

BERLIN MACHINE WORKS FACTORY NOW IS ASSURED

President of Beloit Company After Viewing Site Is Satisfied—Main Details Closed—To Rush Work.

Porter B. Yates, president of the Berlin Machine Works, Beloit, Wis., left for home last night after having viewed the most important details for the construction of the company's Pacific coast branch factory in this city. He expressed himself more than pleased with the arrangements, the site and the location of the plant here will mean a big step in the right direction for industrial Portland, and while Mr. Yates would not commit himself as to the amount of capital that will be involved in the first cost of the plant, it is considered safe to estimate that it will represent all of $100,000. The machine shops will contain some of the very finest of machinery for the manufacture of delicate machinery and tools used in the woodworking industry. While here Mr. Yates was a very busy man, as he desired to make all arrangements for commencement of work on the construction of the plant as quickly as possible. Before leaving last night he made a statement to The Journal, showing that the plant will manufacture the machinery not only for the Pacific coast trade, but also for oriental and Australian distribution. This will mean that Portland will receive some very extensive advertising throughout the world where woodworking machinery is now being used, or where it will be introduced. Everything Satisfactory. Speaking of the new plant, Mr. Yates said: "I have spent the day going over the various contracts concerning our property with my attorney, Richard W. Montague, and everything is satisfactory, and just as soon as the deeds are forwarded, after Mr. Montague has completed the search of the title, we shall take possession, and have the Lewis Wiley hydraulic company begin the fill on the property. We anticipate this will take about four months to complete, and we shall then begin at once the erection of our buildings. It will take from six to nine months to complete these in all probability. We shall build in the best possible manner. The buildings will be of pressed brick and steel construction, similar to our Beloit plant. Much of our work is so line that it requires the best of light for our workmen, and the buildings will be set forth in style. The preliminary sketches prepared by our Chicago architect provide for an artistic treatment of the whole plant. We shall build our three units facing upon St. Helens road, generally known as the Linn-Young boulevard. There will be several buildings to the group and as necessarily arises for management we shall extend our buildings to the north toward where the tracks from the railroad come in. The switch tracks will enter our property from the front. The front will be laid out to artistic taste and modern, inasmuch as all our machines are motor driven. It will make an unusually clean and attractive factory plant. As to the extent of our plant I am not prepared to say. Further than this, that we shall build just as large as the business warrants. We shall handle not only the Pacific coast business from here, I mean manufacture for the coast trade from here, but we shall also manufacture for large western business from Portland. We have a large distributing plant in Sydney, Australia, now, and we shall manufacture for them here at Portland. Our other branches are located at Seattle, Spokane, Vancouver, B. C., San Francisco, Montreal, Hamilton, Ont., New York, Boston, Atlanta, New Orleans, Chicago. Skilled Labor. "As to the possibilities as to the amount of business which we may do, and which may determine the size of our buildings here, it is significant that right now when the lumber business is generally conceded to be in the doldrums, we are having to run some of our departments night and day to keep up with our orders. The reason for this lies in the rapid development in the last few months of modern mill machinery, and an up to date mill cannot afford to run machines which have a capacity only one quarter as great as the latest models. "We employ very largely skilled labor in our plants. Some of this we shall have to bring with us undoubtedly. At least we shall bring all the reads of departments from one or the other of our western plants. We shall have to bring our machinery from the east as well. Some of this, probably some six carloads, is special machinery which we shall construct for ourselves at our Beloit plant. It will be shipped here in our own private cars, specially constructed for our purposes, and of which we have between 100 and 200 on the road. These will later be used for distributing our product from Portland. We prefer to place our machines in the care ourselves. It saves breakage. It will give you some little idea of what this means when I tell you that we buy the spikes to clasp our machines to the floors of the cars in carload lots." Rewards Offered for "Dynamiters." (United Press Special Wire.) Santa Barbara, Cal., Oct. 21.—Rewards aggregating $10,000 today are offered by the Southern Pacific company for the apprehension of the persons who placed dynamite in the frogs of a switch at Elwood station, a few miles north of here.

