

CHARTER REVISION BOARD WRESTLES WITH PROBLEMS

Should the Mayor Have Veto Power, One Issue—Committee Named—Daly Declines to Accept Post.

Will Daly ended the speculation as to whether he will accept the appointment on the charter revision commission by saying this morning that he had decided not to serve. Mr. Daly said that other duties were monopolizing his time and he had been unable to make any arrangement to perform his part of the revision work. He expressed the hope that a man representative of the labor interests might be appointed in his stead. Mr. Daly is president of the State Federation of Labor and was recently elected councilman at large.

The number of city officials and their powers under the commission form of government was the subject of debate between members of the charter revision commission meeting last night at the city hall.

Commissioners Differ.
Should the mayor, a commissioner with a vote on all measures, be further vested with the veto power, was a question which William F. Woodward said should be answered negatively, and George B. Cellars said should be affirmatively treated. Mr. Woodward said too great power would be given one man; Mr. Cellars asserted that the veto power was exercised in a technical way, that the measure could be passed over veto.

After it was agreed that for the purpose of the revision commission's work, there should be a mayor and six councilmen elected as such, it was further agreed that four members of the commission voting affirmatively could pass any measure and that four members could then pass the measure on a second vote, over the mayor's veto.

The revision commission debated the number of city officials who in addition to the mayor and commissioners should be elected by direct vote of the people, agreeing finally that the city treasurer should be elected, and the city attorney appointed by the commission.

To Fix Responsibility.
Mr. Cellars argued that the city attorney would perhaps not represent all the people unless he was elected by the people. Mr. Woodward and other members of the revision commission ventured the reminder that the purpose of the commission plan was to fix responsibility for proper appointments and the administration of city business upon the board of commissioners.

Mr. Woodward suggested last night, and his suggestion was heartily concurred in by all present, that as fast as committees outline their portions of the new charter, they submit their work to the charter revision committee of the commission so that work on the charter proper may continuously proceed.

Chairman Bronough then announced the appointment of six committees as follows:

Finance and accounts, public property, etc.—Adolphe Wolfe, J. E. Werlein and Rufus C. Holman.

Water and fire—R. D. Inman, Gay Lombard, Adolphe Wolfe.

Streets and sewers, construction and improvement—George B. Cellars, S. Grutze and Will H. Daly.

Police and public safety—Dr. Benjamin F. Young, D. O. Lively and George B. Cellars.

Portland Largest City.
Public utilities—W. F. Woodward, O. W. Taylor and Henry E. Reed.

Health and charities—Dr. Andrew C. Smith, William F. Woodward and J. E. Werlein.

The first named in each instance is to act as chairman of his committee. Work on each subject will proceed in reference both to the present charter and the proposed commission plan.

A meeting will be held again next Wednesday evening.

S. Grutze, member of the revision commission, said last night that Portland will have the largest city in the United States to adopt the commission plan, if the charter finds favor with the voters at the next election.

Adolphe Wolfe asserted his belief that as much as possible all work should be done in committee of the whole, so that all might have voice in deciding upon important matters.

There were present at last night's meeting Judge Bronough, Rufus C. Holman appointed in place of H. W. Taylor, J. E. Werlein, Dr. Benjamin F. Young, S. Grutze, Adolphe Wolfe, W. F. Woodward, Henry E. Reed, O. W. Taylor and George B. Cellars. Dr. Andrew C. Smith came late.

HAVEMEYER'S SON DEFENDS FATHER

Horace Havemeyer, 25 years old, son of the late H. O. Havemeyer, who is defending his father's honor before the "Sugar Trust" investigation committee in Washington. Young Havemeyer, when first called to the stand, told the committee that it was his ambition to fight the American Sugar Refining company to a finish, and that he hopes to do so by obtaining control of the National Refining company of New Jersey. He started the committee when he bluntly said that his father controlled the American Sugar Refining company and organized the trust while owning very little stock in the corporation. He said his father carried out the whole thing on "nerve."

OLCOTT "GETS WISE" WHEN HIS COLLECTION OF HATS IS 2 FEWER

(Salem Bureau of the Journal.)
Salem, Or., June 28.—That prominent men are invariably subject to some minor hobbies is a principle of human psychology generally recognized. Secretary of State Ben W. Olcott's hobby is to keep on hand an ample supply of good hats. If, however, the ravages on his supplies being made by a mysterious little piece of sea-green masculine headgear are not checked he may have to give up his custom.

