

FLINGS OF COUNSEL BRING REPRIMAND FROM TRIAL JUDGE

Bordwell Sharply Reproves Scott, of Defense, for Saying His Associate Had Been Discriminated Against.

(United Press Special Wire.) Portland, Nov. 14.—Scott, who is accused of the murder of Mrs. J. J. Scott, was sharply reprimanded by Judge Bordwell today for saying his associate had been discriminated against.

As the result of the morning session another reprimand was given to Scott. When William J. Andre, a carpenter, and although Attorney Davis, examining the defense, strove desperately to disqualify him, the objections of the district attorney, sustained by Judge Bordwell, prevented any ground being gained.

Scott's reprimand by the court followed an objection by Fredericka, who had argued that the record in the case was the best of a question of law. Davis declared that he was unable to get the evidence in, not to have the record of the investigation of jurors written up by the stenographer.

More angry than at any time since the trial began, Judge Bordwell rapped sharply for order and, addressing Scott, said:

"I am not going to allow counsel to fling charges of this nature against the court. I will not tolerate it. Proceed with your examination."

Andre then tried to find out whether the court would give McNamara the presumption of innocence, but Fredericka objected and was sustained. He then asked Andre whether, if he had heard all of the evidence and he still had a doubt of the guilt of the defendant, although the other 11 men were convinced of his guilt, he will refuse to vote to convict merely to reach an agreement.

"If I believed I was right you would find me at the same place, I guess," Andre said. He asked for an elaboration of this answer the state objected and Judge Bordwell sustained the objection, saying:

"Mr. Davis, the court never heard a more complete and fair answer to a question."

It was plain throughout the entire morning proceedings that Judge Bordwell was desirous of hurrying the case along and in many instances the objections of the district attorney, and the court's rulings sustaining them, were promulgated before the attorneys for the defense had completed the question.

When the luncheon recess was ordered Darrow was interrogating G. H. Elliott, 35, a retired gardener.

(Special to The Journal.) Portland, Nov. 14.—Frederick Manthey, arrested on a charge of abducting a woman, is expected to appear in court today. He is believed to be in the custody of the Portland police.

"I guess I must have gone to sleep on the job," Manthey said. "I don't know whether I was trying to land, or a mystery even to me. If I was trying to land, I would say I don't remember it, but I don't remember any particular trouble with the engine. The machine and the engine were all going out before I started. I know it, but I don't want to disappoint the crowd at Long Beach. I know my mechanics are not to blame, because they are among the most efficient in the United States."

East Siders Appeal for New Auditorium

"Help us to drive out privilege and equalize opportunity," is the appeal made to Mayor Rusklight this morning in a communication from the East Side Business Men's club, advocating the location of the proposed new public auditorium on the east side.

The communication states that the site at Morrison and Twentieth streets advocated by some auditorium enthusiasts would not serve the greatest number of people and that the auditorium might as well be built in the Tuaslin valley as on the site named.

WOMAN BELIEVED TO BE WILY PICKPOCKET TO WATCH "BIG" CAFES

There is no good to be obtained by making the little fellows the "goal," while the big places are allowed all the clover. This was the opinion of Presiding Judge Gatens of the circuit court this morning in passing upon the case brought against R. B. Pomeroy, proprietor of the Turnwater cafe at West Park and Morrison streets, for selling liquor without a permit. The judge dismissed the case after sending word to the police department to pick up the little saloon men, and go after the big ones.

STORY OF WONDERFUL TIMBER GROWTH LOD

The story of the growth of the wonderful timber of the Oregon coast country is vividly told in the current number of the American Lumberman, Chicago, devoted to the interests of the lumber industry in all its branches. The article is more particularly descriptive of the immense logging and lumber manufacturing plants of the C. A. Smith Lumber & Manufacturing company at Marshfield, Coos Bay, but at the same time is a wonderful exploitation of the lumber resources of the state. The article, covering exactly 100 pages, is profusely illustrated with photographs, showing the magnificent old growth fir timber in the Coos Bay districts, as well as gigantic cedars of the red and Port Orford varieties, and also panoramic views of the mountainous country densely covered with forests representing millions upon millions in natural wealth. Some pictures show the stand of timber so dense that it is barely possible to walk between trees measuring seven or eight feet in diameter. Port Orford or white cedar logs are shown that were felled nearly 50 years ago and left on the ground, yet when cut into with an ax found in perfect preservation. It is said to be a fact that no decayed timber of this variety was ever found. One photograph shows a spruce log 11 feet in diameter.

INSANITY EXPERTS NOTE PECULIARITIES OF EDITOR

(United Press Special Wire.) Stockton, Cal., Nov. 11.—Henry Ellis, well known Lodi fruit man and former editorial writer in the employ of S. B. Axtell on the Lodi Sentinel, was on the stand at the opening of today's session of the Axtell murder trial. Axtell is charged with the murder of C. Sollars. The defense is attempting to introduce evidence that Sollars gave L. V. Peterson of the Stockton Record a story indirectly concerning Axtell with the intent of using the item as a means of poking fun at the Lodi publisher. Ellis testified that he was present when Sollars had the conversation with Peterson.

A third man escaped. W. E. Think and John LaRosa, pugilists, were seen fined $10 this morning on a drunk and disorderly charge.
