

HENRY C. BEATTIE WILL BE PUT ON STAND ON MONDAY

Jury Will Hear Story of Bearded Highwayman From Lips of Richmond Youth on Trial for Murder of His Wife.

(By the International News Service.) Chesterfield, Va., Sept. 2.—One way alone—it became apparent today—remains to save young Henry Clay Beattie Jr. from the electric chair. That is his own testimony.

Perhaps (though it looks extremely doubtful) he may convince at least one juror that a bearded highwayman, as he has contended all along, killed his wife while shooting at him when both were in his automobile. Then he may get a disagreement of the jury.

This evening after a lot of character witnesses had been summoned to tell how happily the rich young man and his bride lived together and after other witnesses had told how perhaps it was Beattie who was observed near the scene of the crime, but another man, the defense contended its evidence except for Henry Clay Beattie Jr. himself.

Stake All on One Theory. Day after day it has been announced that next day he was to take the stand and make a gamble for his life. Never has there been any certainty of this. Now it is absolutely assured that with the beginning of Monday's session, although it is a legal holiday, the boy really will stake everything on the final throw.

Today was devoted chiefly to "stalling" by his lawyers, delaying the case in every possible manner so that Henry Beattie might get the advantage of a Sunday before the final ordeal. They won this little point, but only at the cost of giving the state a full day in which to prepare cross examination of the defendant.

Sees on Stand Monday. The young son of the rich department store owner will go on the stand at 10 o'clock Monday. His direct examination will last about two hours. Then his cross examination will consume at least four hours and may go well into the night—for the court has decided to hold night sessions hereafter in order to wind up the case.

General opinion goes but two ways— if Beattie can repeat his story about a bearded highwayman attacking him and clinging to it, he may gain an acquittal at the hands of the jury. If he cannot and makes the least little break under the cross fire of the state's attorney, Louis W. Edenberg, he will be sent swiftly to his death. There are no half way measures in this state. The best possible way a jury disagreement is extremely improbable.

Chum Is Poor Witness. The adherents of the defense were by no means encouraged by the day's proceedings. They were more or less interesting. They were more or less interesting. They were more or less interesting. They were more or less interesting.

Charles Kastelberg, a wealthy resident of Richmond, was summoned, much against his will, to show that he probably was the man who was seen with a halted motor car and a female companion on the Midlothian turnpike on the night of the murder. But neither witness seemed to sway the jurors very much one way or another. Nor did a lot of testimony given by who appeared on the stand to give Beattie and his wife lived happily together on the night of the murder. But neither witness seemed to sway the jurors very much one way or another. Nor did a lot of testimony given by who appeared on the stand to give Beattie and his wife lived happily together on the night of the murder.

