Freckles

Freckle-Face! Freckle-Face! Freckle-Face! FRECKLE-FACE! How Do You Like It?

If you have freckles you need Kinthol! That's as sure as freckles! Hot summer winds and sunshine bring them out in all their hideousness, and Kinthol is ready for you at Woodward, Clarke & Co.'s or wherever toilet articles are sold. A two-ounce package of Kinthol is enough for most light cases, but the most obstinate freckles are easily and quickly removed, under a guarantee of money back if it fails.

"Use Kinthol Soap, too. It will not only help give the freckles a push, but it is delightful for toilet use."

AN OLD COVE'S LETTER

Written for The Journal by Darrin More.

"DEAR MISS MORE: I am a man of 87 years. I have been married twice. I am now a widower. Some time ago there came to my office a young girl. She is a dear, sweet, serious-minded girl, and very pretty. I have taken her out several times and have given her presents. She is a working girl, but honest. She seems to appreciate my interest in her.

But, now, Miss More, I have fallen in love with her, and I want your advice. She is quite willing to become my wife. I make a very comfortable living and have money in the bank. I would not hesitate, except that she is only 17. Would it be foolish for me to marry? A PERPLEXED ONE.

There is only one answer to your question, my friend, and that is try it. Occasionally such a marriage between youth and age is successful. It mostly depends upon you. From what you write I believe that you would make a good protector for a pretty young girl. But there are a few things that you must remember. Youth is youth. If you marry this girl you must not expect her to settle down to the prosaic life of a housewife. She will want to go to the city and to jump. She will want lots of company and lots of supper parties and lots of moonshine and pearls. If she has had to work for her living all her life she will want those gay pleasures just that much more, and she will go at break-neck speed. You must be prepared to follow the pace that she sets. Or else—well, we will not go too far. When you come home from the office, ready to slip into cozy slippers, a smoking jacket and a good book—you will be hurried into stiff, starched clothes and whirled away to the theatre or to a dance, or to an evening at bridge, or some other night revel. Your house will always be full of strangers, who will feast and frisk at your expense, only to laugh behind your back—for that is the sauce piquante of the old man with the young wife.

But the little girl loves you, you say, and she will do anything in the world for you. Yes, that is what the sweet young things always tell the cross, crabbed old cove. But maybe she does love you—and if that's the case you must make even more sacrifices of comfort. Because, you see, your heart is like that rose from which your other sweethearts have picked all the leaves, and now only thorns remain. To make up for the fresh, sweet love that will be given you, and which you cannot return in kind, you must make many sacrifices.

Last of all you must endure much that will hurt your pride and wound your vanity. When the little girl's eyes linger lovingly on a younger face than yours, and her hand remains overlong in the clasp of another man's hand, you must bear all with good grace. To be attended by youth and beauty, it is decreed that old men must pay high prices. He was a man of experience who said, "at the age of 60, to marry a beautiful girl of 18 is to imitate those ignorant people who buy books to be read by their friends."

If you are willing to be a philanthropist and somewhat of a martyr, go ahead. If not, do not marry the girl.