This little chapeau made its debut in official circles at the state house about four weeks ago on the head of R. A. Harris, state printing inspector. When it became unwarable to other officials, Olcott, as custodian of the state house, ordered it buried. That his order might be carried out and no hardship worked upon the printing inspector, Olcott ordered a good $4 hat given him from his own private collection. Three days later the hat came back—this time on the head of R. A. Watson, private secretary to the governor. The unsuspecting but chagrined secretary of state issued another check on his private hat supply and ordered the green hat burned.

He has searched the hat stands of Salem and feels sure there are no duplicates of the hated little object, and if it appears again radical action will be taken before the secretary digs down again into his depleted store of hats.

WEST TO NAME GOOD ROADS MEN

State-Wide Plan Is to Be Launched Soon, He Tells Rotary Club.

Governor Oswald West told the members of the Rotary club at lunch in the Hotel Portland yesterday that in a few days he will appoint a state-wide good roads committee representing and bringing together in harmony all forces working for a better highway system in Oregon.

As soon as the cooperation of Multnomah, Clackamas and Marion counties can be secured, he said, 100 to 150 convicts will be put to work on a model highway between Portland and Salem. "I think we should get to work on the road at once, not wait either for the legislature or the election for what we can do now," said the governor.

"I will provide quarters for the convicts. Many hobos and floaters can be added to the number. Such a road will stimulate good roads enthusiasm throughout the state."

Governor West explained to the Rotarians his prison parole system. He said it was a great success in spite of adverse reports, that where 26 men under guard escaped last year, 13 never being returned, only two have gotten away this year, and one of them, Jess Hall, recaptured. The club, with the largest attendance in its history, unanimously endorsed by rising vote Governor West's prison parole system.

Louis A. Colton, J. C. English, John T. O'Neill and J. L. Wright were elected delegates yesterday to the National Rotary convention which will be held in Portland, August 21, 22, 23. C. B. Merriam was elected national committeeman, Phil Grossmayer was chairman of the day yesterday.

"Gives Any Woman A New Skin"
Lillian Langley in The London Fashion. (Eng.)

"Within the last three months, I have answered over 1000 letters, from women asking one and the same question:—'What shall I do for my complexion?' and, although I dislike to write for publication, my knowledge of toilet articles will put any woman's mind at rest as to what she should use."

"After 25 years of study in the treatment of the face, neck and arms, I find that few women know how to really improve their appearance. The usual treatment of the beauty specialist is a dangerous thing, as it is too harsh. It seems to have done good, but Oh my! shortly hair starts to grow, and such a lot of wrinkles, and the skin soon becomes rough and red and is all dried up."

"The following simple home recipe will practically give any woman a new skin: Dissolve an original package of mayonaise in 8 ounces of witchhazel. Massage the face, arms and neck with this solution twice daily. This will remove all shine from the skin, giving it a natural, dainty color. It prevents the growth of hair and is absolutely harmless even to a baby's skin. All sorts of facial blemishes will soon disappear, and also the stray hairs."

out of court by Probate Judge Rives. It was the petition of Laura P. Alsip for one-sixth interest in the $10,000,000 estate left by the turf king, who claimed that her mother, who was Ophelia Henderson, married Baldwin at Chillicothe, Ohio. Miss Alsip claimed to be a daughter of the alleged marriage and a rightful heir to the estate. When positive proofs of the alleged marriage were not forthcoming Judge Rives decided the case in favor of the defendants.

HOT WATER

Hot Water in Itself Is Not a New Discovery, But Inexhaustible Hot Water Never Became Available Till the Invention of the Automatic Gas Water Heater

You know it's the sum total of little conveniences that look large on the home horizon—these are the niceties of living.

The Automatic Gas Water Heater furnishes steaming hot water at the turn of a faucet—hot water in the middle of the night, in case of sudden illness or emergency—hot water for the morning bath, no matter how many tubfuls the maid and laundress have previously drawn—hot water for a sizzling hot bath to break up a cold—hot water for quick shaving—hot water by the cupful or by the tubful—simply inexhaustible—and in the Summer time you get hot water without the discomfort of fire in the kitchen or furnace.

The Automatic Gas Water Heater turns on and lights the gas in its own burners when you open any faucet in the house—heats the water flowing through its copper coils—extinguishes its gas when you close the faucet.

In the average home the supply of hot water (oftener lukewarm water) is restricted by a limited tank supply.

Compare the shortcomings of your present water heater with the luxurious hot water service furnished by the Automatic Gas Water Heater. Order one today. See it "self-operating" at our showroom, Fifth and Yamhill streets.