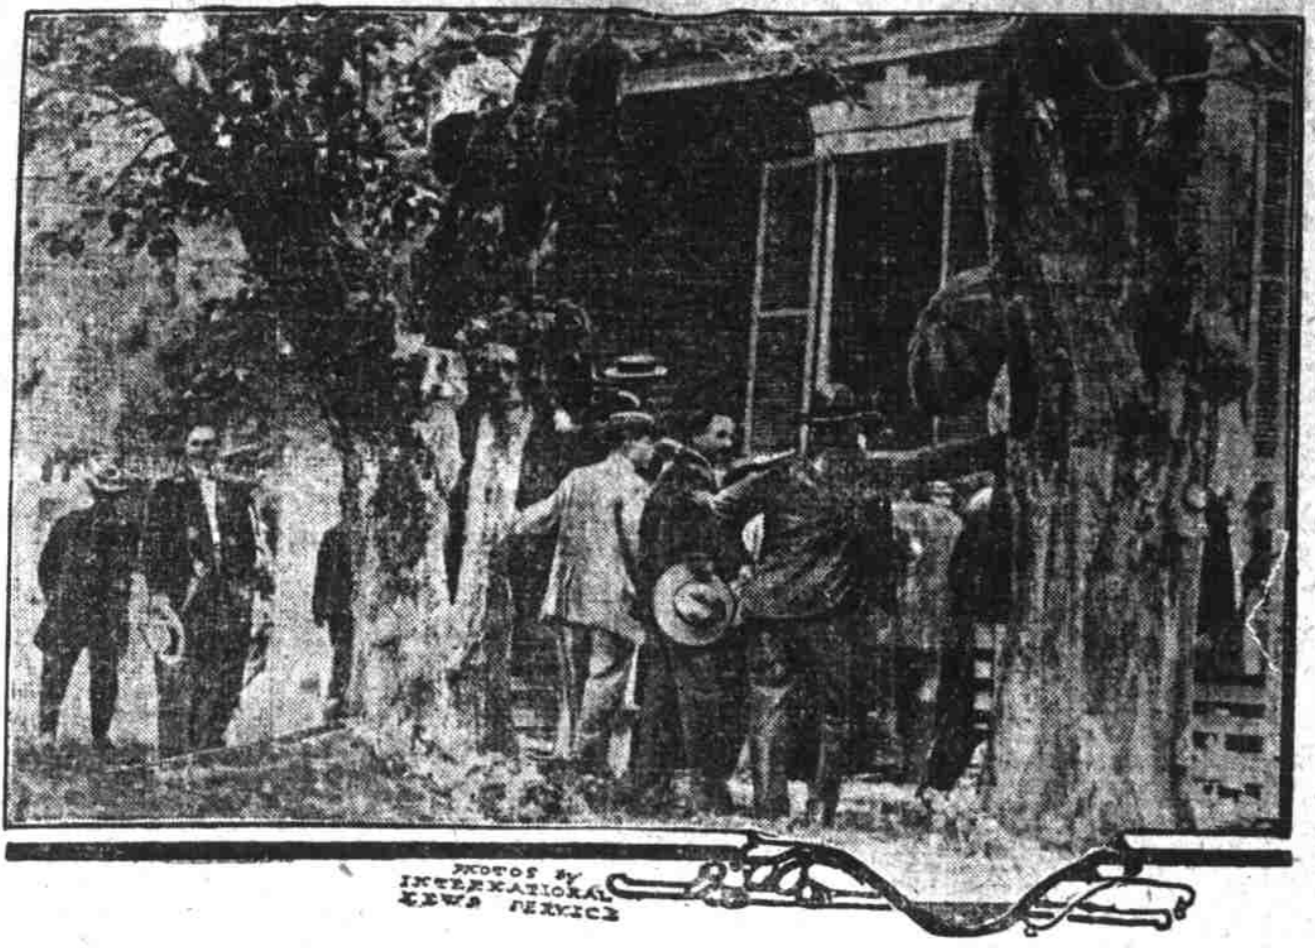

Monday will be the big day of the trial, undoubtedly, when the wealthy boy tries to save himself. He will probably occupy the stand all day Monday and the state on Tuesday will present the Binford girl in rebuttal, as its last star witness.

BEULAH BINFORD VERY ANXIOUS TO GO ON, BUT LAWYERS ARE NOT WILL GO TO SENATE FROM MISSISSIPPI

Governor James K. Vardaman of Mississippi, who has been chosen United States senator in the election just concluded, the Democratic primary, in which he outdistanced the combined vote of his two rivals at the polls. Vardaman is noted for his pronounced views on the negro question.

DAILY SCENE IN FRONT OF THE CHESTERFIELD COURTHOUSE

Even the trees about the picturesque old building are used by the crowd anxious to get a glimpse at the Beattie murder trial.

50 "BOOKIES" FLEE HAWTHORNE TRACK

One Hundred and Thirty Deputies Keep Big Course Clear of Gamblers.

Hawthorne Race Track, Ill. Sept. 2.—County Sheriff Zimmer, Chief Deputy Peters and 130 deputies came to the Hawthorne track this afternoon to watch for gamblers. Arrangements had been made for the speedy conveyance of prisoners to Oak Park and hearing in the justice courts of that place. Justices Kennell and McKee had consented to sit in the afternoon to hear such cases as might be taken before them.

