IN SOCIETY

Society at Newport will display itself this week at the annual horse show which begins today, lasting through till Wednesday. The show this year will be ahead of anything of the kind ever attempted at Newport. The entries show that practically all the best show horses now in the country will be on hand, while the human exhibits, which after all are the principal things at a horse show, will be above the average. Colonel John Jacob Astor and his bride-to-be and Miss Mildred Sherman with her own particular lord will be the most observed on the human side of the show. Followers of the Portland horse shows have been rather full of feet that interesting event would not be developed this year, but it has been decided to hold one next month although the date has not yet been set.

Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Morrison with their two younger children, returned Wednesday from a delightful stay on the coast. They have as their guests at present their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sharp. Miss have come from their ranch. Mrs. Dorothy Morrison is visiting friends in Tacoma and Miss Jean is still at Bremerton navy yard.

Orders have come for the sailing of the Second Infantry from San Francisco for Honolulu tomorrow. Portland friends will so miss a visit from Mrs. Frederick A. Barker (Miss Ruth Honeyman) whose husband, Lieutenant Barker, is with the regiment. His battalion will be stationed at Fort Shasta, Honolulu.

Miss Winifred London, now of Vancouver, B. C., is the guest of Mrs. R. M. Griswold at Bremerton navy yards.

Dr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Nichols are expecting to return from Hood River in a few weeks and spend the winter in Portland. Dr. Nichols is improved from his summer stay in Hood River.

Mrs. Thomas Connell and Miss Hannah Connell returned last week from Newport, where they went some time ago in company with Mrs. J. C. Olds and Miss Edith Olds. Mrs. Olds and her daughter returned ahead of the Connells, who took their car and motored home.

Mrs. Anna Ritchie and Miss Barbara Ritchie, sister and aunt of Mrs. Jessie M. Honeyman, are expected home this week from a visit at Iwaco, with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Honeyman. Mrs. Ritchie and Miss Ritchie came over from Scotland a year ago to make their home in the northwest. They have been spending the summer with Mrs. Honeyman, but will return the last of this month to Seattle to be with another sister and niece, Mrs. A. R. Cunningham.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clair Monteth returned yesterday from Seattle, where they were guests at the Washington. Mrs. Monteth visited friends in the sound city while Mr. Monteth filled a concert engagement in eastern Washington.

Miss Lora Hendershott left Walla Walla Friday evening after a visit in the homes of H. H. Turner and ex-Governor Miles C. Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Moody arrived in San Diego the last of August for a stay of several weeks in southern California. They made the trip on the steamer Governor.

Mr. and Mrs. Manson F. Backus of Seattle returned to their home Wednesday from a motor trip of several days in British Columbia. They were accompanied by Miss Lorene Salls of Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Miller reached Tacoma last evening for a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Morris Chelm.

Miss Ethel Riggdon, a high school teacher of Salem, is the guest of Portland friends.

Mrs. Nellie Alexander and her daughter, Miss Olive, have been Mrs. Alexander's mother in Oregon City.

Fads and Fashions.
New York, Sept. 4.—The late summer has brought yellow into decided prominence abroad, tones of lemon, straw and various brownish and greenish yellow shadings having been exceedingly modish in combination with white.

The most beautiful double faced materials seen so far are certain silk serges of pronounced diagonal cord and wonderful lustre, softness and richness, having body without bulk. These silks are in decided yet perfectly harmonized color contrasts. A beautiful deep taupe, for example, may have for backing just the right tone of violet or green or blue. A real brown shows a reverse side of exquisite purple or dull, soft orange. A very deep blue is combined with rich fuchsia, red or malachite green. Iron gray consorts with the deep yellow, which has been a summer fad in Paris. Black is fad with any and all of the soft yet glowing fashionable colors.

One is inclined to put confidence in the success of the grays this season. Exquisite shadings of this color are to be found among the loveliest of the new materials which cannot fail to appeal to the taste of the fastidious.

Purple seems to be extremely popular and is likely to be done to death on that account. Much of the early millinery and many of the advance model frocks and accessories sound this purple note, and while one must admit its effectiveness, the woman who cannot afford to buy early in the season and throw aside later will do well to be cautious and to avoid the lure of the purple.

The newest suits from abroad show a jacket averaging from 28 to 30 inches in length. These are to be the most notable in early fall designs. They are shown in varying styles, some being straight out from the shoulder to the hips, while others are made to give the short waisted effect. The short waisted style is principally used on the dressier suits, while the straight cut is used on the practical ones.

