Mary A. Schmeltzer, a settler in Washington county in 1852.

(Special to the Journal.) Corvallis, Oct. 25.—In an article published in a Portland morning paper and dated October 15, George W. Finley stated: "The game commission recently sent a letter to each of the clerks of Oregon counties requesting information as to the number of licenses issued in 1911. In some instances two and three letters have been mailed. Out of the 34 counties, only nine sent replies that indicate definitely how many licenses were issued. Most of the others gave estimates only, while others in six counties made no reply to several letters. In two or three cases the reply came back, 'Don't know.'"
