We're Throwing in a $20 Cabinet for $12 to Make It Interesting!

This $20 record cabinet now $12.

Yesterday's selling of the new hornless Talking Machines at $22.80, including 12 latest double-sided records, was bigger even than Tuesday's big sale. Get one of these fine Talking Machines today. They're simply splendid! And 12 latest double-sided records—24 selections—go with each machine. You can even select from the November list of records now, at Eilers Music House.

This is the machine, though the drawing does not do it justice. This is a hornless talking machine of the very latest model—portable, compact and complete. The sound waves gathered by the reproducer are led through the tone-arm to the tone chamber in the base of the cabinet, and magnified by the construction of the tone-arm and tone-chamber so that the music is exactly the same as that from which the original records were made, without "drumming" or distortion. In some instruments the tone-chamber upon which the naturalness of the reproduction largely depends is left out, and instead the sound waves are projected through the working parts of the motor, losing much of the accuracy and volume of the recorded music.
