

LAND PRODUCTION PROBLEM IS TAKEN UP; EARNEST WORK

Educational Campaign to Be Waged; Tri-County Fair Is Planned for Gilliam, Sherman and Morrow Counties.

- Plans for Three Counties. Development convention at Arlington. Tri-County fair. "Hog and Field Pea Special" demonstration train. Ing. field peas, alfalfa, potatoes and boys and girls. Special adviser of Agricultural college to visit all farmers. Systematic educational campaign.

Oregon's population problem is being solved by advertising and the state immigration commission. The equipment for commerce is to be supplied by public docks and additional steamship lines. New railroads and highways are answering the transportation necessity.

A group of Oregon men took the initiative last night in mapping out a plan for systematically solving the Oregon land production problem. That Portland's growth must depend on the development of Oregon, and that the development of Oregon must depend on agriculture and a maintained maximum production of food products, was frankly conceded to be the incentive for action now, occupied with the development of the state the value of diversified production and intensive farming.

To Quadruple Production. Dr. William J. Kerr, president of Oregon Agricultural College, predicted that the work will quadruple production in the three counties; that hogs, chickens, potatoes, alfalfa and corn will supplement the waning wheat production, and that the average wheat yield of 18 bushels for the northwest, and much less for the counties in question, may be increased to 28 and 30 bushels an acre, thus opening a wonderfully profitable trade empire to Portland.

To carry on the work a fund of $2800 has already been contributed by Portland business men. The three counties will give $6000, or $2000 each. C. C. Chapman was appointed last night to arrange a time and place of a Sherman-Morrow-Gilliam development convention. He immediately announced the place would be Arlington. Delegates from all three counties and a trainload of Portland business men will attend. The special demonstration train will be there, too.

In a year a tri-county development fair will be held. It is for this tri-county fund will be pledged. Meanwhile a contest in poultry and hog-raising and poultry contests for boys and girls will be inaugurated and boys and girls urged to enter it. Cash prizes will be awarded, the total not less than $1200, with many other prizes from local business concerns.

Educational Campaign. Following the agricultural college idea of "teaching how by showing how," a special adviser of the college whose appointment will be approved by the committee, will visit the farmers, arousing interest and showing that profits await intelligent, intensive farming and diversified production, even in the arid country. Continuously, educational matter and simple, effective methods of work will be imparted to farmers through newspapers and public meetings.

The campaign is expected to be successful, by its breadth and the personnel of men engaged in it, in changing the census story of lessened production, lessened population and destroyed community spirit. J. N. Teal, president of the Oregon Conservation Commission, member of the tri-county development committee, presided at last evening's meeting. Mr. Teal declared that no body of men engaged in the campaign could have been brought together.

Much Land Lies Idle. The agricultural college was represented by President W. J. Kerr and Dr. James Withycombe, director of extension work. The transportation agent was represented by Richard B. Miller, traffic manager, and William McMurray, general passenger agent of the O.-W. R. & N. Co. R. T. Cox, M. O. Clark and S. B. Barker came from Gilliam county, saying the people are expanding to make a change in methods as a matter of self-preservation. William McKenzie, of Balfour-Guthrie company, represented the large land-owning interests, and testified that soil, climate and every other condition will contribute to the success of the new movement in Sherman-Morrow-Gilliam. Among the well known Portland men at the meeting were Dwight Edwards, B. Frank Irvine, D. O. Lively, C. H. Williams, James J. Sayer, George D. Lee, F. W. Mitchell, R. B. Mettler and A. F. Huggins.

R. B. Miller declared that for many years Pacific coast development has been in the cities and area west of the Cascades, but there has been no noticeable development east of the Cascades. What incentive, he questioned, is there for the construction of new branch lines when 750,000 acres contiguous to the Harriman lines now lie idle every year, fallaciously summer fallowed, cutting down the production to 12 bushels of wheat per acre every two years, or nine bushels per acre a year.

"God Almighty didn't put that land there to be a waste," said Mr. Miller. "It is a crime to let that land lie idle. We must have a change in farming methods. It is a matter of life and death, of supreme moment. We should support the agricultural college more largely. Oregon is neglected in this regard, yet it is through the college we must obtain the changes in methods that will insure the development of this country to its proper and maximum production."

Went Plant Field Peas. Dr. Kerr pledged the agricultural college in the name of the board of regents to the work proposed. He said that summer fallowing must be changed, that letting the land lie bare every other year is burning out the humus. Dr. Withycombe said that land should be planted to field peas and these to hogs rather than to practice summer fallowing. Thus nitrogen, worth 20 cents a pound is added to the soil. Hogs worth hard cash are produced, and both without additional cost while the land is materially benefited. He suggested the "Hog and Field Pea Special," which Mr. Miller said would be started whenever the date was set. Mr. McMurray pledged special rates to the Tri-County convention.

