot. "Diaz seemed completely broken with grief which was written all over his face, while Mrs. Diaz alone appeared contented. The son seemed glad to get out of the country where he had been hated for being the son of his father, now without influence. "The family believed that Diaz would have stayed and fought out the battle against all. In the time I worked in the family I never saw the old man recede from a step once taken, and I have been entrusted with many errands, both from Madame and Diaz himself, the errands which a woman alone could do. "All the servants loved Diaz and his wife and believed in him and are still burning candles before the shrine of Guadalupe, praying that he will return."

HOBOS OVERRUN TOWN, THIEVERY PREVALENT (Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Hood River, Or., June 5.—Burglars entered the hardware store of L. N. Blowers Saturday night and made way with several hundred dollars' worth of fire arms and knives. The thieves entered by way of the rear door, unlocked the back door and marched out with their loot. Hood River is overrun with hobos, and petty thievery is the order of the day with the travelers. P. E. Jackson's cellar was entered Saturday night and everything in the way of butter, canned fruit, preserves and substantial articles was carried away to be consumed at the festal board in the jungles north of the city. The Mount Hood railroad company is having the trees cut down on property adjacent to its roundhouse and bridges so hobos may not find a camping place near the company's property where fire hazards would prevail.

All-Night Service Lost. Hood River, Or., June 5.—Hood River is no longer a metropolitan city from the standpoint of telegraphic service. The Western Union Telegraph company has moved its offices up town, and this has put out all the night service. Herebefore the company has had its offices in the O-W. R. & N. depot where an all night service has been maintained in conjunction with the railroad work. It is thought that the fruit shipping industry will suffer from the fact that freight night telegrams can be secured here under the present office arrangement. Frequently telegrams are sent here to the commission houses at night for early express shipments of berries and other fruits.

AIRSHIP CROWD WALKS, IS "SORE"

Salem Council-Railway Row Inconveniences Numerous Spectators.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.) Salem, Or., June 5.—Eugene Ely, aviator, made good in every respect in his flights on the state fair grounds yesterday afternoon, and won unstinted applause from 2500 people on the grounds, but the deplorable inadequacy of the car service to and from the meet stirred up a whirlwind of wrath not equalled in Salem for many months. A few caught the one small car running to the fair grounds, some were able to get automobiles or rigs, but the mass of spectators walked through the heat and dust the entire distance of over two miles and back.

Factionalism and local politics figured in bringing about the disagreeable conditions. On North Commercial street there is some paving under way. Between the car tracks concrete has been laid for over a week. On the outside of the tracks is laid two strips of concrete. The Portland Railway, Light & Power company desired to take excursion cars empty over 200 feet of this and to stand for any damages which might result, but at a late hour the evening before Mayor Lachmund and the street committee of the council decided finally to forbid the company permission to cross the new paving with its empty cars.

Rollin K. Page, local manager of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, would have assumed all risks of damages and put the empty cars across the bit of concrete paving had he not found Sunday morning that someone had piled fresh materials on the track and pulled the paving machinery upon it. When he saw this added obstruction he would not remove it. Mayor Lachmund said he refused permission to the company to take cars over the new paving because he considered it would damage the concrete before it had time to harden sufficiently. He said the city engineer and members of the street committee of the council were with him in his refusal.

It is thought that, notwithstanding the absence of transportation facilities, the expenses of the event will be covered. At least 600 people saw the airship from outside the enclosure. The first flight was in a race with a motorcycle. In flying against the wind the aviator kept about even with the mundane machines, but when flying with the breeze he would swoop past his opponents with a rapidity which made the race seem farcical. At 3:45 o'clock Ely headed southward from the fair grounds and fulfilled his contract to sail around the dome of the state house. In this way hundreds who were unable to get transportation to the fair grounds were enabled to catch a glimpse of the great buzzing, bird-like machine as it soared high above the city.

SAYS ALASKA IS 'TOUTED TO DEATH'

"You'd Think It Had a Corner on Life," Says Former Governor Hoggatt.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) New York, June 5.—Former Governor W. B. Hoggatt of Alaska gave his side of conditions in Alaska. The former governor denied that the Guggenheims have any control of officers or any authorities. He also explained why District Attorney Boice and Sutherland lost their jobs. "The charges against Sutherland and Boice did not grow out of the Hazy case," said Mr. Hoggatt. "They resulted from the assault committed by A. R. O'Brien, editor of the Juneau Record-Miner, on K. C. Russell, editor of the Juneau Dispatch. The former governor said that the syndicate had not done anything in Alaska but try to build railroads. "They are as badly buffeted a bunch as you ever saw," he continued. "So far as asking favors is concerned in the way of appointments or otherwise, they never turned to anybody but the syndicate. They certainly never turned to me. "Alaska has been touted to death. You would think it had a corner on everything that goes to make life worth living."

LITTLE KENNEWICK GETS TWENTY TRAINS DAILY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Kennewick, Wash., June 5.—Beginning yesterday when the O-W. R. & N. company added four new trains to its present schedule, Kennewick has a passenger service equalled by but few cities in the west. Hereafter 20 passenger trains will arrive and leave this city over its three railroads every 24 hours. This number does not include Northern Pacific trains Nos. 1 and 2, which throw off mail here, but do not stop. The new O-W. R. & N. schedule will give the people of the Yakima and Columbia valleys a through train from North Yakima to Spokane and close connections for Portland at Wallula. It will also afford quick transit for express freight shipments, which can put aboard here in the evening and be put on the markets in either of the two cities in prime condition the next morning. The new time card gives Kennewick eight trains daily over the Northern Pacific, eight over the O-W. R. & N. and four over the S. P. & S.

AUTHOR OF "WIZARD OF OZ" IS BANKRUPT

Los Angeles, June 5.—L. Frank Baum, author of "The Wizard of Oz," "The Wogglebug," "Father Goose" and other bits of fiction that have created laughter in many continents, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the district court. The liabilities are scheduled at $12,000 and the assets at $85, the latter consisting of two suits of clothing, a typewriter and a book of references. The debts are said to be for advertising with Chicago publishers. It is said by Baum's friends that he got into financial straits through a lecture tour in which he engaged.
