OUICK SHOT HITS

Dr. F. E. Smith Returns Fire of Assassin With Accuracy That Brings a Yell.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., Nov. 20.—Two pistol shots from the darkness of a clump of brush near the institute for feeble minded startled Dr. F. E. Smith, superintendent, as he was starting for the city in an automobile about 8 o'clock Saturday night. One bullet pierced his glove and the other mined entirely. Three rapid shots were returned in the direction of the flash and the doctor heard a man cry out.

Thinking he had killed his assailant he hastened to town, where he got officers and returned to the scene of the shooting, to find the pistol which he had shor out of the man's hand. The bullet had struck the cylinder of the revolver and shattered the handle of the gun. No further trace has been

Dr. Smith declares the affair a total mystery. The coincidence of his having in the past three weeks received four threatening letters probably bears some connection. The first three letters contained simple threats and abuse, but the fourth demanded that money be placed near a sign post on the railroad. These letters may have been written by an inmate with a mania or a grieyance but it would have been difficult for the patient to have got letters mailed in town.

It is entirely possible, says Dr. Smith, that the affair was a simple holdup and that he failed to hear the command of the thug. The auto was making s and the path was dimmed by the nud on the headlight. The man who did the shooting was not over 15 feet from the automobile.

Dr. Smith discredits the story that convicts were responsible for the shoot ing. He says he has 14 men working at the institute 11, of whom are re-liable and steady. Sam Broger, who has been missing several days, was displeased because he had to work around the dairy barn. Smith does not think Broger would deliberately plan

4000 SHEEP HEMMED IN

John Day, Or., Nov. 20 .- After being 10 days in the snow without food or water and blinded by drifting snow that makes return to the trail almost impossible, 4000 sheep belonging to James Small of Mount Vernon, are in imminent danger of perishing on the divide between the head of Murderer's creek and the John Day river. The sheep in two bands of 2000 each and under charge of inexperienced herders, were caught in a blinding storm week before last and allowed to drift half a mile down the mountains from the regular trail.

After a few ineffectual efforts to get them back to the trail, the herders left the sheep and walked 15 miles to the ranch for help. The following day was stormy and the rescue party failed to reach the sheep. The third day the party reached the sheep and six days' efforts have proven ineffectual. Latest reports from the cemp are that the sheep are eating wool and that unless the rescue is effected in a short time the less will be enormous.

WIFE'S PLEADING WINS: COURT RELEASES MATE

With tears streaming down her face. as she pleaded for the release of her husband, in order that he might support her and three children, one of whom has just recovered from a long siege of scarlet fever. Mrs. Frank Lerald this morning appeared before Judge Taswell in her husband's behalf, and secured the suspension of a 360-day sentence imposed on a larceny charge.

Herald was arrested early yesterday morning at East Eleventh and Sherman streets by Patrolman Jones, as he walked up the street with two grips in his hands. One contained plasteres' tools and the other belonged to Dr. W. W. Bruce, and contained his instruments, which had been stolen from the doctor at Grand avenue and Hawthorne while he was waiting to take a car. In court this morning Herald said he found both grips at the street corner and was taking them for safe keeping. Modern School Lecture. "The Origin and Evolution of Re-

OLD TIME OFFENDER

Harry Clark, Alias Ray.

Harry Clark, alias Ray, with a criminal record in Portland as room thief and burglar, and with a record of two years at the rockpile, and a year at the state penitentiary, was arrested this norning by Detectives Coleman and Snow at Second and Burnside streets as a robber suspect, Clark is known to have robbed a cook employed by a Mrs. Campbell at 735 Hoyt street, on October 20, when he stole a watch, a suit of clothes, and a pair of shoes. He is also known to have robbed two rooms at the Oxford hotel at Sixth and Oak streets.

The police have a record of numerous other robberies believed to have been committed by Clark, and are now investigating them before formally chargng him with the robbery.

On December 26, 1908, he was arrested for the first time in Portland by Detectives Mallett and Craddock for the theft of carpenter tools and was sentenced to 90 days. On July 13, 1909, he was given a year for robbing his room mate. Smith also served two years at Salem for a robbery committed at Roseburg.

REPORTED MURDERED

SEATTLE'S BROKEN WATER PIPES WILL SOON BE REPAIRED

with the water sweeping down, carrying away bridges and flooding Renton's streets, the people spent a day of panic. They rushed in disorder to the hills at 8:30 a. m., but soon returned. The second scare occurred at 3:30 p. m., when similar scenes were enacted. The afternoon report was that the water at Cedar mountain had risen four feet in 40 minutes. The alarm proved groundless, although the 'torrential stream continued to rise gradually until last evening, practically all the lowland por-tion of Renton being flooded. This morning the water is receding and Renton is over its fright.

Worst Water in Five Years. This flood is the worst since the memorable high water of 1906. Near Renton the Columbia & Puget Sound, Milwaukee and Northern Pacific's belt line bridges were threatened, driftwood piling against them adding to the dan-ger. Dynamite was used to break the jams and the Northern Pacific bridge, which was in the greatest danger, is still standing.

The Cedar river dam, furnishing Seattle's light and water, is reported intact this morning, and is said to be in no great danger. It stands on an elevation of more than 3000 feet. With nine feet of water thundering ever it, it stood firm and solid. This surplus, together with melting snows in the foothills, caused all the trouble.

STREAMS CENTERING AT TACOMA GOING DOWN: CLEAR WEATHER RELIEF

Tacoma, Nov. 20.—Clear weather brought relief today from what threat-ened to be the worst flood for years. The Puyallup river, which slopped over its banks and did great damage last night, is going down and all streams centering here are receding. McMillan,

FOUR N. P. BRIDGES GO; SLIDES, WASHOUTS, HIGH WATER, BREAK SERVICE

(Special to The Journal.) Ellensburg, Wash., Nov. 20.—Flood enditions are worse in the Cascades this morning than they were yester-day morning and railroad officials hold out little hope for an early resumption of train service. The night was warm in the mountains and a phone message from Easton states that the creeks and rivers are coming up fast.

Four bridges are gone on the Northern Pacific. The steel bridge at Lester is four feet out of plumb, the con-crete bridge at Maywood is useless, the bridge at Hot Springs is gone and at Eagle Gorge there is a log jam which is assuming threatening proportions. Dynamite is being used.

At Martin, near the east portal of the Stampeds tunnel, the track has slid out to a depth of 60 feet. Pile drivers, steam shovels and crews of section men from points as far east as Spokane have been rushed to the scene. All west-bound through trains are being detoured at Pasco to the North Bank road. Two local trains a day are handling the busi-ness between Pasco and Easton, where westbound trains are turned back. There is no hope for train service for several

The Milwaukee is detouring its trains at Lind to the Northern Pacific and then operating over the North Bank to Portland, then up to Seattle. All service west of Lind has been temporarily abandoned. Bad rock slides are reported at Rockdale and Laconia, with a village on the Puyaliup, was threatchanging its course yesterday and a mass meeting secured powder to blow
