

DECLARE WAR ON FAKE JEWELERS; NEW LAW URGED

Fake Auctions and Fraudulent Advertising Also Placed Under Ban by Oregon Ass'n in Today's Convention.

Adoption of resolutions favoring the enactment of a law in Oregon protecting the public against fake jewelers, fake auctions and fraudulent advertising, will be the feature of the fourth annual convention of the Oregon Retail Jewelers' association which opened this morning in the assembly hall of the Portland Commercial club.

The attendance is large and every member seems strongly in favor of the adoption of the resolution which will be presented by Secretary C. W. Williams, a jeweler of Condon, Or., who has the distinction of being the father of the Oregon association and for four consecutive times delegate to the national conventions.

"We have been working on a bill for some time," said Mr. Williams, "and expect to have it introduced in the next session of legislature. It will meet with opposition from fake auction houses and concerns pretending to give articles away for nothing, but we believe that the public will be with us feeling the necessity for putting a stop to such flagrant practices as are now permitted to flourish."

Protection at Present. "The state of Oregon gives the purchaser of fake jewelry no protection whatever and he can be bunked to any extent."

"Do you know that brass can be stamped to look like gold and there is no law to prohibit it?"

"Our bill is not to be aimed at fake jewelers only. It will include all lines, for it is not only in the jewelry line that the public is deceived and defrauded. We expect other business interests to support us and feel confident that they will."

"The legitimate dealer suffers by the acts of the fakers because it is hard for him to establish a reputation with the fakers tearing it down as fast as they can to flourish."

"Take for instance in the jewelry line. A reliable firm gets out a new piece of jewelry that sells for $10 and is worth every cent asked."

"A faker manages to have a factory build him good imitation without the lasting qualities and offers it for $5. It is gilded and made to look good, but actually it is perhaps not worth more than $1. The innocent purchaser is led to believe he gets a bargain and then finds his sorrow that he has been defrauded. The result is that legitimate dealer suffers because the purchaser does not know that he was bunked but draws the conclusion that the article he purchased was exactly the same as the one offered by the legitimate dealer."

"In Europe the stamping law is very strict and New York and other states are adopting it. We hope to have Oregon fall in line."

"The convention will last today and tomorrow and will end with a banquet at the Commercial club at 6:30 tomorrow evening."

"This morning's session concluded a meeting of the executive committee, and registration of members. This afternoon H. S. Tutthill delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the Portland jobbers who will tender the banquet tomorrow night."

Reception This Evening. This was followed by the annual address of President F. M. French of Albany, Secretary C. H. Williams' report, and address by C. C. Chapman, manager of the Portland Commercial club, E. J. Jaeger's report, and the talk of Secretary Williams on the proposed bill referred to above.

This evening a reception to the ladies will be held from 7:30 to 8 after which addresses will be delivered by Charles T. Higginbotham, pioneer watch builder, of South Bend, Ind., and representing the South Bend Watch company, E. C. McKee, of the Waltham Watch company, Waltham, Mass., and B. E. Chapman, of the Elgin Watch company, Elgin, Ill.

Tomorrow morning the members and their families will see the city and in the afternoon short talks will be delivered by members. Following these talks will come the election of officers.

NEW PROVINCIAL HOME DEDICATED

Administration Building of Sisters of Holy Name Ready for Occupancy.

The beautiful new administration building near Oswego, built by the Sisters of the Holy Name as a novitiate where from all over the Pacific coast states young sisters of the order will be trained, was dedicated yesterday by Archbishop Christie, assisted by Monsignor Rasmussen, V. G.

The dedicatory ceremonies took place at 3 o'clock p. m. At that time a procession of clergymen, followed by Christian brothers, nuns from St. Mary's, pupils of St. Mary's academy, and orphan girls from the Oswego orphanage marched to the new building where Archbishop Christie made the address, which was followed by the benediction of the blessed sacrament.

A number of visitors of all denominations attended the dedication from Portland.

The new building is located on a beautiful site overlooking the Willamette river. There are about 100 acres of land in the tract and it is beautifully situated. The building is one of the handsomest of its kind on the coast.

The opening of this new edifice means that the congregation at St. Mary's academy will be relieved. For many years it has been the home of the mother provincial and young women have been trained for work there. Nothing but school work will be carried on at the academy in future.

