

WOMAN, DESERTED, TO RETURN TO HER ARTIST HUSBAND

Mrs. Edward Trumbull, Former Flower Girl, Says She Will Forgive Man Who Would Wed Miss Dreier.

(United Press Leased Wire.) London, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Edward Trumbull, the former flower girl, whose husband, the American artist, went through marriage ceremony with Miss Katherine Dreier of Brooklyn, is to join him in America very soon. She has forgiven him, it is learned, in spite of the fact that he deserted her, leaving her and their two children almost penniless.

She is still living in the house at Shepherd's Bush, which her husband leased for her and the rent for which he forgot to pay when he sailed for America. She said her mother-in-law had sent her some money and that she also had had a letter from her husband, enclosing a check, begging for her forgiveness and asking her to join him as soon as his present difficulties are adjusted.

Willing to Forgive Misconduct. "I know he has acted abominably, but what can I do with these children?" she said. "One of them is 2 years old and the other only 2 months. He was always good to them if not to me and, besides, I love him."

"Perhaps he has learned a lesson and will be happy with me from now on. I believe he still loves me and was only tempted by a chance to succeed his father as an artist."

"I know that if he should walk in here now, I would be so glad to have him again that I would quickly forget everything else. Besides, to go back to him would be better than selling flowers again or posing."

"I just can't wait now to get to New York. There is one thing for which I am grateful—that is, that he and Miss Dreier never lived together. He went to Detroit immediately after the ceremony and when he returned he told her about me."

Miss Dreier in Exile. Miss Katherine Dreier, since coming to London, has lived like a recluse. She has remained in her flat in Chelsea, overlooking the Thames, never going about, and refusing to see any friends who called. It is understood that she is devoting all her time to painting and striving to forget that she ever heard of Trumbull-Smith, as she knew him. She intends to have an exhibition of her paintings at the Doré galleries in October. She has not seen Mrs. Trumbull, she says, and does not desire to see her.

New York, Sept. 21.—If Mrs. Trumbull comes to New York to join her husband we will grab her and induce her to testify against him if it is possible," said Assistant District Attorney Ross of Brooklyn. Mr. Ross has charge of the case and is determined to prosecute Trumbull for bigamy, no matter what the attitude of the Dreier family may be. He asked District Attorney Clarke to send a representative to London to try to induce Mrs. Trumbull to come to New York. Her intended trip to join her husband will make such action unnecessary, however.

Witnesses Quizzed in White Slavery Cases. The United States grand jury is in session today and this morning examined witnesses in the investigation into the alleged violation of the white slave law by Troy McDavid, a typewriter salesman. McDavid was arrested in San Francisco and rearrested in Portland. Olive Dick, an unusually handsome girl, is the complaining witness, and claims she fell into the clutches of Alice Sinner, a procuress, through McDavid.

Missionary Show in Providence. Providence, R. I., Sept. 21.—"The Orient in Providence," probably the most elaborate and comprehensive missionary exposition ever held in this country, was opened in Infantry hall today, to continue until October 7. ### SHE WEDS, THEN LEAVES HER ARTIST HUSBAND

MARRIED LIFE NOT LIKED BY MANY

When the wheels of the divorce court begin to grind again a long list of suits will be ready. Four more divorce cases were filed yesterday.

F. C. Schabert wants a divorce from her husband, P. J. Schabert, on the grounds of cruelty and neglect. The complaint alleges that he has deserted her since February 1, 1911. The wife asks for a title to their home in Woodstock, and in case the defendant should appear and contest the case she asks for attorney's fees and $50 a month alimony. They were married September 21, 1898, at Wilmet, S. D.

Cruel and inhuman treatment is the charge made by Virgil Elmer against his wife, Louise C. Elmer. They were married January 23, 1900, at Tacoma, Wash. They have a son aged 10, whom the plaintiff agrees to give to the defendant and to pay $10 a month toward his support.

That the marriage tie be severed, their 2-year-old child be given into the custody of George Adams, and her maiden name be restored is the plea of Emmy Nelson in her suit for divorce against Gustaf Nelson. Her maiden name was Emmy Fredin. They were married in Portland April 1, 1909. She charges her husband with drunkenness and cruelty. Because his wife has told him that she loves another and does not care longer to live with him, Edgar M. Capell wants a divorce from Blanche J. Capell. They were married in this county May 10, 1908. They have a son 2 years old and a daughter 18 months old. He asks for the custody of the son.

For Crime Committed Long Ago. Bonham, Texas, Sept. 21.—To answer for a murder alleged to have been committed 46 years ago, former Lieutenant Daniel W. Byars was arraigned in court here today. A Captain Harris and his son were the alleged victims. Following an argument over politics Byars is said to have shot young Harris and then his father. He was indicted in 1865, but escaped while awaiting trial and was not located until a short time ago.

SUIT RAISES FINE ISSUES OF LAW

Action to Recover Furniture Bought on Installments Begun by Defaulter.

A suit that will be tried before Judge Morrow in the circuit court wherein O. B. Curtis and J. G. Luckey are plaintiffs and Henry Jennings & Sons, furniture dealers, and J. W. Bell, justice of the peace, are defendants, promises to present some important questions that will be of interest to those who buy furniture on the monthly installment plan.

