

PRESIDENT ENDS "WEST WINNING" SWING TO PACIFIC

Taft Says He Is Satisfied With Trip to Slope—Declares He Had Chance to Get Close to People.

(United Press Special Wire.)
Chicago, Oct. 29.—With a total of 23 states visited, 112 scheduled stops, and twice as many rear platform speeches, President William H. Taft ended today his "winning the west" trip. The president himself declares his satisfaction with the results of the tour, although the effect of the journey is still undecided.

It is estimated that city, village and town population aggregating 2,000,000 have entertained Mr. Taft on the tour, and that in those people he made 100 speeches on the seven following subjects: Peace, justice, conservation, agricultural improvements, tariff board, the trusts and the defense of the supreme court decisions in the oil and tobacco dissolution cases.

"Great Trip," Mr. Taft said today that it had been a great trip and that he had had an opportunity to get close to a great many people, as they had turned out in great numbers to hear what he had to say. The president said he had been able to tell the people much about his reasons for doing various things and for desiring to do various other things. On the whole, he said, the trip had been a great success.

The early speeches made by the president on his tour were of a conservative nature, but he went further as the trip progressed. The only speech which aroused real enthusiasm was that on international peace.

The admirers of the president claim that Mr. Taft was everywhere well received and that a down United States arbitration treaties have been converted to his side.

Attention of People Fixed.
Politicians claim that President Taft has succeeded in fixing the attention of the people on the next session of congress and believe that the accomplishments of that session will determine the president's political fate.

The president's tour will last 13 days longer. Tomorrow he will visit Pittsburgh and Morgantown, Pa. Wednesday he will be in West Virginia and Thursday he will take in the naval review in New York.

Sunday, November 1, President Taft will reach the White House after having been on the road 57 days.

Films Depict Round Up at Pendleton

The last stand of the old Wild West—the days of the typical cowboy and picturesque Indian—now fast passing away, is seen in the Pendleton Roundup, the second one of which took place this year, and the motion pictures of which have created such a sensation in this city, being the first of their kind ever shown here, or any place else, for that matter. As seen at the Bungalow theatre last week they drew such immense crowds the capacity of the playhouse was far inadequate to accommodate them, and it was finally decided to repeat them for the first three days of this week, opening this afternoon and continuing until Wednesday night.

This is positively the last chance to see the pictures in Portland. All the thrilling feats of horsemanship, the broncho busting, wild horse racing, cowboys in action, Indians dancing and parading, the roping, the cowgirls, the dangerous and blood-curdling "bull-dogging" feat, in which a cowboy throws a wild steer with his naked hands and holds the animal helplessly with his teeth gripped on its lip, are seen in these pictures just as they occurred in the remarkable exhibition at Pendleton. Performances start at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and run continuous until 11.

SILVER CROSS HALTS MADMAN'S DEATH BLOW

San Francisco, Oct. 29.—Rev. Father Charles Huss, rector of Corpus Christi church, owes his life today to a silver cross held before his face, which halted a sickle in the hand of Francesco Barletta, sexton of the church.

Barletta, a staunch Italian, is believed to have been driven insane by unfavorable reports from the Italian-Turkish war, over which he had been brooding. When he rushed at Father Huss the priest waved the cross aloft and the lunatic halted and dropped his weapon.

Another Chinatown Mystery.
San Francisco, Oct. 29.—The disapcontractor, Harry Olson, the woman's husband, who was also arrested Saturday for alleged threats made against Main, was also released on bail Sunday. John Larson and W. C. Olson put up the $400 bail for him.

Mr. Farnandis was not personally acquainted with the Olsons but his sympathy was aroused on learning of their hard luck in losing their suit after two juries had decided for them.

Detectives Guard Consulate.
(United Press Special Wire.)
San Francisco, Oct. 29.—Plain clothesmen are guarding the Chinese imperial consulate here today as a result of threats made on consul General Li Yung Tse to either recognize the Chinese republic or pack his trunk and leave San Francisco. The consul was threatened with bodily harm unless he hoisted the battle flag of the new republic. He stuck to his post.