Among the visiting clergymen at the ceremonies were: Rev. Fathers Gallagher, McGinn, Hillebrand, Cantwell, Ricetti, Bolla, McDevitt, Thomas and Gibney.

MAY OUST HEAD OF CHEMAWA SCHOOL

Believed in Washington That Charges Against Supt. May Bring Discharge.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, June 5.—Special Agent Holcomb's report on the Chemawa Indian school is being examined in the Indian office, but officials sit tight on the lid, refusing any information until the matter has been thoroughly threshed out.

Enough has been learned, however, to establish the fact that the only thing urged against Professor Chalors is inefficient management, with the principal charge against him resting upon his conception of the uses to which corporal punishment should be put in dealing with children of Indian parents, and that whatever the report may contain it will not go farther than to raise that question and the recommendations will be based thereon.

It is believed here, according to other sources than Indian officials immediately concerned in the pending decision, that the situation assures that Chalcraft will have to give up that position and that the decision will contain such conclusions as will make it impossible to place him with another Indian school, although nothing has been turned up that reflects in the slightest degree upon his honor.

FRIENDS MOURN DEATH OF OLIVER C. RICHES

Everyone in the Federal building who knew Oliver C. Riches, the post office inspector who died in Spokane Saturday evening, feels today as though he had lost a very good and tried friend. Riches died in a Spokane hospital following a two weeks' illness of tubercular meningitis. His body has been brought to Portland and will be cremated tomorrow afternoon.

Riches had been a postoffice inspector for 10 years, about half of that time in Portland. Though the nature of his work involved dealings with criminals to a considerable degree, it never tended to make Riches harsh or unkindly, and together with his sympathetic disposition, he had a very broad understanding of his work and its relation to the public that made him, in the eyes of his associates in the government service, an invaluable public servant.

Surviving Mr. Riches are a widow and five young children, living at 1385 Milwaukee street. Mrs. Riches was with her husband when he died. She accompanied the body to Portland.

RETURNED PASTOR IS TENDERED RECEPTION

Rev. J. Richard Olsen, pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran church, who returned yesterday from Nebraska, preached his first sermon yesterday and Saturday evening was tendered a reception by his congregation. The reception was held in the church parlors. Addresses were delivered by Rev. H. E. Sandstead of the Lutheran church, Rev. Allan Lease of St. James' Lutheran church, Dr. P. W. H. Frederick, president of the Lutheran Theological seminary, F. W. Lonegren, A. Bedin and David E. Joffen.

Rev. Olsen came here from Marshallfield about two months ago to succeed Rev. C. J. Renhard, who resigned, but his wife died from an attack of pneumonia, just as they were preparing to leave Marshallfield for Portland and in company with his wife's parents he took a trip to his former home in Nebraska. Tomorrow evening there will be a concert in the Immanuel church by a double quartet from the Coeur d'Alene college, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, and Mrs. Myrtle E. Norquist, a noted soprano.

UP TO PEOPLE TO MAKE TRUSTS BE GOOD—T. LAWSON

Boston Financier Sees Great Prosperity Ahead for Country; Good Effects of Recent Trust Decisions.

"When the six months granted the trusts to reform are up, will the American people be fooled? That is the big question," said Thomas W. Lawson of Boston this morning at his daughter's home at the Wickersham apartments, referring to the recent supreme court decisions in the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust cases.

"The decisions will have tremendous effect," he continued. "They mean that hereafter anyone caught retaining trusts must go to jail—after six months are up—unless the American people can be fooled by subterfuges and technicalities, and I believe they are thoroughly aroused, and that they will stay on the sidewalk and watch the procession to see what will happen. I believe they will see to it that the trusts do reform and give the other fellow a chance."

See Much Prosperity. "The people for the past decade have seen great prosperity, but they saw all the time that something was wrong. They asked for increased pay and got it, but they soon discovered that there was no money left on Saturday night. From they ate and slept and got along all right, but they observed that their next door neighbor added an extra team to his coach and seemed still a little more prosperous. They began to study conditions, and they saw that there was an immense surplus of money somewhere. They were not getting it; it did not evaporate; it didn't sink into the ground. Then where did it go?"

"And then they discovered that somewhere that surplus was finding a resting place. So they discovered a machine—a machine that conveyed that surplus from them into the coffers of the few. The question then was, how to divert that flow. Occasionally they touched a belt here, a cog wheel there, but it had little effect."

