Aground at Entrance to Port

(Special to The Journal.) Seattle, Nov. 6.—While entering Port Blakeley this morning the British steamer Hillcrag, formerly the Bannockburn, ran aground on reefs at the entrance and is held fast. The vessel has 8000 tons, mostly lumber, aboard, and it is believed she is in a serious position. The cause of the mishap is not apparent, as the ship was but a few feet out of the channel and the weather was clear. The revenue cutter Tahoma and tugs have gone to her assistance and scows have been dispatched to

The mishap occurred on an ebb tide, and as there is a long run out with a fall of 12 feet, it is thought the steamer will be seriously damaged, although rush work is being done to lighter her. No high tide occurs until early tomorrow, and it is not thought efforts in the meantime to pull her off will be

She arrived from Europe in September on her maiden voyage, and discharged part cargo at that time at Portland. Last March while outward bound from Antwerp for this coast, she was in a collision in the British channel and was beached to prevent her sinking. Repairs took three months, after which the interrupted voyage was resumed.

After arrival on this coast, the Bannockburn was sold and her name changed. She had taken part cargo at Bellingham and Everett and was to complete at Blakeley.

Cameron Says More Entanglements for Wilde Have Been Disclosed by Former Cashier of Bank That Failed.

W. Cooper Morris returned to Salem this morning to reenter the penitentiary after three weeks spent in Portland in inspecting the books of the Oregon Trust & Savings bank, of which he was once cashier. He was sentenced to six years' imprisonment for embezziement of funds from the bank, and was recently called to Portland to assist the district attorney's office in preparing the evidence for the trial of Louis J.

Wilde on January 2.
District Attorney Cameron this morn ing said that Morris has done "fine work" in scanning the books. He is not prepared to disclose what has been found, he says, but intimated that the examination by the former cashier has revealed new transactions for the entanglement of Wilde. He says a mass of papers has been gone over and Mor-ris has thrown light upon them that will be exceedingly valuable to the state in the trial of Wilde.

Morris and Wilde are jointly indicted Morris and Wilde are jointly indicted on the charge of embezzing $90,000 from the bank through the sale of Home Telephone bonds to the bank by Wilde. They are alleged to have divided that sum as "plunder." Morris is to be a witness for the state in the trial of District Attorney Cameron says Mor-ris will be needed again before Janu-ary. Just when he will return to Port-land, or for how long, the district at-torney will not say. But he repels the insinuation that Morris has been merely loitering in luxury the past three weeks. He says the former banker has been at work on the books, digging up the facts needed for the forthcoming trial. Morris has been living at one of the leading hotels on Washington

Jay Bowerman has been employed by Wilde to assist in the defense. His chief counsel is Dan J. Malarkey. Wilde is back in Portland, prepared to remain until after the trial. He declares he is unalarmed by the reports concerning Morris' inspection of the books and holds to his earlier intimation that he will uncover some interesting things as to the motives of those behind the present prosecution.
