The strawberry crop in that district will not average more than 75 per cent of a crop and many interests place the output at not more than 50 per cent, taking the entire production as a basis. "The berry crop of the Clackamas section," says R. B. Holcomb of the Clackamas association, "will not be more than 75 per cent. Most of the soft berries will be on the market next week, when the season will be at its height. "Wilsons will begin to ripen next week and some shipments may be expected about the middle of the week. There are very few Clarks in sight and that variety will not average more than 50 per cent of a crop. L. the Valley.

Walla Walla, June 10.—With the crop just about half shipped, it is estimated that the strawberry yield in the Walla Walla valley will be short about 30 per cent. From reports gathered as widely as possible, it appears that about 40,000 crates have already been shipped from the valley; and about as many more are yet to ripen.

yet to ripen.

The average price so far has been about $3 a crate, some $130,000 worth of berries being sold. The price will probably go no lower, although the season end berries will be cheaper than the early ones. But a conservative figure on this year's berry crop is $115,000

START HAY HARVEST AT WALLA WALLA

Walla Walla, June 10.—Haying will begin soon in the Walla Walla valley, the first activities along this line having already been started. The real work of cutting and curing the forage crops will not begin until the first of next week, or perhaps the latter part of the week in the cooler districts.

From all indications there will be plenty of help in the hay fields this summer, as well as in the harvest fields later. Men are on the streets in large numbers, and farniers are having no difficulty in picking up all the help they need to take care of their crope.

Hay is better this year than usual, cwing to the long period of cool rainy weather just when it was growing the best. Many farmers will cut part of their grain for hay, in districts where it was sown late, owing to the outlook for good prices this season. Wis. Central C.

TODAY IN WHEAT PIT

Chicago, June 10.—The most remarkable reaction in wheat prices of the season was forced today when a leading bull interest started to take profits on his July holdings. This unsettled the entire market with the result that prices were down 1% to 3% a bushel at the closing as compared with the previous session.

Market for wheat started with a quarter cent loss with good crop prospects as the bearish factor. Soon after the opening the inclination to unload the July brought forth additional short selling, and after touching $2c that option dropped to 88% c, closing a fraction higher than the low mark, bid.

Other deliveries were influenced by the eruption of prices in the July and both September and December closed at the low mark.

lent condition and commanded good sale.

Potato arrivals from California to date this season have been the smallest for any similar period in many years. The season in the south is much deferred and some of the early sections have not yet started to ship more than nominal lots.

With the end of the season for potato shipments from the nast, offerings of old crop in the Front street trade are unusually light. As there is always a demand for old potatoes until the new crop is sufficiently aged to allow its use for baking and frying, the outlook for old crop prices is exceedingly favorable.

NATHAN ROGOWAY HAS DISAPPEARED: MYSTERY

Albany, Or., June 10.—Nathan Rogeway, a hide buyer for the Albany Tanning company, has been mysteriously missing since May 27, at which time he was in Medford. Fears are entertained that he has either met with foul play or that he may have become temporarily deranged. The latter assumption is based on the fact that he recently met with an accident while riding a motor-cycle, in which his head was injured. All efforts of the missing man's employers and relatives here to ascertain his whereabouts have been futile. Rogoway was about 23 years of age and has a wife and child here. Mrs. Rogoway is prostrated by anxiety. Rogoway was a man of exemplary habits, and there is no known reason for his disappearance. He is a relative of E.
