Fishing operations have started in southwestern Alaska, according to arrangements made earlier in the season. While no reports have been received from the north regarding packing operations at the start, the tests made by hook and line fishing would indicate a rather good run.

There continues much speculation among the salmon trade regarding the probable opening of prices for Alaska salmon this season. While the run in Alaska and the probable price will have no effect upon the Columbia river fish, still all interests are anxious that prices be uniform.

At the present time it is generally understood that Alaska canned salmon will open 10c a dozen above last year's figures. This would make the following prices:

The Alaska fishing industry caters more to the cheaper priced trade than the Columbia river or Puget sound packers and for that reason prices cut much consideration. While Columbia river packers can name almost any price they choose and get away with it, because of the wall known reputation of their product, Alaska packers must look after the price and demand more carefully.

look after the price and demand carefully.

There is competition all along the coast for raw fish this season. Frank C. Barnes is building a new cannery on Alsea at Waldport, about 14 miles from Newport. Elmore Packing company already has a cannery at that place, but up to this time has been able to secure its supplies at whatever price it offered. However, the Barnes cannery will be of small capacity, although of modern design.

CANTALOUPES ARE LOWER Market Down With Greater Offering

Along the Street. With the greater offerings of canta-loupes, the market is lower here and sales today are being made along Front street at $5 to $4 a crate, according to quality and size. Fruit is in good con-dition,

TOMATOES ARE DOWN

Mississippi Stock Is Coming Forward Very Freely Here. Heavier supplies of Mississippi to-matoes have brought about a decline of 25c in the price here and sales to-day of quality are being made from $1.50 to $1.75 per crate of four baskets.

FLORIDA CELERY IS HIGH Today's Arrivals Quoted at $5 Per Crate; Quality Is Fair, Another small shipment of Florida celery came forward to the local trade teday. Stock was in good condition although somewhat green. Sales were made at $5 per crate generally.

Excellent Growing Weather and Larger Acreage Expected to Aid.

The cabbage crop prospect of western Oregon this season promises to be the greatest ever gathered. Some early cabbage has already gone forth to the markets, but shipping will not become general before the early days of July. The acreage planted to cabbage in both western Oregon and in the eastern part of the state is the greatest in the history of the industry, and with a better output per sure in sight it looks as if this state will be in a position to supply outside markets with cabbage instead of being compelled to import half of its needs, as was shown last season. To date the pablage plants have had unusually good growth, and they are heading up exceedingly well, and present prospects are that the quality will rival all former outputs from this section.

At the present time cabbage supplies are scarce. High prices are ruling in California as the result of the great outside demand and local figures are the greatest in years for this period. Dealers are not ordering heavily in anticipation of an early run of local stock.

CHEESE MARKET LOWER

Half Cent Cut Off Quotation Owing to Eastern Drop. Cheese market is down %c per pound generally in the local trade with most sales today at 1 to per pound for flats. Offerings from Tillsmook continue to increase, but the lower price in the east has caused the drop in price.

Peaches Hard to Sell. On account of the poor quality of the peaches now coming from California, as well as the liberal offerings of other fruit, prices are being reduced but even at $1.75 per box, stocks are not being taken up freely.

Crystal Cove and River Homes on the Bpokane river are on the market this week and pickers are in great demand.
The crop will be large this year.

Stevenson Is Shipping.

Stevenson Wash, June 16.—This year Stevenson is beginning to ship a few crates of strawberries to outside markets. It is the first real shipments we have made. Last year we shipped several crates to different points, but it was only an experiment, to see whether our berries would bear shipping, and whether it was a paying proposition. The experiment proved a success, and our berries are now selling alongside Hood River and white Salmon berries, in the different markets, and bringing the same prices. This year about 500 crates will be shipped from here, and this amount will increase rapidly as the years go by.

Hood River Carlots,

Hood River Carlots.

Hood River, Or. June 15.—Shipments of carlots of berries continue from this place. The fruit is sent east owing to the higher prices and the good keeping quality of the berries grown in the Hood River valley.
