

Medieval Pomp Will Mark Investiture of Prince of Wales at Carnarvon Castle

Where First Prince Was Born Over Six Centuries Ago

Carnarvon, Wales, July 12.—A mid-pomp and splendor second only to the coronation of King George and Queen Mary, Prince Edward, the 17-year-old son of the British sovereigns, will be formally invested by his father tomorrow as Prince of Wales. Twenty-five thousand dollars have been donated by the British people to defray the cost of the investiture and other items and the king himself, together with the British government, has given almost twice as much more to insure the pageant's success. Thousands are now gathered in Carnarvon and conservative estimate places the number of guests at tomorrow's ceremonies at 150,000.

Carnarvon castle is today decorated with a lavish profusion that has brought hordes of admiring visitors to its historic walls. The old courtyard where many such ceremonies have been performed since Edward II was born at the castle 600 years ago is a riot of color swarming with visitors and brightly dressed functionaries. The ravages of time upon this ancient pile of masonry have been repaired, the colors of the royal household and the British empire are flying from all its towers and battlements.

Castle is Rejuvenated. Inside the old building no less startling changes have taken place. The dark and dingy rooms have been rejuvenated with countless coats of paint; the ancient hangings have been replaced by tapestries and curtains in exact replica of those removed and leaded windows that have let in the storms of Wales for centuries have been repaired. The court yard and roads leading up to Carnarvon castle are covered with a sea of wooden stands draped in gay bunting that effectually hides from view the green fields and pastures. These seats, it is estimated, will contain more than 12,000 spectators when the king and queen pass between them on their way to the royal quarters at the castle.

Half past two in the afternoon is the hour set for the investiture of the prince, but there will be plenty to be seen in the morning, for at about 10 a. m. the king and queen will leave the royal yacht at Holyhead and entrain for Griffith's Crossing station.

Prince Edward, the 17-year-old son of King George and Queen Mary, in the mediaeval costume he will wear tomorrow (July 13) when he is formally invested as the Prince of Wales by his father; and Carnarvon Castle, the scene of hundreds of like functions during the lifetime of the British empire.

The king and queen will then proceed to the Watergate, where two main processions will be formed—that of the Prince of Wales and that of the king and queen. From the Watergate the king and queen will enter the ancient courtyard of the castle itself and proceed in procession to the royal platform on two ancient chairs used for centuries past as seats for hundreds of England's sovereigns who have invested their heir apparent as Princes of Wales. The queen and king will take their seats and send for the prince, who will also arrive in procession.

Ceremony of Investiture. The ceremony of investiture chosen for the present Prince of Wales is about 600 years old. According to this ceremonial, the prince, upon arrival before his royal parents, will make low obeisance three times and, after the third time, when he has come near to the king, he will kneel down upon a rich pillow while his letters patent are read. Then the king, reading the words of investiture, will put the robes upon him, gird his sword and invest him with the rod and ring and set the cap and coronet of office upon his head. After this, the letters patent will be again read and delivered to the king who, in turn, will hand it to the prince, amid a fanfare of drums and trumpets. After this a religious ceremony will be conducted by the Bishop of Bangor and by a representative minister of the non-conformist churches. The king and queen will then proceed to Queen Elizabeth's gateway and there present the prince to the people. This will be the culminating point of the ceremony.

To Meconile Welsh Chieftains. Edward I was the first king of England to create his eldest son Prince of Wales, with the object of reconciling the Welsh chieftains to English domination, after the death of Llewellyn, the last native ruler of Wales. But it was not until the reign of Edward III that the latter raised the earldom of Cornwall to a dukedom, and bestowed it upon his son, Edward the Black Prince, with the provision that it should always be held by the heir apparent who was the son of the sovereign.

The dignity of Prince of Wales carries with it no revenue, nor even prerogatives, and its holder sits in the house of lords, and is enabled to take part in its deliberations, not as Prince of Wales, but as Duke of Cornwall. Prince Edward is a typical Anglo-Saxon lad. He was born June 23, 1894, and entered the Royal Naval college at the age of 13. With his brothers and sisters he has been brought up as much like other English children as possible. They have been subjected to gentle but firm discipline and trained in habits of industry and self-reliance. After the prince's presentation, the royal household, together with the long list of England's nobility, will attend a naval review in Carnarvon bay.

MORNING BLAZE DESTROYS PIONEER CENTRALIA HOTEL
(Special to The Journal.) Centralia, Wash., July 12.—The Washington hotel was completely destroyed by fire yesterday at 5 o'clock in the morning. The frame building was one of the landmarks of the city. Many of the 25 guests in the hotel had narrow escapes, most of them getting to the ground by sliding down ropes as the flames ate away the stairway. The building was owned by the George Washington estate and was insured. It was leased by D. Gilmore who had the contents only partially insured. The origin of the fire is unknown.