Several automobiles were ordered to be waiting at the track for the conveyance of the prisoners to Oak Park. Sheriff Zimmer said that he was not going to allow any gambling at any of the three days' races if a large posse of deputies could prevent it.

Fifty bookmakers with their clerks, who had made preparations to receive money from the race track patrons, folded their effects and disappeared when the deputies appeared.

The carnival of racing, which was held under the auspices of the Chicago Business Agents' association proved very tame affair without the betting feature.

cedings of the Beattie trial, Harry M. Smith, chief counsel for Beattie, demanded of Special Prosecutor Wendenburg: "Why don't you call Beulah Binford? You have had her in jail for a month; you have summoned her as a witness; why don't you produce her?"

"Do you want me to call her?" came back Wendenburg. "I would like to have seen you call her in your direct case," returned Smith, evasively.

It was quite evident that neither lawyer was anxious to place the uncertain, irresponsible little girl-woman before the jury, but in Henrico county jail the girl herself longs to get to the courthouse where her lover is making his fight for life.

Wants to Testify. "Oh, they are afraid to call me," she declared tonight. "They know I would tell the truth. Maybe they think the truth would be too favorable to Henry and that is the reason they disappoint those crowds out at Chesterfield Court House who are waiting to see me on the stand. But I have told the truth from the beginning and I'll tell it to the end."

"I don't believe Henry Beattie is guilty of murder; he was too kind hearted and gentle. Why, he even used to scold me for whipping my little dog Paul Beattie is lying. I know it, because he lied about the message Harry gave him for me. He never told me that Henry would kill me if I did not keep my mouth shut."

Given a Bad Name. Evidently the girl is still staunch in her belief in the man who has been her protector for four years. But over in Chesterfield Courthouse one of the two important witnesses called by the defense today devoted hours to an attempt to prove that Beattie cared nothing for her. She was described as "a woman of the town," and was even more coarsely characterized by "Billy" Sampson, chum of the accused man, who with Henry and Beulah and another girl named Henrietta Pittman, caroused in Norfolk when Henry renewed his relations with the girl after his marriage.

On cross examination, W. H. Thompson was badly muddled by Wendenburg. His story left a bad taste in the mouth of the entire courtroom. Earlier in the day the defense called Charles H. Kastelberg, a wealthy merchant of Richmond. Kastelberg admitted that on the night of the murder he had been joy-riding on the Midlothian turnpike, where the crime was committed, with a woman he had "picked up" in Richmond and whom he had not seen since or before. He did not even know her name.

Claim Made by Defense. The defense will undoubtedly contend that it was Kastelberg's car which was standing by the road and which was seen by the boy witnesses for the prosecution. They almost positively identified as Beattie's car the machine which stood at the scene of the crime but a few minutes before the murder.

LABOR UNIONS TO HOLD BIG PICNIC

All-Day Outing to Be Enjoyed at Council Crest Tomorrow.

Instead of the usual Labor Day parade of uniformed members of the various union labor organizations, union labor in Portland will spend tomorrow at Council Crest in an all day picnic and outing. Long before noon the Crest will be alive with union men and their families. The exercises will commence at noon with a midday band concert by a picked band of union musicians.

Following the concert the vast crowd will be served with old fashioned barbecued beef and a variety of other edibles which will be prepared on the ground under the supervision of a committee.

The committee of arrangements has prepared a program of races and other athletic contests, some of which will be intensely funny, which will take up practically the entire afternoon. In the evening there will be dancing.

It is expected that the Council Crest barbecue and program of exercises will bring together the largest crowd of union men ever assembled in Portland.

WATER USERS GET A YEAR OF GRACE

Government Has to Concede Birch and McKay Creeks Measuring Time.