Boosword a Failure. "Then they began to search for the button to press and stop the machinery, or at least retard it. Finally they found one that they thought was the proper one to press. And it did respond slightly for a short time. That was Roosevelt."

"But soon the people's hopes were again blasted for aside from a momentary rattle, little results were obtained. Cortelyou stepped from the White House to the head of a monster gas company at a salary of $1,000,000 a year and $150,000 for expenses, and matters again began discouraging."

"The American people are intelligent. They kept at it. Two years of waiting was a long time, but those two years are ended now, and the supreme court has given its decisions. Had the court decided that the trusts must immediately be dissolved, business would immediately stop and the country would suffer. So the word 'Unreasonable' was inserted in the law on the statutes, and six months was given the trusts that were operating in restraint of trade, 'unreasonably' to reform. And business went on."

Business Must Go On. "There are 8400 large corporations doing business in the United States. They are controlled, managed and practically owned by 1300 holding companies, with a capital of about $14,000,000,000. They are the 'Business' of the country. The business of the country must not stop at once. The effect would be disastrous. Hence the supreme court decision."

"It would almost seem that the hand of Providence is taking part in this great affair. Shortly after the six months are up—the six months granted the trusts to reform—the people will have a chance to say who shall go to Washington to make their laws. They will say that if the trusts do continue to disobey the supreme court's decision—the last resort—then they will take the matter into their own hands and see to it that men like La Follette go to the capital and make laws far more stringent and binding than ever before; laws that must be obeyed; laws covering all technicalities and all subterfuges."

"They will watch closely. If they receive a smaller plug of tobacco for their money; if they do not see the food supply increase for the old price they paid, they will know that honest business is not being done, and then they will have their say."

May Buy Orchard. Mr. Lawson will spend about two weeks in Portland and Oregon. This is his first visit to the coast and he will make the best of it. He will visit many of the fruit orchards and will probably purchase a ranch. He is an enthusiastic booster for Portland and the state as a whole.

"Wall street knows that Portland is the only city in the United States that has been forging ahead for the past year and a half," he said. "Why, every morning the financiers know what is going on in this city. Portland is looked upon as the most conservative, hustling city in the west. You may look for a great growth within the next few years."

Mr. Lawson is accompanied by his daughter, Jeanne, who, he says, does the dictating. Both are delighted with Portland.

The telephone at the McCall home, where Mr. Lawson and his daughter are visiting, rings every three minutes during the day, and every class of persons in the city request interviews with him. One old lady called the financier up this morning and endeavored to prove that she was his aunt. Finally she called him, bringing him some roses, but she failed to establish the relationship.

CHILDREN RESCUED FROM FIERY DEATH

W. G. Oldham Rescues Two Little Ones From Burning Cottage.

The two children of W. G. Oldham were rescued from possible death in flames by their father shortly after 5 o'clock this morning, when fire originating in the kitchen of the family cottage in Railway addition, rapidly filled the house with smoke, attacking the bedrooms adjoining, where the little ones were asleep. Both children were slightly burned before they could be dragged out of the room. The father sustained slight burns.

The family were asleep when Mr. Oldham was awakened by the crackling of flames. He ran into the kitchen only to be driven back by a sheet of flame. He then rushed to the aid of his children and by heroic efforts managed to get them out of the path of the flames despite the fact that the room was filled with sufficing and fumes.

The flames spread so rapidly that there was no time to summon the aid of the fire department. A hand to hand battle was waged against the fire by Mr. Oldham and neighbors who were attracted to the scene. The cottage, it is said, was greatly damaged.

RAILROAD GETS STAY IN LAND CONTEST CASE

Judge Bean, in the United States court, today granted the application of the Pacific coast railway for a stay of action in the suit of Maria de Grubbsich against the Southern Pacific company, until Mrs. de Grubbsich, who was a granddaughter of Ben Holladay, can show reasonable grounds for the bringing of the suit.

Mrs. de Grubbsich claims that certain land in Clackamas county held by the railroad was the property of her grandfather and was given her by his will. The railroad claims Holladay, when he sold the Oregon & California railway, gave title to the land to C. P. Huntington and other buyers of the road, but that the deed was destroyed in the San Francisco fire. They asked the court to order the prosecution of the suit stopped until the plaintiff could show cause for action.

Mrs. de Grubbsich is the wife of an Austrian diplomat now living in Tunis, Tripoli.