R. T. Cox declared that intensive, diversified farming was already a proved success in the three counties named. No Home Spirit. He told of the potatoes, 100 sacks to the acre, the field peas, the hogs and chickens and turkeys that had been successfully, profitably raised. He said moisture had been wonderfully conserved by the 2 1/2 inches, and that abundant water could be obtained also by drilling wells any place.

That there are no homes and no home spirit in the all wheat country was repeatedly stated. Mr. Withycombe said he had found only temporary board shacks. Hogs and chickens, vegetables and cows are necessary to homes it was said. The contests for boys and girls would undoubtedly prove successful. Mr. Kerr, and they will be highly interested.

Upon motion of B. F. Irvine, Dr. Withycombe, William McKenzie, D. O. Lively and R. T. Cox were appointed members of a committee of two to interview local business men on the subject of further special prizes. Dr. Kerr and Dr. Withycombe were appointed a committee of two to appoint the special adviser who will be sent at the expense of the committee from the agricultural college to the Morrow-Sherman-Gilliam farmers.

BAD ACOUSTICS ARE ALLEGED DEFECT IN NEW COURT HOUSE

(Continued from Page One.) for it is impossible to hear more than a few feet away, except when a man with the most penetrating sort of voice is speaking. A large sum has been wasted in the vast corridors. A few feet added to the rooms from the hallways would be of great benefit.

Architects Blamed. "The architects have insisted upon having things their way. The building is not suited to the convenience of the officials and the public. It is a modification to the whims of the architects."

Consideration is being given to means for improving the hearing qualities of the courtrooms. It is thought by some that carpets will be a success, covering the floor. Another suggestion is to think rubber matting may suffice, with a probability that nets or wires will have to be strung along the ceilings to kill the echo effect.

The same difficulty was encountered in the old courthouse in the big courtroom on the second floor, and to a lesser extent in Judge Gabentzen's old quarters. The county purchased a $400 curtain for the big room which was discarded from the ceiling and helped the acoustics.

Lawyers addressing the presiding judge yesterday and today have found it necessary to approach within arm's length of the bench to be heard, and jurors have had great difficulty in hearing the testimony of witnesses in cases on trial. The lawyers and witnesses with strong voices have possessed a big advantage.

Crowded for Room. After allotting two rooms for use of the law library, the architect stipulated that not over 3600 volumes should be placed, it is possible the library will be ordered out of the building altogether, difficulty being had in providing offices for the superintendent of schools and the county auditor. The county commissioners today are trying to work out a plan to give rooms for the school superintendent and jury rooms without disturbing the library.

The commissioners take the position that the county clerk's office is being provided for. If a room is left the law library can have it. When the west wing is completed there will be no scarcity of room, but in the meantime several of the offices will be crowded.

Two thirds of the building is boxed and stored because of the edict of the architects that only 3600 volumes can be safely placed in a floor space equal to half the area in which 12,000 volumes were accommodated in the old building. The architects even entered objection to placing a bookcase along one of the walls, and would allow no cases except along the walls.

Lightner Gives View. Commissioner Lightner, in discussing the complaints, said: "I have not been in the court rooms since the courts have opened. I do not personally know what difficulties have been had. I think after trial and adjustment to the new conditions, means will be found to assist the hearing, if the conditions are as bad as reported. If it is not known what the difficulties in such cases, and have not had opportunity to consult Mr. Whidden, who is out of town just now. Some other buildings in the city with high ceilings have also been the subject of complaint."

If it is found necessary, the ceilings for the additional court rooms in the west wing can be made lower. It is not too late to do that, but I am not prepared to say what should be done without additional cost while the land is materially benefited. He suggested the "Hog and Field Pea Special," which Mr. Miller said would be started whenever the date was set. Mr. McMurray pledged special rates to the Tri-County convention.

R. T. Cox declared that intensive, diversified farming was already a proved success in the three counties named. No Home Spirit. He told of the potatoes, 100 sacks to the acre, the field peas, the hogs and chickens and turkeys that had been successfully, profitably raised. SEATTLE WOULD BECOME SOUND PORT OF ENTRY (United Press Special Wire.) Washington, Sept. 6.—A petition for making Seattle the official port of entry for all Puget sound commerce and for transferring the customs headquarters from Port Townsend to Seattle, will be presented to congress next December by the treasury department. The proposed change is part of a complete reorganization scheme for the whole customs service.

San Francisco, Sept. 6.—No scheme of arbitration of the present labor difficulties on the Harriman lines has been suggested by the general officers of the craft unions, according to statements of officials here today. They have not called for arbitration, nor do we favor arbitration in this matter," said President J. W. Kilne of the blacksmiths' international union, and chairman of the conference. "This is not a question which can be arbitrated, because it is a question of whether or not the men have a right to organize as they see fit. The company has not shown an inclination to arbitrate, either."