(Special to The Journal.) Pendleton, Or., Sept. 2.—A big victory was won by the water users on Birch and McKay creeks and the lower Umatilla river, when Water Commissioner George T. Cochran allowed the motion for continuing the 300 or more cases against the government had instituted against them and named the second Monday in May as the date for the setting of the trials.

Consideration of the motion took nearly the entire day. Attorney Oliver P. Morton for the government contesting the move bitterly. Colonel J. H. Riley introduced the motion and made the opening argument and was followed by Attorneys Fee, Lowell and Drowley for the water users. "They declared their clients did not believe two and one half acre feet to the acre sufficient for irrigation purposes as maintained by the government, but would be unable to prove their claim in an early trial because they have not been given sufficient time to measure water they have been accustomed to use."

PORTLAND HAS CHANCE TO BUILD GREAT CITY

Practical benefits from the development of a city plan were related by Delbert J. Hafl, president of the Kansas City, Mo., park board, before leaving yesterday for his home after a two days' visit in Portland the guest of Dr. J. R. Wetherbee, ex-chairman of the Portland park commission.

These are the words of our latest report," said Mr. Hafl. "I think it may serve as an object lesson to Portland, for while we have been systematically building our city 20 years and have no longer any argument as to the value thereof, you in Portland are just beginning. You have an great a natural opportunity for building a city practically beautiful and big enough for all comers, as I know of."

WATER TURNED INTO BULL RUN CONDUIT NO. 2 JUST FINISHED

Chief Engineer Clarke of the water department, reported last evening that at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the water turned in the new Bull Run pipe line No. 2 had filled the pipe for a distance of four miles from the headgate and that no mishap of any nature had occurred. The water is being turned in very slowly. It is expected to have the line filled and cleaned out so the water may be turned into the Mount Tabor reservoir by next Tuesday.

Tantalum dental instruments, made in Germany, are said to be harder than steel and to withstand acids and high temperatures better.

SEATTLE SMILES AND HOPES, MAYBE

Threatened Trouble Between Grainmen and Longshoremen at Portland Pleases.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 2.—The threatened strike at Portland between grain exporters and longshoremen is being watched with intense interest by shippers on Puget sound. Some selfishly inclined will not regret it if there is trouble on the Columbia river, as they anticipate that it will drive a large amount of grain tonnage to Seattle, Tacoma and possibly Everett. The Great Northern has extensive grain docks at Everett and, although but one cargo of wheat has been shipped from that port, the Hill road is prepared, should there be trouble on the Columbia, to divert its shipping circles here there is strong expectation that the coming grain season will be one of the best in recent years and with the prospects of trouble at Portland indications are that many ships will come here. All grain charters contain Puget sound-Portland options, so that exporters are not tied up with trouble at either port.

While longshoremen claim to have organized strongly at Tacoma, efforts to do so in Seattle will meet strong opposition. Since the summer of 1907, when stevedores participated in a long and bitter strike here, the Seattle union has been practically disrupted. While the men still maintain an organization, it has remained quiet and shippers and stevedores will not treat with it, hiring all men through an organization of the employers. An open shop will be maintained here, if employers can hold their nerve. Employers can hold out organized and with a large floating population, it's not likely the men will seek trouble here.

NEGRO WIFE MURDERER CAUGHT AT ELLENSBURG

(Special to The Journal.) Ellensburg, Wash., Sept. 2.—William Thomas, the negro station porter, who shot his wife at the corner of Pacific and Pine streets in Spokane, last evening, was arrested here this afternoon by the city police and fined $25 for carrying concealed weapons. A revolver, loaded, was found on him and a description of the Spokane chief of police, who gave orders to hold him.