NEW FILMS SHOWN BY PICTURE HOUSES
Today marks the change of programs of the different picture houses of the Peoples' Amusement company. The Star theatre advertises its show as one of the best shows ever presented there, consisting of four films and the "Verdian trio" singing the famous "Anvil Chorus." The pictures are "The Jealous Husband" and "The Snare of Society," which shows a young husband and wife happy in each others' love until the young wife goes into society and loses money over the bridge table. All ends happily, however. "Saving the Standard," a spectacular film of much magnificence, and an education film entitled "Cuttle Fish," round out the show to a finish. At the Arcade, "Reckless Red," a strong cowboy tale of western life; "The Arctic Night," a story of the northlands; "Marvelous Horsemanship," showing the United States armies doing some daring riding, and Jean Wilson, the baritone. At the Oh Joy, a big western program consisting of "A Fight for Justice" and "In the West," two love dramas, "Love and Cheese," a Max comedy, and Mount Aetna in action.

A WARNING TO MANY
Some Interesting Facts Regarding Health Statistics.
Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys. The physician in nearly all cases of serious illness, makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their work properly, the other organs cannot be brought back to health and strength. When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. According to health statistics, Bright's disease, which is really an advanced form of kidney trouble, caused nearly ten thousand deaths in 1910, in the state of New York alone. Therefore, it behooves us to pay more attention to the health of these most important organs. An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. The mild and healing influence of this preparation is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures. If you feel that your kidneys require attention, and wish a sample bottle, write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper, and they will gladly forward it to you absolutely free, by mail. Swamp-Root is sold by every druggist in bottles of two sizes—50c and $1.00.

CHARTER REVISION COMMITTEE ASKS HELP OF PEOPLE

Suggestions Freely Invited—Life of Franchises to Be 25 Years—Guard Against Petition Frauds Taken.

The charter revision commission wants the assistance and advice of the public in the important work of making a new charter for the city of Portland. The commission invites anyone who has ideas he would like to have considered to submit them to the commission in writing. Such suggestions should be addressed to James Gill, secretary of the commission, care auditor's office, city hall.

Decision to invite the public to participate in this way in framing the new charter was made at the meeting of the commission last night, which was attended by all the members with the exception of Gay Lombard, who has not returned from the east. It was thought by members of the commission that while there are 15 of them who are giving their time and thought to the important work, still it is probable that many publicly interested citizens will have good suggestions that members of the commission might overlook, and the commission wants to have these suggestions before the charter is definitely prepared rather than have them presented when the time comes to submit the new charter to the people for approval.

Franchise Discussed. Franchises were discussed last night. It was decided that the life of franchises should not be over 25 years. It was also decided that where a company or corporation is given a second franchise on the same street on which it now holds a franchise, the new franchise must be for no longer than the old one. This is considered to be a protection of the people's interest. The commission will endeavor to frame the provisions governing franchises to protect the interests of the people and the corporations without favor.

Guard Against Fraud. In the connection of the civil service commission was discussed some of the members favoring its retention and others favoring abolishing it. Decision was reached that if the civil service commission was retained it would serve merely in an advisory capacity. The members of the city commission will have full authority over city employees, but any vacancy caused by the discharge of an employee will be filled from the list of eligibles, according to the records of the civil service commission.

KING GIVES AMERICAN CLAIMANTS $935,000
(United Press Leased Wire.) London, July 12.—American claimants were awarded $935,000 in the Alsop claim as the result of King George's decision, announced here today in the Times. The Alsop claim, amounting to $1,500,000, came up as a result of money advanced to the government of Bolivia in 1874. Chile assumed the obligation when she came into possession of Araca. The case was submitted to King Edward for arbitration and after his death to his successor, King George.

Not Talkt About

STRANGE it is, that not one of my "green sod" purchasers will now admit they took a chance. They all say they knew they would get the car service, the asphalt streets and the other improvements, as promised.

However, most of these promises have already been kept. Altho not definitely promised, an Entrance, with masonry pillars was talkt about in a general way. Later this feature, being stereotyped, was therefore discarded; and as a result a splendid Viaduct, 1400 feet long, is now being constructed!

One feature we did not even talk about. It was the founding in "Eastmoreland," of REED COLLEGE, a University-to-be with thirty-four magnificent structures.

And the planning of REED COLLEGE PLACE—the finest and only real Boulevard in Portland—was not as much as hinted at!

Thus in the past it has been my privilege to be able to offer "greater value for less money"—both at the start and in the long run—and I plan to continue this, until further notice.

I repeat, "Watch Eastmoreland Now." First and graduated Prices begin at $750. F. N. Clark—representing Ladd Estate Company (Owners), 818-823 Spalding Bldg., Portland, Oregon.
