

"BE WIND, IT BLOW, BLOW, BLOW," AND VESSEL DAMAGED

Coal Bunkers Shifted Onto Ernest Legouve and Frightens Captain and Crew—Little Damage.

As in the wreck of the Julie Plante, "do wind she blow, blow, blow," and she blew to such good effect last night that she blew a part of the Pacific Coast coal bunkers onto the French bark Ernest Legouve at 7 o'clock and caused Captain George Ancelin to narrowly escape with his life, while the crew leaped to the dock thinking the ship was about to be demolished.

The Legouve has been at the coal bunkers for some time discharging a cargo of coal from Newcastle, Australia, and now she is lying a part of the bunkers was being torn down. When the wind storm came up last night this section of the bunkers was blown down and landed on the deck of the Frenchman with a mighty crash.

AROUND WORLD TWICE

Bannockburn Reaches Port After Delay at San Francisco. The British steamer Bannockburn, Captain Bent, reached the Albin dock at 7:30 o'clock last night from London, by way of San Pedro and San Francisco, with general cargo consigned to Parrott & Co. She should have been here last week but she was detained at the Bay City because of being labeled by several firms as the result of damage to cargo sustained when she was in collision with the British steamer Ballochbuie on May 25. This is the second trip of the Bannockburn to this port, as she took a cargo of lumber from here to the Shanghai in December, 1910. Since that time she has covered a distance of 120,000 miles and been around the world twice.

GRAIN CARRIER ARRIVES

Norwegian Steamer Hans B to Take on 240,000 Bushels. The arrival of the Norwegian steamer Hans B, this morning from Prince Rupert has added another large carrier to the grain fleet and with the British tramp Collingham, now loading in port, an aggregate of 473,000 bushels of wheat will be loaded here on steamers within the next two weeks. The Hans B is a large carrier and will load about 240,000 bushels while the Collingham will load about 233,000 bushels. Both steamers are under charter to Balfour, Guthrie & Co. The Hans B will reach the local harbor tonight.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT

Laden with 710,252 feet of lumber, valued at $9406, the schooner Defiance, Captain Saletka, left down from the North Bank Pacific mills yesterday on her way to Port Allen, Hawaii. After discharging a lot of logs at the stockyard on her way up the gas schooner Tillamook arrived at 11 o'clock this morning from Bandon and way ports.

When she arrived at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Coos Bay the steamer Breakwater had 70 passengers and 200 tons of general freight. Among the passengers was General Manager Willis of the Portland Coos Bay Steamship company, who is on his way to San Francisco. With a customs inspector aboard, the patrol launch H. W. Scott attended to the transfer of supplies from the British steamer Collingham to the British steamer Wakefield, which is loading lumber at St. Johns. The two steamers belonging to the same line, the transfer is allowed by the government. The customs inspectors have been entrusted to take charge of and destroy by fire 10 barrels of olives imported by Paulos & Karambelas, as they have been condemned by the pure food inspectors.

Lower Rogue Yields Huge Chinooks

A Two Hour Catch Weighing Nearly 400 Pounds.

(Special to The Journal.) Gold Beach, Or., Sept. 12.—Thirteen royal chinook salmon, averaging 30 pounds each were taken from Rogue river in two hours by Will Walker and Fletcher Gardner, with trolling hook and line. Will Bailey of this place holds the record so far this year for the largest one taken, having landed one that weighed 45 pounds 3 ounces.

Rival Stars Sing in Italian and in Chinook Jargon at the State Fair

Each Wins Applause and Each Appeals Equally to the Audience.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.) Salem, Or., Sept. 12.—Two noted singers staged a memorable contest for first place in popular favor at the state fair last night—Furillo's grand opera star, and Cyrus H. Walker, the pioneer wielder of the Chinook Jargon. Mr. Walker, who bears the distinction of being Oregon's first native born child, 1835, came upon the platform and pleaded as his motive in singing several Chinook songs a desire to create an interest among the younger generations which would cause the Chinook language to be perpetuated and not become extinct with the present generation. This language, he explained, was supposed to have been invented by early trappers as a species of Esperanto for Europeans and the six great tribes of the Willamette valley and Columbia river Indians.

Cyrus H. Walker, born in Oregon in 1838, who sings Chinook songs.