According to the complaint Curtis bought about $200 worth of furniture, and was to pay for it at the rate of $10 a month. He had paid $138 on account when he took sick and for a time was unable to make the payments. While he was sick J. G. Luckey, a groceryman, supplied him with groceries to the amount of $43. When he was able Curtis went to La Grande and secured work. He turned over some of the furniture to Luckey as security for his debt to him. After he was gone Curtis father-in-law paid $20 on the furniture account. Then Curtis sent Jennings & Sons a money order for $33 on account. This was returned to him with a letter stating that the company had seized all the furniture with the exception of one buffet, and that unless he paid the company $100.00 that article would also be taken. In the sum demanded by the furniture dealers, according to the complaint, there is an excess of about $80 over that due the company on account.

Curtis asks the court to restrain the company from any further court proceedings against him, to annul the contract and ascertain the correct amount that is still owing the company, which, along with any other costs the court should deem fair to assess against him, he wants to pay and regain possession of the furniture.

While the suit is really for the possession of the furniture, an important point is whether a person who defaults on a lease or contract can later make the payments and keep possession of the goods involved. Another point is what rights the company would have to the furniture in case the court decided against Curtis in this suit. Would the company have to sell the furniture and apply the proceeds on the Curtis account until that was liquidated and the balance go to Curtis, or would Curtis forfeit the furniture and all the money he has paid on it?

EIGHT COACHES OF COLONISTS ARRIVE

Eight coaches of colonists came in over the O-W. R. & N. company's line at 1:25 this afternoon. Most of them leave this afternoon for points in the Willamette valley, the Rogue river valley and the Umpqua river valley. Among the arrivals were a number of families with seven or eight children, and all apparently well to do. The heads of these families said they had already decided upon where to locate and that they were ready to begin homebuilding at once.

The colonist movement is showing a steady increase and it is expected that by the beginning of next week nearly 1000 will reach the city over the various lines every day.

LIBERAL MAJORITY ESTIMATED AT 61

(United Press Leased Wire.) Montreal, Sept. 21.—A forecast compiled by the leaders of the Liberal party, after checking the vote polled up to noon, gives that party a majority of 61. The Conservatives, on the other hand, figure for their party a majority of 27.

Interest in the election in the rural districts is keen and since it is here that the administration is looking for success, the Liberals feel that they are safe in predicting a majority of at least 60.

FRANK W. WATSON IS CALLED BY DEATH

Frank W. Watson, for years associated with his brother, D. M. Watson, in the well known Watson's restaurant in this city, died in Los Angeles after an illness of several weeks. His brother, D. M. Watson, had been with him for over a month.

They opened their first place at Third and Washington, moving a little later to Fourth near Washington. They inaugurated the check system by which meals could be paid for by the week.

After the Lewis and Clark fair the restaurant was sold to George Jabour. Mr. Watson ran the Oregon restaurant in the Oregon building at the Seattle fair and since then has been in business in Los Angeles, except for a short time when he was in San Diego. (United Press Leased Wire.) London, Sept. 21.—The discount rates of the Bank of England, France, Belgium and Austria were advanced today, the directors explaining that they took the step in order to protect their gold receipts. It is generally feared that millions of marks in government notes, due next week, will be defaulted upon.

SULLIVAN WILL NOT RUN FOR CONGRESS

Addington, Mass., Sept. 21.—Declaring that agriculture is more profitable than a political career, John L. Sullivan here today declined to permit his friends to use his name as the Democratic candidate for congress from this district.

"Affinity" Earle Comes With New Bride Of 4 "Soul Mates" He Has Married Three

F. Pinney Earle and His Latest Wife.

Pair Take Suite at Fashionable Hotel for the Winter; Artist Uses Fictitious Name.

New York, Sept. 21.—With his fourth "affinity," the third of whom he made his wife, Ferdinand Pinney Earle has arrived from Europe under a pseudonym and has gone to the Hotel Marie Antoinette, where his mother, widow of General Ferdinand Earle, is settled for the winter.

Earle and his bride had spent the night before at Monro. The Earle stone mansion there, topping the highest hill, in the midst of a vast wild garden of native and exotic plants and shrubs, was visited and Earle went inside to write a check for the carriage hire from the station.

But as the tenants have a lease for two years, he and his bride simply "called," went to the home of John Brooks to surprise him, and then passed the night with George Nagie, on a farm owned by Earle.

Whether the Earles were unwelcome except at his farm was a matter of curious inquiry in the village of Monro, where sentiment rose hotly against him at the time he cast off his wife, the mother of his first child. "Meet me on 611 train," signing it "S. G. Bailey."

When he appeared the local hangers-on recognized "S. G. Bailey" as their picturesque townfellow who declared in poetry that "love itself is prayer" and looked for no further answer. Since he had been abroad and in the lanes of Surrey, England, had met and married Dorothea Elbert Stewart—"laughing brown eyes, a soft English complexion and just 21"—his appearance had changed.

Instead of the Spanish grande beard, his dreamy face was decorated with a soft, long moustache and imperial. Only he himself appeared as a passenger. The new Mrs. Earle had been seen on ahead and was picked up by the carriage outside the village. Their only luggage was two umbrellas, but they said they were going to stay three days.

Instead after the night at the farm at the Nagies, they walked to the Brookses, who sent them in a carryall to the Oxford station, whence they slipped away to New York and the Marie Antoinette. Earle said he was too tired to talk about anything, but that he probably would remain in town all winter.
