The Old Horse. The old, old horse fell slowly to the ground, no plunging drop, no sudden slip and fall. No will attempt to stop its sliding feet. But just a patient sinking, that was all.

An old, old horse—a bony, toll-worn that had no soul, that had no hopeful dreams. That knew when the light of life had ceased. To lure it on with ever fickle gleams. A common brute—yet one day it had played Across the pasture lands with grace— Full stride. Or some proud master's word it had obeyed. While nervous ripples shook its glossy hide.

Too fine a head it had for us to think That it had always plodded alley ways And that on curses with its food and drink And never heard a word of cheer or praise. And even brutal blows and starving Haz years Had failed to break the curving of its neck. Or rob the thoroughbred poise of its life. Life had not yet made of it all a wreck. But now it fell all slowly to the street And never once attempted more to rise. Its heart gave up in one last broken beat. Death's mercy drew the veil upon its eyes.

Dead in the harness—and the heedless crowd Went on; the city's noise discordant. But nevermore should it hear curses loud Or flinch beneath repeated cutting. 'Twas nothing much—a horse died; that was all. A fine horse, worked down to bone and skin— Yet sometimes men as well, worn out. With no more living spirit left within.

They, too, fall in the harness; and we too, Unheeding through the hurried, crowded ways; 'Tis but one less in all the tolling mass That keeps the world a-whirl through our days.

And pity is so brief—and comes so late! There is so much that lures us on ahead. We have no time to sense the other's Dead in the harness; just another dead.—Chicago Post.

Water Front Character Dead. (United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, July 21.—W. T. Alexander, 90, waterfront character, was found dead today on a pile of lumber. It is believed he fell from the second story of an old building while walking in his sleep.

OLD FASHIONED MOTHERS

Written for The Journal by Darra More. "THE country is suffering today for the lack of good, old-fashioned mothers at home," writes a man who is delving deep into social problems. It is a curious fact that we invest all the hopes of our youth and those of our father's and mother's youth in an aura of heavenly harmony and perfection. And, thus it is that the old-fashioned mother is glorified in our fancy and endowed with about all the wisdom of the law and the prophets.

We talk of the mother-who-has-passed in the same way that we talk of a glorious sunset, or a beautiful flower and the fresh, pure air from the meadows and gardens full of spice, pinks, and daisies. And, it is beautiful to contemplate, but—there really was never such a person. The old-fashioned mother is a fairy tale when painted in such hues.

When we get down to brass tacks, the old-fashioned mother was a slave, a drudge and an incompetent. She believed that Martin Luther had in mind when he said, "If a woman becomes weary or at last dead from bearing, that matters not; let her only die from bearing, she is there to do it." The real old-fashioned mother "washed dishes, kept house and cared for the children," and was a monument of patient, unrecognized self-sacrifice, but—her methods were the standard of lowest efficiency. She knew little or nothing of sanitation or organization. She neglected her own health and her own mind. Thus, crippling herself for the carrying out of that splendid truth, "It is not so much what you do for your children, or teach them that counts as it is what you are."

The old-fashioned mother is to be revered. Here was a beautiful life when viewed from the standpoint of one who gives all for nothing. Here was a splendid heart, a great courage and a fine spirit. She did the best she could under the conditions, and God bless every woman who can lay claim to so great a virtue.

At the same time, let us give the modern mother her due. She is largely misunderstood. She may not "wash dishes, keep house and care for her children" with her own hands, but she superintends those household necessities in such a way that she has time to take care of her health, broaden her views and provide best for her children's future. She is neither "an over-worked drudge nor a mindless parast." She is the best mother we ever had, the most respected, the most admired and the wisest. She is the only mother equipped to meet the requirements of the day.

DIVORCED, WEALTHY MAN DIES OF A BROKEN HEART

(United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, July 21.—A word of a broken heart," is the verdict here today of friends of L. A. McIntosh, one of the richest men in northern California, who passed away in a hospital here last night of what the physicians declared was pneumonia.

McIntosh's friends say, practically grieved to death as the result of having been divorced from his wife. He was a resident of Chico, California, and had risen from a poor boy to the ownership of fabulously rich mines, his income from which was close to $100,000 a month.

Since his family troubles culminated in the divorce courts, McIntosh has gone steadily down the hill in health. He arrived here Monday, accompanied by a physician and died last night.

CALIFORNIA MEN DYING FASTER THAN THE WOMEN

(United Press Leased Wire.) Sacramento, Cal., July 21.—Five men in California die every minute, according to the report of the state board of health. In 1910, 32,298 persons died.

Housekeepers and Short Weight.

From the Milwaukee Wisconsin. James Walsh, the New York commissioner of weights and measures, gives to the women of the metropolis this advice: "Don't phone your butcher. 'How can you tell what you are getting,' he asks, 'if you are not there to see it measured and weighed?'"

"Even when a woman goes to the shop and watches, however, she must be keen to escape fraud. 'Don't trust a scale,' says Commissioner Walsh, 'that has the dial in front. It is so easy to add two or three ounces by just a slight touch of the finger behind it. I understand that in some butcher shops the foreman instruct the clerks to make up their weekly salaries by these finger touches.' Did anybody ever hear of chicken stinkers? Commissioner Walsh explains. They weigh half a pound, and the butcher deftly slips one in each chicken as he weighs it. Then he kindly offers to dress the chicken, and of course when it is sent home it can weigh anything and no one will be the wiser.

Every housekeeper, of course, ought to be equipped with reliable measures and scales at home, and then submit her purchases to tests which will enable her to judge if she is being fairly dealt with. This is not so easy as it might seem. Commissioner Walsh says his department has tested the family scales now on the market and was unable to find a make that it could recommend. Of course the more flimsy forms of cheating are not generally practiced. There are honest retailers as well as honest purchasers. Certainly it pays for buyers to take precautions which will enable them to distinguish between dealers who are robbers and those who are not. As for ordering by telephone it cannot be avoided always, but when it is resorted to the order should go only to dealers who have been tried on the score of honesty and found reliable.

Freckles

Who Likes to Be Called Freckle Face? Do You? There wouldn't be many freckles at all if people would only use Kintho right away. That's the way to get rid of them easily. If people are calling you Freckle-Face, get a two-ounce package right away at Woodard, Clarke & Co., or wherever toilet goods are sold, and fool them. Freckles certainly don't add to any one's beauty, and no one need tolerate them. Kintho is guaranteed to remove even the worst freckles, or money back.

"Use Kintho Soap too. It will not only help give the freckles a push, but it is delightful for toilet use."

Artistic Excellence

Is Exemplified in the Musical Qualities of the

KRAKAUER PIANO

This superb instrument, known to the public for more than 35 years, can justly be classed with the most artistic pianos manufactured—except the Mason & Hamlin, which is acknowledged by the greatest living authorities to be above and beyond every other instrument in the artistic world.

The rich tone of the Krakauer appeals strongly to the cultured and sensitive musical ear. It is decidedly a piano for the person wishing an instrument that will make MUSIC rather than noise. It has great depth, and volume enough to meet every demand.

The personality of Krakauer Pianos is the prime cause of their great popularity. In no instance have we found a piano that by its own virtues made friends more rapidly among musical people than the Krakauer.

They are wonderful pianos and are sold at a fair, reasonable price—as low as is consistent with high-class workmanship.

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice. No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, confidential, and always helpful.
