

BERRIES AND RICH CREAM TEMPTERS ON LEBANON TRIP

Portland Delegation Makes a Tour in Autos, Passing Through Fertile Valleys—Good Roads Meeting Held.

With modern transit shortening the distance, two automobile parties of Portland business men made the Portland-Lebanon trip of nearly 200 miles yesterday, crowding the experiences of a week into a little more than the length of a working day.

The way led through Multnomah, Clackamas, Marion and Linn counties to Lebanon's Strawberry festival, and back through the Willamette valley via Polk, Yamhill and Washington counties. The improvement of roads on both the Willamette and Astoria rivers has increased interest in highway making, brought about by the good roads movement, made such a trip possible.

In one party were Carlos T. Prall, president; Dr. Andrew C. Smith, treasurer, and Amos Moore, director of the Oregon association for Highway Improvement, together with Frank C. Higgs and Dwight Edwards. In another party were C. C. Chapman, promotion bureau manager of the Commercial club; Phil E. Bates, director of the highway association, and a Journal reporter.

Beautiful Views.

"I do not believe there is anywhere such a vividly fertile valley," said Mr. Chapman as the speeding auto passed through picturesque Clackamas county to the prairie belt of Marion where a reward for scientific cultivation was indicated in the heavy hanging boughs. A view not possible from the railroad was afforded from the summit of the low mountains in south Marion county. Beyond the broad Astoria bottom lands was the blue line of the Coast range. To the east were the Cascades. With growing crops and luxuriant bloom the scene was beautiful past description.

Road Meeting Held.

In the afternoon a good roads meeting was held. The growing popular interest in the matter of highways for Oregon scientifically built was evidenced by the size of the crowd assembled from every part of Linn county. Senator M. A. Miller, who is president of the festival, presided, and addresses were made by Mr. Prall, Dr. Smith, Mr. Bates and others. The automobile bearing Mr. Chapman and Mr. Bates arrived too late for the meeting because of a break down on the road.

Returning, the Portland representation came again to Salem, then over the Willamette by the high bridge to Polk county, past the Wallace fruit ranch to Hopewell in Yamhill county where "Uncle Jack" Kirkwood and Mrs. Kirkwood, a delightful old couple, the parents of Mrs. C. C. Chapman, entertained several members of the party at dinner, including Mr. Chapman. "Uncle" Jack Kirkwood is 83 years old and he made the first machinery ever used in the Willamette valley. He came west to California in 1846. Mrs. Kirkwood is 73, a pioneer of the first wagon immigration across the country, coming in Dr. Whitman's party in 1843. No glimpse of historic days could have been more delightful than that afforded by "Uncle" Jack and "Mother" Kirkwood, who are still as active as many half their age.

VISITOR AFTER 53 YEARS FINDS DEE HAS CHANGED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Dec. Or., June 23.—Charles P. Williams of Chicago was out through the Hood River valley Tuesday and Wednesday. Mr. Williams is 70 years old, but hunted in this and the upper valley in 1858. He tells of seeing elk in this locality in those days. He said that Courtney Walker Meek, a son of Joseph L. Meek, directed him here to trap for beaver and that the little animals were plentiful in 1858. The country was very thickly timbered and there were only trails here and there made by the Indians in quest of game. After reaching the forks of Hood river in 1858 Mr. Williams found Indian camps, the Indians claiming the right to trap for beaver, but telling him that it was all right to "wemalooze moowick" all deer—a thing he proceeded to do. This is his first trip in here since then.

FEAST FOR EPICURE IN PACIFIC MONTHLY

No more delightful reading may be found for vacation time this month than the July number of the Pacific Monthly, just out.

The cover page this month was designed by C. E. Wood—a painting of Mount Hood, an original and pleasing effect. The beautiful colored pictures of western scenes are a delight to the eye and as the leaves are turned the interest grows. There are short stories of every phase of life, and the western scenes and stories are at once interesting, entertaining and educational.

"How Washington Women Regained the Ballot," by C. H. Bally, is the leading article. It deals with the recent embargo in Seattle. "Confessions of a Reporter," by Howard Ardley, tells of tales behind the scenes in the newspaper offices. "A Day With the Round-Up," by S. S. Metzger, shows the wild cowpuncher in his natural state and is a tale well told. "Save the Pueblos," by Charles Francis Saunders, makes a strong appeal for the Arizona Indians. "Impressions of Woodrow Wilson," by Charles Erskine Scott Wood, are interesting and wholesome. And this is but a part of the Pacific Monthly literature that the Pacific Monthly is serving to its readers for July.