This evening Thomas confessed the shooting to the sheriff. He said that he quarreled with his wife three weeks ago and struck her when she cursed him. She left him and went to the Burgess place, where Burgess and his wife denied Thomas permission to see her. Yesterday Thomas saw the woman and begged her to return with him. She refused and he drew his revolver. "There were two loads in the gun," said Thomas tonight, "and when she refused to come home I snapped the empty chambers at her. She was frightened and promised to return with me and Burgess came out to the porch with a gun in his hand. He told me to drop my gun and my wife started to run. When she was about 20 feet away I fired twice, but she did not fall and I did not believe that I hit her. I walked away. As I crossed the tracks a train was leaving, so I got out of town."

FIGHTING GALBREATHS BOTH PUT UNDER BONDS

(Special to The Journal.) Hillsboro, Or., Sept. 2.—With honors even, both parties to the Tualatin fence war are resting and the whole matter is in the circuit court. Following the peppering with bird shot of workmen removing from the road the fence in front of the Galbreath property, Samuel Galbreath was arrested and brought to Hillsboro, where he was placed under $1000 bonds to keep the peace. During his absence and before papers in an injunction suit commenced by Mrs. Galbreath could be served, the workmen employed by the county removed the fence, but it was rebuilt Thursday night and will remain until the injunction is dissolved.

Mrs. Galbreath was arrested Friday in Portland by Sheriff Hancock on a complaint charging assault with a dangerous weapon. She waived a hearing and was released on bonds of $250, signed by C. B. Buchanan of Cornelius. Notwithstanding the road has been used as a highway for more than 40 years papers in the injunction suit state that the county is unlawfully using it and that it has never been dedicated.

An unexpected phase of the situation developed this week when a petition was presented asking that the new bridge be built adjacent to that of the Oregon Electric, a mile away, and that the road be moved. As the old bridge adjoining the Galbreath place is to be torn down, the Galbreaths might gain ownership to the land, but he left in a pocket.

Court Opens Bay City Playhouse. (United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, Sept. 2.—John Cort, the New York theatrical magnate, opened his new playhouse here tonight with an elaborate production of "Baby Mine." The structure, the ninety-seventh theatre operated by Cort and represents an investment of $1,000,000. It has a seating capacity of 2000.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 2.—Upon a wireless message received this afternoon, the cruising launch Tazlina, owned by Littleton & McCully of Seattle, was apprehended and taken into custody here by the sheriff of Jefferson county, and its occupants, six young men from the University of Washington, held on a charge of stealing a rowboat from the summer home of Robert Moran at New Hall, Orcas island. Having no dingy aboard, wishing to get ashore and seeing one of Moran's boats anchored in a slough, upon a dare one of the party swam to it and brought it out to the launch. Upon leaving the island, they either forgot to return the boat or thought it would not be missed.

Mr. Moran is a millionaire and formerly was president of the Moran company, shipbuilders.

190 Mile Trip After Indian. (Special to The Journal.) White Star, Okla., Sept. 2.—D. W. Bunnell of Goldendale passed through town today headed for the Indian race-track, 55 miles northwest, in search for Jim Dave, who is wanted as a witness in condemnation proceedings brought by the Northwestern Electric company against the Emma Dave land at Goldendale for a right-of-way to enable the company to carry material and supplies for its dam site above the land. By court decisions the Northwestern has been shut off from crossing the land save over a strip for its pipeline, which is not feasible for a freight road. If Bunnell finds the Indian at the track and takes him back to Goldendale he will have traveled about 190 miles.

THE MILLIONS WHO DON'T HAVE CORNS

Do you know that millions of people never suffer from corns? Just as soon as they feel one they attach a little Blue-jay plaster. There's no pain after that, no inconvenience. One simply forgets the corn.

In that plaster lies a bit of soft wax—the wonderful B & B wax. That gently loosens the corn, and in two days it comes out. No soreness, no feeling of any sort. Why pare a corn at the risk of blood poisoning? Why nurse and protect it? Millions of people remove them at once. They never suffer at all. Why do you?

In the picture is the soft B & B wax. It loosens the corn. B protects the corn, stopping the pain at once. C wraps around the toe. It is narrowed to be comfortable. D is rubber adhesive to fasten the plaster on.
