United States because they are able to be out in the open air through the entire year. The great increase of the percentage of women who sleep out doors has helped to raise the standard at Washington.

By taking advantage of our natural resources we of the northwest should have the finest athletes in the country. It is only a matter of a short time before preventable diseases such as tuberculosis will be entirely unknown here.

BODIES OF DIANA CLAIMED FOR CO-EDS OF WASHINGTON U

Busts, Waists, Hips, Weights, Heights, Show Average Girl of 19.2 Years With Physique Superior to That of Any Other American College Woman.

(Special to The Journal.) Seattle, Wash., Oct. 28.—The University of Washington co-ed is the most perfect college woman from a physical standpoint in the United States.

Statistics compiled by the university department of physical training, made public today, show the average co-ed to be 19.2 years of age, 5 feet 3 inches tall, 121 pounds weight, 32 inches chest, 27.5 inches girth of waist, 25.4 inches girth of hips, 11.3 inches depth of chest (from front to back), 6.8 inches depth of abdomen, 5.9 inches girth of chest, 27.5 inches girth of waist, 25.4 inches girth of hips.

Here are the measurements of the average Washington co-ed, which make her the model for the sculptor seeking the purest type of national beauty: Age, 19.2 years; weight, 121 pounds; height, 5 feet 3 inches; breadth of shoulders, 14 inches; breadth of chest, 32 inches; breadth of waist, 27.5 inches; breadth of hips, 25.4 inches; depth of chest (from front to back), 6.8 inches; depth of abdomen, 5.9 inches; girth of chest, 27.5 inches; girth of waist, 25.4 inches; girth of hips, 25.4 inches.

The University of Washington co-ed is truly western in her athletic ability and it is the variety of strenuous sports she plays on the campus that has given her the body of a Diana.

"Beyond a doubt it is the climate of the northwest which has made the Washington co-ed so perfect physically," declared Dr. Hall. "The girls are among the most healthy in the United States because they are able to be out in the open air through the entire year. The great increase of the percentage of women who sleep out doors has helped to raise the standard at Washington. By taking advantage of our natural resources we of the northwest should have the finest athletes in the country. It is only a matter of a short time before preventable diseases such as tuberculosis will be entirely unknown here."

$28,000 BLAZE AT CAMBRIDGE, IDAHO (Special to The Journal.) Boise, Idaho, Oct. 28.—An entire block of the business section of Cambridge, Idaho, was destroyed by fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, which started late tonight in the rear of the Cambridge Mercantile company's store and, fanned by a strong breeze, quickly spread to the adjoining buildings making a clean sweep of the entire block. The entire loss is estimated at $28,000. Two suspects have been arrested and are being held for investigation.

FEDERALS OCCUPY HANKOW AFTER HOT FIGHT IN TRENCHES

Reports of Recapture of City Say Manchu Warships Aided Materially in Bringing Victory to Government.

2 ENGAGEMENTS GIVE REBELS FIRST SETBACK Revolutionists Forced From One Position After Another By Imperialist Troops.

(By the International News Service.) Peking, Oct. 28.—The Chinese revolutionists received their first setback in their successful uprising against the Manchu dynasty when the Imperial troops yesterday recaptured the city of Hankow after an all day fight. The casualties of the Imperialists amounted to about 150 while the rebels lost 400. The Imperialists marched into Hankow today.

In the reports of the engagement that have reached Peking, the Chinese warships are given a large part of the credit for the victory, as they assisted largely in the operations of the land forces. The rebels were forced from one position where they were strongly entrenched near the Hankow race track.

The Imperial troops advanced to within 500 yards before beginning the attack. The rebels were forced to abandon their positions.

AMERICA MAY GET 2 MORE CARDINALS Archbishop Farley and O'Connell Expected to Be Elevated By Pope.

(United Press Special Wire.) Rome, Oct. 28.—Two more American cardinals will be added to the sacred college, it is stated on the highest Vatican authority, at a consistory called by the pope today for November 27, to confer 17 new hats.

Archbishops Farley of New York and O'Connell of Boston, it is said by Vatican dignitaries whose information may be assumed to come from the pope himself, are the Americans chosen as future princes of the church. It has long been expected that one American would be honored at the next consistory, but that there will be two comes as a decided surprise.

World Equal Set Two. With three members of the sacred college—Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore and Archbishops Farley and O'Connell—the United States representation will equal that of any country in the world with the exception of Italy, with 31, and Spain, with four.

Archbishop Falconi, the apostolic delegate to Washington, it is reliably stated, and Archbishop Bourne of London, will also receive red hats.

Archbishop John Murphy Parley of New York was born in County Antrim, Ireland.

Informer in McNamara Case Talks of Times Plot Says Labor Union Management to Be Changed

SELF CONFESSED DYNAMITER

Ortie McManigal, who tells Portland woman remarkable story concerning Los Angeles Times explosion.