A good deal of attention is paid the collars, revers and cuffs, which are frequently of satin or silk, while some are of linen in a contrasting shade. Plain black satin remains in favor for trimming.

While the sailor collar is not so prominent as it was, it has not been entirely eliminated. Many pointed collars are shown, and the fall models will probably show the large round collars with hood effects at the back. The skirts adhere to the present fashion of straight lines, close fitting about the hips, but show a little more width at the hem.

HER PRIDE IS HURT

Written for The Journal by Darra More. RECEIVED just the nicest sort of letter from a little girl the other day. Maybe she isn't little, but she is very, very young, and she thinks she is very, very much in love. But there is an awful bitterness in her youthful love. The young person for whom she cherishes this wild passion prefers the redheaded girl on the next corner. Shocking bad taste, of course. And the little girl is thinking of self-destruction. Just think of it! She wants to leave this beautiful world just because the first youth that ever made her heart flutter prefers the red-headed girl on the corner.

I know, little girl, it is all very real to you now. Your poor little heart is all broken and bruised and your eyes are red from weeping, and little black circles are developing under those tears. And it is all because your love has been trampled upon by a brood of boys with a fancy for red hair. Really, though, there isn't a thing in the world the matter with your heart. It is quite sound. And your love is all intact. You won't believe me now, but your pride is hurt. That is all. And hurt pride is very soon mended. Of course it is a little disconcerting to have that redheaded hussy on the next corner steal your very best beau. All admit that. Not because he was valuable, because he wasn't, but just because the other girls and boys in the neighborhood are giggling about it. It won't be long until you will be wondering how you ever stood that blundering boy sitting in your very best plush chairs. You'll feel sorry for that redheaded girl that has to listen to his stupid jokes. It is always that way, little girl. The last beau is always the best beau, and there is always a last one. It is love that most of us are a love with, and not the lover. Don't forget that.

By the way, that is a mighty nice looking chap that stops by your front gate occasionally and leaves you a rose plucked from his mother's garden. Have you noticed how long his lashes are and what strong, broad shoulders he has? And has it ever occurred to you that he seems more interested in you than all the other girls? His father has some good-looking horses, too, and school friends. You know I think I would be nice to him the next time he brought me a rose. And I believe I would walk with him down past the corner where the redheaded girl lives, and—but you know how to do it, little girl. You know better than I do, if you'll just stop crying. For, all you need is a new and handsomer beau.

HEIRESS OF YERKES "TOLD" TO DEPART?

English Royalty, 'Tis Said, Let Miss Grigsby Know She Might Leave.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
New York, Sept. 4.—Intimate friends in this city of Miss Emilie Grigsby, ward and heiress of the late Charles T. Yerkes, said tonight that when she reached here early next week on the Olympic she probably would announce that she would not return to London. These friends intimate that the chief reason for her visit to New York at this time is not the one given when she started from London, that she wants to sell the house Yerkes gave her on Park avenue in this city, but is a direct outcome of her presence at the coronation of King George.

It is hinted that the inquiry as to how she got the invitation which resulted in her being present in Westminster Abbey when the crown was placed on King George and Queen Mary's heads was dropped only when Miss Grigsby told her intimates in London that she was going to leave England for an extended visit and that the report that she planned to go to India for the Durbar there was all "a terrible mistake."

The attempt to couple her name with that of the Princess Mary, daughter of the king and queen, resulted in an inquiry by members of the royal family and it was then that it was made perfectly clear to Miss Grigsby that a trip abroad will not dispense court circles.

Then came the announcement that she was coming here to sell her real estate and her friends expect she will also sell her English holdings and join the American colony in Paris for a permanent residence in the French capital.

PAIR AND 5 KIDLETS TAKING LONG HIKE

Lawyer, Wife and Children on New York-to-Texas Walk.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 4.—With five children, the youngest only 20 months old, Milton G. Butterfield, a lawyer of New York city, accompanied by his wife, walked into Rochester today on their way to Texas, having covered the entire distance on foot.

Butterfield, who leaves because his profession is overcrowded, will start the practice of law anew in Texas, where he believes he and his wife will not be victims of present day conditions. Butterfield was the motive power for an ordinary two wheeled push cart, completely filled with cooking utensils and three little children. Mrs. Butterfield was a strong guardian of the brood, which included two other children quite able to straggle along behind the cart. Mayor Edgerton tendered the Butterfields the freedom of the city, and directed Ordinance Sergeant McCarthy to issue permits for the Butterfields to dispose of postcards while they remain in the city. The lawyer and his sturdy wife started on their journey with $2.50.