After Walker's first Chinook song to the tune of "Come Thou Fount" there was long, persistent applause. Then he sang with intensity another Indian homelike song, which will never be forgotten by the large audience present. Soon after this quaint song, grand opera singing was given by Furillo's stars. These singers were pronounced high class.

tending the first state fair, and gave many interesting stories of early Oregon history. Secretary George H. Himes of the Oregon Historical society, holding an old fashioned reaping hook, told of the part that instrument had played in carving out the destiny of Oregon. He showed the changes time had wrought in the methods of harvesting grain.

HUNTER HANGS FROM GUN 3 HOURS OVER CLIFF

(United Press Leased Wire.) San Bernardino, Cal., Sept. 12.—Plunging down a bluff leading to a deep precipice, J. J. Officer, a Los Angeles sportsman, narrowly escaped death today while hunting deer in the mountains near Bonita Falls. For three hours Officer clung to his rifle, which in the descent had caught fast between two projecting rocks. His shouts finally attracted Glenn Harris and Norman G. Brittle, also of Los Angeles, and they pulled him to safety with ropes. Following his rescue, Officer swooned from exhaustion. Japan has more suicides, in proportion to its population, than any other civilized country.

DISFIGURED HIM WITH HARD COIN

W. S. Rockhill, in Suit for Divorce, Says Wife Hit Him With Various Things.

Smashed in the face with the breakfast cantaloupe and scarred in the forehead with two silver dollars, thrown with telling accuracy, W. S. Rockhill is ready to muster out of service. He tells the story of domestic warfare in a complaint filed in the circuit court against Minnie E. Rockhill, whom he declares is too belligerent to be endured. It was in 1904, in Des Moines, Iowa, that the cantaloupe and dollar episodes took place, he alleges. He says he wore the scars from the dollars for years. He also alleges he was made a target for dishes and called many names, being awakened at night on some occasions to listen to what Mrs. Rockhill had to say. He says he has been paying $30 a month since 1906 for the support of their little boy and is willing to continue these payments until the boy is old enough to care for himself.

Ernest E. Hatter, one of the proprietors of the Lents Van & Storage company, is being sued for divorce by Margaret Hatter. She alleges he has cursed and struck her. She demands $35 per month for support of herself and child and wants him restrained from visiting her or inciting her property. They were married in Canada in 1909. H. F. Grimm is seeking separation from Hattie Grimm, asserting she has slandered him and caused him to lose his position. They were married in Portland in 1908.

HEROD DESCRIBED AS ROMANTIC CHARACTER

Professor Bacon's lecture at the Art museum last evening on "Herod the Hellenizer and the Monuments of His Age," was divided into two parts. A brief historical introduction described Herod as one of the most romantic characters of history and brought out vividly the special significance of the transforming work accomplished for Palestine by the Herodian dynasty. In the Gospels Herod appears only as the tyrant who has usurped the throne of David and seeks to destroy the legal heir. In Josephus, the contemporary Jewish historian, and in the modern drama of Stephen Phillips which so ably translated the portrait of Josephus, another aspect of his life and his bloody tragedy of his domestic life and in spite of Jewish hatred, Herod is seen to deserve his title "The Great," by commanding qualities of character and statesmanship. But E. A. Lynds and his other aspect of his life and his bloody tragedy of his domestic life and in spite of Jewish hatred, Herod is seen to deserve his title "The Great," by commanding qualities of character and statesmanship.

REFUSE TO APPROVE BILL FOR TOBACCO

Asserting that A. S. Briggs, while superintendent of the Linnton rockpile, ordered $1350 worth of tobacco for the prisoners at expense of the county, after he had been informed the county would not pay future tobacco bills, County Commissioners Lightner and Hart have refused to approve a bill presented by Sig Sichel & Co., from whom the smoke stuff was purchased. "After I came into office," said Commissioner Hart, "I refused to approve tobacco bills for the prisoners. Mr. Lightner joined me in this position. I believe a bill for January went through, but after that I refused to approve any more such claims. Mr. Briggs was instructed to this effect. Mr. Lightner and I both get along without tobacco, and we thought the prisoners could do the same." "Some months, I found, the county paid tobacco bills as high as $150. They ran from $80 up. Despite our orders, Mr. Briggs, with no authority whatever, bought another bill of goods from Mr. Sichel. Under the circumstances we do not believe the county is liable for the bill." Mr. Sichel has sent a letter to the commissioners calling attention to the bill and asking why it has not been paid. He wants the answer in writing, so he may decide "what course to pursue." A suit against the county is inferred to be probable.