MUSICAL ACT IS ORPHEUM TOPLINER

"The Courtiers" Carries Cast of Ten People—Piano-logue Feature.

Most pretentious is "The Courtiers," the musical act presented by R. A. Hoff with a cast of 10 people at the Orpheum this week. The act carries a handsome special set and the costumes are elaborately designed in the latest fashion and powdered wigs. The musical numbers are attractively introduced with well planned action. The most pleasing feature was the ensemble of brass and string. Vocal solos, dance and variety were scored and the curtain falls on a grand finale of orchestral music. Tom Nawn, delightfully Irish, and his company take care of the dramatic end of the bill in "When Pat Was King," by James Marlin. The sketch is built on the theme of reminiscence with funny situations, bright, snappy lines. Mr. Nawn is thoroughly enjoyable with his snipe a big asset. He is well assisted by Mrs. Nawn, Fessie, Richard and Frank. The most charming act on the bill was a simple little piano-logue offered by Miss Jane Boynton whose very lively personality would make her a favorite anywhere. Miss Boynton has an unusually good voice, good looks and the discernment to do just enough and have just enough in her act to make it just right. The Apington Four, dancing and singing messenger boys, are back again as popular as ever. Their quartet numbers were special favorites and their dancing features won much applause. An act which scored heavily was the bicycle turn given by Mosher, Hayes and Mosher. As usual the colored member of the trio was the comedian. The men can ride and finish the act with whirling acrobatics on one bicycle that was remarkably good. Their recall was a distinct success. Kramer and Spillans open the bill with herculean athletic with some startling features. A remarkable feat was the last one they performed. Roy Cummings and Helen Gladings, eccentric funsters, disport themselves in songs and dances before an attractive setting of their own. A number of changes in costume are made. The bill is closed with motion pictures of the fine stock exhibited at the Oregon state fair at Salem.

"GIVEN UP" BY DOCTORS MAN CURES HIMSELF

Harry Corson Clarke, who played at Portland about 15 years ago as comedian in various companies, and who left America later to take up his profession in England, is again in the city with Mrs. Clarke, but only as a tourist. Mr. Clarke, a few years ago was given up to die by physicians. He was suffering from acute stomach trouble. He had been unable to eat for several months. He began drinking beer and soon became able to eat again. He does not know how he got over that sort of a diet. He says he knows that he ate nothing else for two years and that he got well. "The first meal I enjoyed after two years of milk and leafy vegetable diet," said Mr. Clarke, "was the dinner this morning. I came up here and immediately after I arrived I felt as good as if I had begun to live again. As I ordered a salad first. It was fine—most of the best salad I ever tasted. Since then I have been able to eat whatever I desired. And I weigh 145 pounds. Then I weighed 55. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke have just returned from England.

BABY FALLS HEAD FIRST INTO WATER JAR; DROWNS

Clayton C. Wainwright, Boston, Mass., 15 months old child was playing out in the yard it fell into a 18 gallon jar which contained about one gallon of water and was drowned. The child was evidently trying to get into the water when it fell head first into the jar and was dead before it was discovered by its parents.

WOULD CARRY SIGN ADVOCATING HEAT IN THE STREETCARS

"To force girls to ride to work in cold cars is murder." City auditor S. L. Barber has ready written to have the banner carried around the block during the forenoon. The letter is given to the "Jayhawk" Wholesale company. The address is given as 315 Worcester building. The letter states that the company wishes to have the banner carried around the block during the forenoon, Sixth, Seventh and Washington streets. No permit is necessary. The petitioner may have the banner carried without the permission of any official. The city auditor thought the strings request might have been intended as a joke. "However," said he, "I call attention to an unpleasant fact, and that is that the streetcars should be heated on these cold mornings."