WEMME WILL SOAR WITH BIRDMAN ELY

When Eugene Ely starts his passenger carrying flight Wednesday afternoon his companion will be E. Henry Wemme, the local automobilist and sportsman, who had the distinction of importing the first airplane into the northwest.

Wemme's machine was a little Curtiss type which Ely started on his aviation career. Ely since he has become a national character in the aviation field, has been anxious to take Mr. Wemme up in the heavier than air machine.

UNIQUE FIREWORKS AT CREST WEDNESDAY EVE

Pacific coast people who, happy in their ignorance, have never seen a thunderstorm will have their eyes and ears opened Wednesday night when a special display of fireworks will be given from Council Crest. The Hill Fireworks company, of Benton county, has a quantity of special displays for the festival, among them varieties of lydite bombs that are guaranteed to give proper demonstration of the sights and sounds of a thunderstorm with none of the danger. Another feature will be the famous Nyctalus, 100 feet in size. About 100 pounds of red fire have been secured and will be burned around the Crest during the evening.

BENTON WOMAN IS FOULLY MURDERED IN LONELY CABIN

(Continued from Page One.) Corvallis, the verdict being "murder at the hands of a person or persons unknown." The sheriff of Benton county is at work, but so far, it is said, has not ascertained anything definite as to the perpetrator.

There were marks on Mrs. Griffith's neck, wrist and arms, and general indications of a most brutal killing.

The son's name is George Griffith and he is about 22 years of age, which is how the murderer was able to work in comparative security. The Hinkle sawmill is on Rock creek, half a mile away. There is a dam and millpond in connection with this mill and she was thrown in the creek near the milldam.

The Griffith farm lies half a mile from the county road running from Corvallis to Alsea across the Coast range. It is in the foothills of the Coast range, on the eastern slope. There are no families west of the farm until the other side of the summit is reached.

There is a family half a mile south and two other families near, but none nearer than a quarter of a mile, which is how the murderer was able to work in comparative security. The Hinkle sawmill is on Rock creek, half a mile away. There is a dam and millpond in connection with this mill and she was thrown in the creek near the milldam.

The day, and every class of persons in the city request interviews with him. One old lady called the financier up this morning and endeavored to prove that she was his aunt. Finally she called him, bringing him some roses, but she failed to establish the relationship.

KING REX MEETS MAYOR OF CITY

President Hoyt of Festival Association Makes Presentation Speech.

In presenting Rex Oregonus to Mayor Strong and the people of Portland, President H. Hoyt of the Festival association, said:

"The Honorable Mayor and our Fellow Citizens: The time has come when we are about to inaugurate a week of festivities in honor of the fair city of roses. It is an occasion in which every patriotic citizen should join heart and hand that we may show the world at large that we are a most hospitable people. It is a time when we all should feel that our usual business vocations should be laid aside for the day and hour and cooperate in the celebration of our far-famed festival of flowers."

"As the chief executive of the city of roses we ask you that you urge all people to lay aside business cares so far as they may, and to participate in the gladness of the coming week. Let joy reign unconfined and let us attend the hand of good-fellowship to every stranger within our gates. Our general sovereignty who has held sway over our former fetes is with us once more and we do him homage. His majesty we do him proper obeisance. His majesty should be our most potent command and it should be our general aim to give the city over to him, swearing full allegiance to him, observing all that that may issue from the mystic throne and to honor him as only loyal subjects can."

"Your honor, the mayor, it affords me the greatest of pleasure to present to you that merriest of all, merry monarchs, the kindest of all kindly sovereigns, His Majesty, Rex Oregonus, king of the Oregon country, a gentle ruler over a fair land and a happy people—I present to you his Royal Majesty—Rex Oregonus."

"HOLD HIGH CARNIVAL," SAYS REX OREGONUS, TO MAYOR OF CITY

Answering the mayor's welcome and the presentation of the key of the city, Rex Oregonus handed to the mayor a scroll upon which were these words:

"In the Fifth Year of Our Reign in Our Month of June, Nineteen Hundred and Eleven, Oregonus, by grace of providence, kind consideration and good weather of this realm of roses, king, promoter of jollity and good fellowship, emperor of kindly faith, to all whom these presents are by our worthy heralds proclaimed:

"Know all, in consideration of some circumstances humbly represented to us and to our royal prerogatives, mere motion, special favor and good grace, we do hereby graciously and thankfully commend to our many happy subjects of this rosy realm your excellency's kind greetings and welcoming hospitality to ourselves and to our court, for to us, since our last visit here, hath come word of your performance and achievement which hath pleased us much."