JAPAN-PORTLAND TRADE RELATIONS

Trade relations between Japan and Portland were discussed at an impromptu luncheon tendered today by the Chamber of Commerce to Adina Shito, special trade commissioner from Japan, who is in Portland. O. M. Clark presided at the luncheon, which was given in the Commercial club. Among the prominent Japanese present were Akina Shito, guest of honor; M. Ide, new consul from Japan; S. Han and S. Senda. The luncheon was arranged by E. C. Giltner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Suit to Foreclose Mortgage.

Julia E. Hinn has begun suit in the circuit court against Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Lynds, husband and wife, to foreclose a mortgage given as security for a $6000 note. The mortgage covers property on East Portland Heights and the plaintiff also asks for $150 in attorney fees. The note was given in February, 1909, for two years.

How Pretty Girl Gave Up Hunk of Gum to Stop Leak in Sinking Craft

Rosa Bates is a drummer. He sells shoes. Bates could sell wire nails or coffee cakes, and it wouldn't affect this story in the least. But the fact of the matter is, he sells shoes. Mr. Bates, who is a guest of the Imperial hotel, is today resting after a thrilling and wearisome experience. It is a case of considerable ability. Last week Mr. Bates was in the state of Washington, calling on the trade in various towns and cities and cross roads and water tank towns. In order to pass the time swiftly and with all the trimmings that go with the passing thereof, Mr. Bates frequently becomes acquainted with the village belle, or the black haired waitress in the hotel where he takes his meals, or maybe, the daughter of the shoe dealer of the town. So it came about that last Tuesday night he took the mayor's daughter out for a boat ride on a lake adjoining a pretty little village in the Olympio mountains.

When they reached the shore Bates excused himself for a moment, ran into a store and bought a dollar's worth of gum, gave it to the girl and caught the first train to Seattle. Now this mayor's daughter was a gum chewer of considerable ability. Not a "Piker." She was not what Bates would call a "Piker." She is never satisfied, he says, unless she has about a dime's worth of chicle stored away in the recesses of her mouth for future reference or immediate use, as the case may be. So last Tuesday night, Bates bought a quarter's worth of gum before they went to the boat. He says he never asked her any questions, because it required at least 15 minutes for her to get her gum adjusted so she could reply. By that time she had forgotten what it was he had asked her. And so had he. The happy pair—the shoe drummer and the mayor's daughter—rowed around the edge of the lake, picking water lilies and talking about the beautiful moon, and the like. Then they decided to go out to the middle of the lake where the water was plenty deep. So they went. That was a gentle, trusting creature, that had never misbehaved a day in its life, then became unruly. It sprang a leak. It was a tiny leak, to be sure, but it let in the water anyway. And there was nothing in the boat with which to bail it out. Besides, it was a long way to shore. They crawled to a higher spot in the boat, holding up their feet and endangering their lives by rocking the boat so doing. It became tiresome and life didn't really seem worth living. After a while a great little idea struck Bates. "Gimme about a pound of your gum," he said. The girl handed it over sorrowfully. And then the drummer got down on

PROPOSED ORDINANCE TAXPAYERS' SAFEGUARD

A resolution drafted for the protection of property owners against the paving companies will be introduced in the city council tomorrow morning by Councilman Ralph C. Clyde. The resolution if adopted will prevent confiscation of property in future to pay for street improvements. It provides that no street improvement may be ordered hereafter unless the appraised value of the property benefited is greater than the estimated cost of the proposed improvement. Councilman Clyde's resolution was prompted by his reading a statement from Mayor Rushlight in which the mayor said that in many instances the assessments for improvements had compelled the property owners to turn over their entire holdings to satisfy the contractors. In one case a man was assessed $400 a lot for 21 lots. The market value of the lots was only $300 apiece and the owner had to present his property to the paving company. An agent for the company afterwards tried to sell the lots to the mayor, according to the executive's statement.

GRAND JURY MEETS IN NEW QUARTERS

The grand jury assembled in its new quarters on the sixth floor of the court house for the first time today. Ever since the grand jury system was resumed in this state the old court house was too crowded to enable it to meet there, and it has been established at the district attorney's office. A waiting room for witnesses and a room for the district attorney complete the grand jury suite. The grand jurors are still busy with minor cases, and probably will be occupied with routine matters for several days to come, when the deeks may be cleared for the expedited investigation of north and conditions. In walking a man breathes into his lungs twice as much air as when resting quietly.