ORTIE M'MANIGAL EXPLAINS PART IN DYNAMITE SCHEME

Startling Statements Given in Interview With Portland Woman Indicate Nature of His Testimony in Trial.

(This remarkable story is the first important interview with the star witness in the McNamara case which has been permitted to reach the public. It is of extraordinary significance, because it foretells the testimony that McManigal will give when he takes the witness stand. Mrs. Ehrig, who secured the interview, is a Portland woman and is widely known as a newspaper and magazine writer. She is the wife of Rev. Albert Ehrig, pastor of the East Side Baptist church. She gives in his own words the story of the informer.)

By Sara Hard Field Ehrig. Los Angeles, Oct. 28.—"What I don't mean, I don't mean myself, my wife and my babies."

Thus Ortie McManigal, the self-confessed dynamiter, who will probably be the state's star witness in the McNamara trial, answered the visitor's inquiry as to whether he had made his confession for what he believed to be the good of organized labor or not.

Whatever faults he has, McManigal does not wish to assume the role of the hero. In regard to his conduct, he has no illusions about it; he claims no Joan of Arc inspiration or vision; he emphatically declares that his action was one of pure self-interest—a selfish interest that included his wife and children.

"When I see Mr. Burns," he continued, "and he faced me with all that evidence, I see that there was only one thing to do. He gave me 24 hours to think it over, but I didn't need that much time. I know which side my bread was buttered on, and so I just made a clean breast of it."

Burns Made No Promises. "Was I in the employ of Burns?" McManigal sat straight up and leaned forward a little, slowing up his speech like a railroad train arriving at an important station. "I never laid my eyes on Burns until he came to my house, and when I told him what I did he never made me no promises, either, except that my family shouldn't suffer. There was no compulsion and no promises."

"What was your idea in carrying on this program of alleged violence?" "Well, it was like this: I was influenced by ————, who's now a member of the executive committee of Iron Workers, to join in on the dynamiting business. The idea was that the destruction of property would bring some of the employers around to see the benefit of unionizing. It wasn't alone to hit the employers, either. Part of the program was to make the non-union men afraid to stay on their jobs. Of course, I was hit by the temptation they held out to make easy money, but they made me think I was doing it for the cause. I really believed I was till I got caught. Then I came to my senses."

"Mr. Lee, have you any prejudice against either side in this case?" began Judge Bordwell.

"Sir," asked the taleman, putting his hand to his left ear and bending forward.

"Have you any prejudice at all against either side in this case?" "I can't hear you quite."

"Are you at all hard of hearing?" "A little bit—just a little bit."

"How long have you been afflicted that way?" "Question Stirs Darrow. Now, that seemed an innocent question enough, but Darrow was angered and he came up with the promptitude of a jack in the box, and did everything in Red and vehement, he said: 'I object'

TRIAL OF M'NAMARA ONE LONG SUCCESSION OF SPUTTERINGS

By Edward H. Hamilton. (By the International News Service.) Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28.—The McNamara case went pitifully, peacefully and pettily today and wound up with Clarence Darrow issuing an appeal to the people from a ruling by Judge Bordwell.

The appeal to the people perhaps will now take the place of the appeal to the supreme court, since those people have just decided that technical hair splitting doesn't count any more.

In any event, the attorneys for the defense were quite sassy and there was a tone of derap all through the proceedings.

The judge had ordered court to convene at 9 o'clock and perhaps the ear-

ALONE IN THE COLD, COLD WORLD!

MRS. ALISKY SUES HUSBAND'S FATHER, MOTHER, FOR $150,000

Family When It Goes to Law Finds Son's Wife a Hard, Hard Fighter.

(Special to The Journal.) Oregon City, Oct. 28.—Another striking move in the Alisky divorce proceeding came this afternoon, when Clea Pearl Alisky, who a short time ago filed suit against Charles W. Alisky for a divorce and $250 a month alimony, $5000 suit money and $1000 attorney's fees, commenced a suit against her husband's parents, Charles A. and Caroline Alisky, for $150,000 damages. Mrs. Alisky declares she is entitled to this amount because her husband's parents are responsible for their estrangement.

In her complaint, filed this afternoon, she declares she lived happily with Charles W. Alisky for nearly a year after their marriage, or until they went to visit his parents. The parents, she avers, took a dislike to her from the first, and did everything in their power to cause an estrangement. They succeeded so far that he spent more time with them than he did with her, so she and her husband then agreed that she should attend the University of the Pacific at San Jose, Cal., and from this time on they always met secretly. She declares that he wrote her many affectionate letters, but that about a year after she had entered the university he sought to cause a separation through the influence of his parents, and did finally desert her during the present year and