"And it is our royal wish and pleasure that our festivities shall not be marred but shine replete with joy and satisfaction for all our subjects."

"Our royal pleasure doth advise you to come and hear and heed to this present will and proclaim for us to all our subjects through our heralds here: 'Hold high carnival, frolic and full fun! Without the cloud, let shine the sun! Our festive jollity bidding have begun! Be gracious all and with contentment, Much to show and do is our intent. Therefore, be happy with us, and, in due observance, to our royal will and pleasure that our festivities shall not be marred but shine replete with joy and satisfaction for all our subjects.'

"For those kindlier things our subjects do wait without freedom and unbridled pleasure reign supreme throughout our realm. Rejoice! We do! Rejoice! We must. 'Til Portland roses lie scattered in the dust."

"Give to our court on the royal barge this fifth of June, the fifth year of our reign. REX OREGONUS."

SPECIAL CAR NECESSARY TO CARRY PENDER'S ROSE FESTIVAL CROWD

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Pendleton, Or., June 5.—Pendleton and Umatilla county are sending large delegations to the Portland Rose Festival today. So large was the crowd that a special car had to be attached to both No. 1 and No. 17, and even then people had difficulty in finding seats. Many more will leave tomorrow and Wednesday.

12-YEAR-OLD BOYS ROB GROCERY STORE

Three lads, each 12 years of age, sought to prepare for vacation yesterday afternoon and broke into the grocery store of W. R. Arnold, 225 Sixth street. They secured about $25 worth of chewing gum, candies, and fishing tackle. The boys are Lawrence Hagan, John Curtis and Horace Lamson. They were taken in charge this morning by Probation Officer White and placed in the Frazer home.

The boys are pupils at the Shaddock school. Late yesterday afternoon they made their way to the rear of the store. A window was forced open and two of the boys crept inside. They secured the articles and placed them in a large grain sack. This was too large for one boy to carry and it was dragged a short distance from the store and a wagon secured to convey it to an old barn at Fifth and Montgomery streets.

CRIMINAL ACTION AGAINST LUMBER BARONS EXPECTED

Precautions Taken in Empanelling Grand Jury to Investigate Timber Trust Believed to Mean Business.

(United Press Special Wire.) Chicago, June 5.—United States District Judge K. M. Landis today empaneled a special grand jury to investigate the lumber trust and its operations. Dausaus secrecy and considerable mystery surrounds the proceedings and every effort was made to prevent any information leaking out. The court instructed the jurors that they "must not talk" about the case to any one.

Judge Landis instructed the grand jury to investigate whatever United States District Attorney Sims and Assistant Attorney General McKercher suggested.

Charge to Jury. In charging the jurors, the court said: "I want to tell you one thing. In the past the grand jurors talked. This morning that they may not claim immunity, it is said that some of them will be summoned to testify before the grand jury."

The chief clerks of the companies in the lumber trust and the private secretaries of the men against whom the investigation is directed, have, however, been ordered to produce all records and correspondence referring in any way to "suppression of competition."

It is reported that the government will urge a unique legal point in the prosecution of the lumber trust. This will be that even if proof positive of a conspiracy to throttle competition, cannot be produced, the fact that the bolstering of prices and the shutting off of competition occurred on numerous occasions, is prima facie evidence of such a conspiracy to restrain trade.

DUNIWAY ANSWERS OLCOTT CALMLY

Sets Forth Right to Stay but May Move if Quarters Are Suitable.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., June 5.—Whether or not there is to be a legal battle between Secretary of State Olcott and State Printer W. S. Duniway over removal by the secretary of state of the printer's department from the state house was not determined by a diplomatic reply from the state printer received today by Secretary Olcott to his formal notification to move out, sent Saturday. As custodian of the state house Olcott notified Duniway to move by August 31.

ROSEBURG WILL SEND EXCURSION TO FESTIVAL

A special train carrying 150 Roseburg people will arrive here at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. The excursion will come under the auspices of the Roseburg commercial club in return for the Portland excursion to Roseburg during the time of the strawberry festival about three weeks ago.
