

INDIANS BLOCKING PENDLETON PLAN

Thorn Hollow Springs Lie on Squaws' Lands; City's Plan Is Refused.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Athens, Or., June 22.—Indians on the Umalla reservation propose to fight Pendleton, which is seeking a new water supply on their lands. The right of way will also have to run for some miles across Indian lands. The Indians have employed Attorney Homer L. Watts of this city to look after their interests and to protect them against any further invasion of their holdings by the whites.
The case is one of magnitude as Pendleton has already voted $230,000 with which to secure the new water supply. Chief Umpine of the Cayuses together with 20 or 30 of the most influential members of his tribe spent some hours holding a general council in the office of Attorney Watts and it is understood that they propose taking the fight at once before the commissioner of Indian affairs at Washington.

Major Swartzlander of the local agency doing all in his power to get the Indians and the city to agree on some settlement and it is understood the city has made the Indians an offer of $2500 for the water and five acres of adjacent land. This the Indians refuse, saying they selected this particular land because the springs are on it and that they do not want to sell it.
The head of the proposed water supply is on the allotments of two squaws, one named We-nix and the other We-alat-aa-mi, both of the Cayuse tribe. Attorney Watts said he was informed by disinterested parties that the lands were reasonably worth $4000 to $4300.

SHASTA ROBBER SIGHTED

In that city and here he proved beyond a doubt his identity and the fact that he has been following his trade at Langiots for some time past and had walked from there to Bandon.

Yoncalla, Or., June 22.—The latest news from the Shasta holdup chase came this morning from Mr. Huntington of Yoncalla, who with his auto went to the Coast range two days ago to assist the Douglas county posse. He tel-phoned that he was proceeding to Loon lake and did not know when he would be back. Loon lake is between Allany and Scottsburg. One of the deputies telephoned from Umpqua river to his wife here last night that he was proceeding to Loon lake. The hold-ups have not been sighted by the posse at any time, so far as known here.

Drain, Or., June 22.—Report has reached here from the Shasta posse that identity of the thugs has been pretty thoroughly established. The trail followed by the bloodhounds led to two cabins in the mountains between Yon-calla and the Yellow creek country, about eight miles southwest from the former place. The scent was followed to the front door of one of the cabins and taken up again at the back door, thence the trail took a southwesterly course, crossing the Umpqua river in the vicinity of Kellogg and at last reports the posse was in the vicinity of Ash, in the Loon lake country, the band apparently being headed toward Coos Bay. A coat abandoned by one of the robbers was found on the trail and has been recognized as the property of one of the suspects.

Men named Allen and Anderson have been discussed in connection with the holdup. Postal Inspector Morse, who is still here awaiting developments, is momentarily expecting news of a capture.

Roseburg, Or., June 22.—The names of the two bandits who held up the small clerks of the Shasta Limited last Friday and stole four sacks of registered mail are believed by some of the officers to be Anderson and Allen.
They have been living on a mountain ranch, eight miles southwest of Yon-calla. The bloodhounds led the posse from the railroad track directly to the cabin, indicating that the robbers went there after robbing the train. Leaving the cabin the robbers went in a southwesterly direction, crossing the Umpqua river near Kellogg. A place was found where they dried their clothes after swimming the river. From here they went to the wild and desolate Loon lake region, which is 20 miles west of Elkton. A coat found on the trail has been positively identified as the property of one of the outlaws by a member of the posse who is well acquainted with him.

Mail sacks have disappeared from deposits in the Yoncalla region recently.
The suspected pair may be guilty of these thefts also.

The posse divided yesterday, one part going to Coos Bay, the other searching the Loon lake region.

CITIZENS PLAY POKER; GRAND JURY TO ACT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Hood River, Or., June 22.—A large number of citizens of Cascade Locks were caught in the poker dragnet a short time ago and will be brought before the Hood River county grand jury that meets on July 3. Sheriff Johnson has been busy during the week, serving witnesses with subpoenas.

Farmers Criticize Road Methods.
Hood River, Or., June 22.—A strong protest is going up from a number of east side farmers who are objecting to the manner in which the new macadam road is being built. The objectors state that the road work is costing entirely too much and that it is not being properly done.

MURDERER NOW IN CITY?

to reach The Dalles is beyond the understanding of the farmers living in that district and of the sheriff's men, unless the man wished to keep out of the way of travel.

Cowings on Trail.
A posse in one of the automobiles owned by the Cowings, Mrs. Hill's relatives, left early yesterday morning for Sandy, Rhododendron and Marmot, hoping to head off the man before he reached the top of the divide. They followed him to a point where he evidently had given up his plan to cross the Cascades and turned back toward Portland. From then on they found a number of persons who had seen him pass, but they were unable to get nearer than 10 hours of the time he had passed a given point.

The description of the man secured by the sheriff's office is: Height 5 feet 10 inches, weight about 170 pounds, ruddy complexion, 10 days or two weeks growth of beard, corduroy trousers and carried a small roll of blankets or pack on his back.

The reward of $2825 offered through The Journal and the $1000 offered by the state for the capture of the mur-derer of the Hills still await claimants. A provision of the reward offered through The Journal is that $500 is to be given the person or persons giving information that leads to the arrest and conviction of the murderer.
The remainder goes to those who capture him.

MISCONDUCT COSTS BLEE HIS PAROLE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Marshfield, Or., June 22.—After having been out on parole, Robert Blee, alias Robert Brown, must go to the penitentiary to serve a term of two years for forgery. When Blee was first tried in this county for forgery he attracted much sympathy as he claimed that he forged the check to help a sick friend.
He was granted a parole by Judge Coles and went to work in a logging camp.
Later he was arrested for some previous trouble in California, but he got out of that and returned to Coos county. At Bandon he got drunk and had several fights and was arrested with the result that his parole was revoked and he will be sent to the penitentiary.

Woman Is Robbed.
(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, June 22.—Two masked robbers today bound, gagged and robbed Mrs. John Chiateloni in her apartments in the Cenova hotel and escaped with $50 in cash.
