

MINERAL SURVEY OF ALASKA COMPLETED

Although the government did not have the money to complete the survey of the Alaska coal fields, it is now in the way to his home at Long Beach, Cal.

"We have been in the field since early June," said Mr. Huggins at the close of the survey. "There were three years and we went over the entire coal district of Alaska. There is coal all over it. But we are not permitted to talk about it. The government's report will be issued within the next year, probably. Until then we are restricted to general statements on the subject."

When asked as to the feelings of the people in Alaska concerning the completion of the coal lands, Mr. Huggins was extremely reluctant to speak. He said that the residents are really up in arms against the government's policy. They are not willing to let their ill feelings go unexpressed and his party, said Mr. Huggins, "may, at this time, be a bit of a deluge of people waiting on the boat. It was not considered safe for him to disembark."

Asked about the harbor conditions at Contractor Bay, Mr. Huggins said they were very poor.

"There is a bar there that prevents vessels coming except when the tide is right. This occasions considerable delay and inconvenience. Besides, it seems to be a favorite spot for the wind to blow in and other conditions render it an unfavorable location for a harbor."

"Cordova, Ketchikan and all other inside harbors are easy of access. This is because of the inside passage. There is plenty of deep water and bars are infrequent."

Mr. Huggins says he was surprised to learn that vegetables grow in enormous size and luxuriance in Alaska.

"Why, I have seen rutabagas and turnips grow to nearly three feet in height and the vegetables themselves were six or seven inches across," he said. "Potatoes do not grow to a great size, but they are of excellent quality." The survey did not include mineral claims other than coal and was made for the purpose of obtaining reliable data on the coal situation.

Guillem Douglas Flood $100. (Special to the Journal.) Eugene, Or., Nov. 2.—After having attended college in visiting the local section at the Oregon Agricultural college, Douglas Flood, a student here, was yesterday fined $100 by Judge Hinkle of the circuit court. According to the evidence gathered by District Attorney Brown, Douglas was only technically guilty in that the sale of liquor was made at his store by a clerk without the proprietor's knowledge. Douglas is a prominent member of the Methodist church and was at the station conference at the time it was alleged that his clerk, Frank Myr, sold the liquor. Myr was fined $100.

Cottolene

A friend of Appetite and Digestion

Cottolene agrees with the stomach because it contains no indigestible hog fat. It is made from choice, refined cotton oil, which modern physicians recommend as being fully as healthful as olive oil. Goes one-third farther than butter or lard.

For shortening or frying there's nothing to equal Cottolene—

Laxative Cough Syrup Cures When All Fail

Make It at Home.

This fine recipe when prepared at home is said to make the sweet acting cough cure from time and child, for has cured many in 5 hours by the clock. Fine for a gripe, colds, sore throat, whooping cough, croup, of old people, too. Any one can easily make it at home—a full pint costing less than 10 cents. Obtain a 2 1/2 ounce package of essence mentho-laxene and make it into a pint of syrup by following simple directions contained in package. You make the syrup of granulated sugar and water, 10 drops daily create a laxative action of the bowels and cough and cold are soon cured as the poisons are carried out of the system. It relieves the tightest cough in one hour and cures the chronic cough of old people quicker and easier than anything ever heard of; while it is just fine for children's coughs, as they like it, and by its laxative tonic effect it prevents pneumonia, fever and other complications of colds.

Those in this city who have tried it, think it is the best thing ever discovered to relieve and cure throat and lung troubles.

Here is the formula:

Essence mentho-laxene . . . 2 1/2 ozs.

Granulated sugar syrup . . . 12 ozs.

Compared with labeled syrups you save $2 or $4 by making at home.
