Chicago police station, where she is being held pending word from her father, a well-to-do farmer of Crown Point, Indiana.

When asked why she tried to commit suicide, brokenly she told this story: "Perhaps," she said, "it will be a warning to other girls who have more ideals than knowledge. When I was in high school I imagined my mission in life was to reform the world. I read of the sorrow and misery which came to so many. I thought I could help to relieve it. My parents didn't. They wanted me to stay in Crown Point, get married, and settle down to the same life that my mother had led. I'm sorry I didn't."

"I came. After two weeks of starvation I joined the White Cross mission. I found everything just as horrible as I supposed it would be, but I didn't find the work of betterment so easy. I discovered social service doesn't pay enough to live on. A good many times I went hungry. Eventually I decided to get outside work."

"I knew nothing of stenography, bookkeeping, or any other kind of business work. I could tell the exact amount of money spent in Berlin for philanthropic work in 1910, but that was about the limit of my accomplishments. I went to work in a box factory, and couldn't live on the wages. One day I woke up without a cent. That afternoon I went to work in a restaurant. It gives one a living, but that's all. I don't know why I tried to drown myself. I was just tired and dependent, and that water looked restful."

It would not be fair or just to hold up this case as typical or prophetic, it is merely illuminating.

Another girl has "gone and done it." She was a college girl fairly swamped with ideals. It is always that way, you know, when you are just out of college. She had taken a course in sociology, intending to enter settlement work. But somehow, she didn't take kindly to her or her ideals, and the other day, the water of Lake Michigan looked so restful to the disillusioned girl, that she jumped in. Somebody saw her leap, and she was dragged out and sent to the

To Make a Dry Shampoo Dry shampoos are all the rage now amongst society ladies and the more prominent stage beauties. Here is a formula much used in the east. It cleans, invigorates and stimulates the hair and scalp, while removing surplus oil, dust, dandruff, etc. Obtain any well stocked druggist six ounces of pulverized orange root, also obtain two ounces of vilane powder. Mix thoroughly and keep in a tight box or jar. Sprinkle a heaping tablespoonful over and through the hair, distributing with the fingers. Do this at night. Next morning comb and brush thoroughly until all trace of powder is removed. The results are a wonderful glossy, clean, soft and fluffy head of hair. Men use it fairly. Women one to three times a week.

A Clearing House for Women's Skill

An outlet for the enterprises of many Portland women, who are compelled to earn their own living or a portion of it, at least, and yet are obliged to remain at home, is offered in the Women's Exchange, 122 Fifth street.

These women become consignees, and there are more than 100 of them on the regular list of the Portland Exchange. They supply the exchange with all sorts of goods and art and needlework. Each article is entered in the name of the woman who makes it. A certain standard is fixed, up to which all articles, whether cakes, pies, bread or fancy work, must measure. The consignee charges a small commission for selling them.

On the other hand the exchange is a boon for many Portland women who can afford to buy but prefer "home made" goods. They can get just what they want. If the exchange does not have it on hand, an order will be placed for it with one of the regular consignees of the exchange.

Some of the energetic women of this city, who consign to the exchange make as much as $100 and $200 a year. It all depends on their enterprise and the quality of the things they make.

Before goods can be placed on sale at the exchange, consignees are required to first submit a written reference from some responsible person living in Portland stating that their circumstances make it necessary for them to dispose of their handwork.

The exchange is not self-supporting. If it were there would be no charity to it. The deficit in the expense account each year is met by contributions from some of the leading society women of the city who are interested in philanthropic work.

This deficit is reduced somewhat each year by means of the luncheons and afternoon teas served at the exchange.

October's Bright Blue Weather. O suns and skies and clouds of June, And flowers of June together, Ye cannot rival for one hour October's bright blue weather.

