SHORT FALL KILLS

Eugene Ely, Who Learned to Fly Here, Meets Death at Macon, Ga.

Eugene Elly, the Portland flyer, who was killed at Macon, Ga.

(Datted Press Lected Wire.) Eugene Ely ascended from the fair rounds here on his last flight he was arned by a premomitten that it was to result in disaster. Just before leaving the ground he said to his mechanician; "If anything happens wire Mrs. Ely."

The aviator was killed on the eve of reunion with his family, as he had made plane to join his wife in Norfelk today. They intended to spend the winter at Davenport, lowa.

Friends of the aviator are incensed oday at the action of souvenir hunters, who even removed the collar from Hly's nack, took the gloves from his ands and stole the cap he wore. Pelice were swept aside by the excited crowd of morbidly curious, and the souvenir hunters cleared the field of every aplinter of wreckage.

Ely yesterday made an effort to com plets negotiations for a night flight, the aeroplane to be covered with phos-phorus, but his demand for $1000 was considered too high by the committee. The body of the aviator was today shipped to New York, from whence it Ely's falter, who address have today might lead to a permanent ours.

In Your Purchase of a Piano Be Guided By This Graded List

All Depends Upon the Amount You Care to Expend

-If a prospective purchaser calls at our store and asks for the piano which is above and beyond all other instruments, and is willing to pay $575, or up, he need look no further than the many models of the Mason & Hamlin. It is pronounced by the greatest living authorities to be the greatest plano the world has ever known.

-If he asks for a piano around which there lingers the traditions of three generations of musical critics, we shall point to the Hardman, which in either grand or upright is sure to commend itself on account of the exceptionally enduring nature of its tonal and musical

The unquestioned prestige of the Packard piano places it also in the foremost ranks of the few really artistic instruments,

Almost as gigantic in reputation is the Krakauer, a name synonymous with piano excellence and of which we have yet to hear adverse criticism,

-If something less costly than this magnificent quartet of pianos is desired, we are able to commend for sweetness of tone and long service the popular high-grade Hobart M. Cable or the Harrington. They belong to the better class of standard makes and are noted for the high character of the labor and material employed in their construction.

The Price & Teeple is also a superior instrument for the price at which it is sold, noted for its good workmanship and tone. It has become justly popular.

We also point with pride to the reliable Hensel, the Milton, the Rembrandt and last, a crowning achievement in the way of excellent construction at little cost is the piano we offer at $195—so good that it challenges the usual piano at $250 or $275, and has proved a boon to the people who cannot afford a more costly instrument.

These pianos may be seen in all of their various styles at our warerooms. We cordially invite your inspection of them. They may be purchased on easy payments, if desired.