CONVICTS SAY SHERIFF PLANNED 2 MURDERS

Deaga.

NEW MORNING PAPER TO FIGHT GEN. OTIS

(United Press Landed Wire.) Los Angeles, June 23.—Appearance in the near future of a new one cent morning paper for this city which specially will fight General Otis' Times, is announced here today by the publishers of the Evening Express. No name for the new paper and no exact announcement of who is to be its backer have as yet been made.

CINNIBAR MINES TO RESUME WORK

Portlanders Expect Soon to Sell Black Butte Workings to St. Louis Men.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Cottage Grove, Or., June 23.—Negotiations for the purchase of the Cinnabar mines at Black Butte, 20 miles south of this city, are pending with a strong probability that they will be successfully closed within the ensuing month. St. Louis, Mo., persons have for some time been desirous of becoming owners of this valuable property, and on two different occasions experted the mines, which have more than three miles of tunnels, and which are known to be rich in cinnabar. It is now announced that terms have been satisfactorily arranged and that the deal will be closed soon, when extensive operations will be carried on. The transaction is said to include not only the mines but the furnace, store and some 10 dwelling houses, the property of the company, which is composed chiefly of Portland persons. The present owners have expanded large sums developing these quicksilver mines, some $80,000 alone going into the furnace. The work was abandoned temporarily two years ago, the intention at that time being to construct a new and modern furnace.

Chambers to Rebuild Sawmill.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Cottage Grove, Or., June 23.—J. H. Chambers, whose sawmill was destroyed by fire a fortnight ago, is having plans for a new structure to replace the old one prepared, and will probably commence rebuilding during the ensuing week. The mill will be of considerably larger capacity than the plant destroyed. Mr. Chambers has large timber holdings directly tributary to the mill, and the two camps which were at work at the time of the fire have not ceased work. These logs have been placed in the river awaiting completion of the proposed new mill.

Students Are Drowned.

(United Press Landed Wire.) Winnipeg, Man., June 23.—While thousands of Winnipeg folk were enjoying coronation day at Winnipeg beach, the summer resort north of the city, two young men bathing were carried beyond their depth and drowned. Their names were James Howard and Blanchard Jacques, both students at St. Johns college.

DALLES HAS SET ASIDE FORTY-ACRES FOR PARK

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) The Dalles, Or., June 23.—By an overwhelming majority the voters of The Dalles decided at last Monday's election to set aside 40 acres belonging to the city for a public park. The new park site lies immediately south of the city on an eminence overlooking the city and surrounding country. It is an ideal location for a public park, and with very little improvements can be made a most delightful place. It is sparsely wooded with oak and pine trees, just sufficient to afford shade. It is near the city water works, and water can be forced upon the tract with a hydraulic ram at light expense.

The setting aside of this new park is the result of the efforts of the women's club, the Sorosis, which some three years ago began the agitation. At the recent election they had an initiative presented to the voters dedicating the land for park purposes and providing for its improvement and maintenance.

Mexican Brave Walking Saloon.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) The Dalles, Or., June 23.—For some time past the city police force has been greatly annoyed by drunken Indians, and it has been a puzzle where the Indians were getting liquor, as there is a very strict city ordinance covering the case and saloon proprietors of late have avoided selling any kind of intoxicants to the red men. Yesterday the fountain of supply was discovered in a Mexican employed in a cannery near the city. He would buy whiskey by the bottle, seldom buying twice in the same place on any one day, then peddle it out to the Indians, who were paying him a handsome profit. He was fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Pet Colt's Bite Is Severe.

Centralia, Wash., June 23.—Mrs. Mary Wake, an aged and ailing woman of this place, was bitten by a yearling colt yesterday afternoon while feeding the animal. Her arms and one shoulder were badly lacerated and she was thrown to the ground, where she was rescued by her grandson, Sam Irwin. The young horse was a great pet with the family and was considered exceptionally docile until it developed vicious tendencies. Long after the other women folk of the home had ceased to feed the colt from their hands Mrs. Wake felt secure in the affection she believed still existed between herself and the animal. Mrs. Wake, who is a sufferer from rheumatism, is severely injured.