When loud the bumble-bee makes haste Related, thrifless, vagrant, And golden in the air, And lanes with grapes are fragrant:

When gentians roll their fringes tight To give them for the morning, And chestnuts fall from satin burrs Without a sound of warning:

When on the ground red apples lie In piles like jewels shining, And redder still the old stone walls Are leaves of woodbine twining:

When all the lovely wayside things Their white-winged seeds are sowing, And in the fields still green and fair, Late afternoons are growing:

When springs run low, and on the brooks In the golden freighting, Bright leaves sink noiseless in the hush Of woods, for winter waiting:

When comrades seek sweet country haunts By two and two together, And under hazy hours by hour, October's bright blue weather:

O suns and skies and flowers of June, Count all your hours together, Love loveth best of all the year October's bright blue weather. —Helen Hunt Jackson.

Stomach Misery Quickly Ended

Sourness, Gas, Heaviness, Heartburn Go in Five Minutes

Eat a hearty meal if you want to. Then take two MI-O-NA tablets and you'll wonder why that old stomach of yours is so quiet and comfortable. But if MI-O-NA was only a queller of stomach disturbance, it wouldn't be such a good medicine for you to put in your stomach. MI-O-NA tablets do more than give relief, they clean, renovate, put strength and elasticity into the stomach walls and build up the general condition of the stomach so that you can digest the heartiest meal for a reasonable length of time. It will even grow hair on bald heads if the scalp is not glazed and shiny. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and we mean it to be. In two weeks, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Guaranteed for indigestion, dizziness, biliousness, sleeplessness, sick headache, and all disease arising from a deranged stomach. Large box 50 cents at druggists everywhere. Free trial treatment and booklet from Booth's MI-O-NA, Buffalo, N. Y., who also fill mail orders on receipt of price.

Don't Be Bald

Almost Anyone May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair.

You can easily find out for yourself if your hair needs nourishment, if it is thinning, getting dry, harsh and brittle or splitting at the ends. You simply have to pull a hair from the top of your head and closely examine its root. If the bulb is plump and rosy it is all right; if it is white and shrunken your hair is diseased and needs nourishment.

We have a remedy for hair troubles that cannot be surpassed. It has a record of growing hair and curing baldness in 90 out of 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. In the Kitchen

The Crust—Take six tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt and two tablespoons of lard, and enough milk to make a stiff paste to roll over. Handle as little as possible. Bake from 20 to 30 minutes. This is invariably good. I cover rolls but not pies at a time. By that I mean, should I want ten, I make both crusts in separate mixings.

Unfermented Grape Wine—To four pounds of grapes add three pints of water. Boil until the skins are tender and broken. Strain as for jelly. Add sugar and a quarter pound of white sugar; then boil 10 minutes. Bottle in air tight bottles while very hot. This formula has been used for more than 20 years in making the communion wine for churches of which I am a member. There will be no possibility of failure if the directions are followed.

Eye Bread—Two cups eye meal, four cups white flour (bread), one cup milk.

How to Safely Peel Your Face From Beauty Culture. If you have a muddy, yellow or blotchy complexion, the most sensible thing to do is to remove it—rather than to patch it over or "doctor" it with any cosmetics, rouge or lotions. The only way to really remove the complexion—aside from resorting to an expensive and painful surgical operation—is by means of ordinary macerated wax.

Spread the wax over the face, as you would cold cream, washing it off in the morning. This gradually absorbs the lifelike and the half-dead outer skin, in minute, almost invisible particles—and gradually the fresh young skin beneath bears forth. Then you have a clear, smooth, velvety, healthy-hued complexion, such as no unnatural method can possibly produce.

Surface defects due to weather, illness or the ravages of time, of course disappear with the discarded skin. Ask the druggist for an ounce of pure macerated wax; this is usually sufficient.

Wax: For your weak, tired, dull eyes, you need a good strengthening tonic. If you will get from your druggist an ounce of crysine and dissolve it in a pint of water, then put a few drops in each eye once or twice a day, your eyes will soon be clear of all inflammation, feel strong and be bright and sparkling. This tonic is splendid for crumpled eyelids and wrinkles which did not seem to be there. The use of this simple tonic has enabled many to dispense with wearing glasses.

J. E. You are only one of the millions who have wasted many dollars on merely perfumed hair tonics which did no good except to enrich the manufacturer.
