

IN THE REALM FEMININE

Mrs. Gates Gives Bridge.

CHARMING impetus to the social week was given yesterday by Mrs. G. Walter Gates when she invited guests to enjoy an afternoon of bridge and tea with her at the Rowers. Nine tables were arranged in the tea room which was brilliant with clusters of shaggy yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Thomas Scott Brooke, Mrs. Oscar Menefee, Mrs. J. Ernest Laidlaw, Mrs. James A. Dougherty, Mrs. James D. Honeyman, Mrs. John C. Lewis, Mrs. Albert Feldenhelm, Mrs. Inez Barrett proved themselves the successful contestants in the games. Mrs. Gates also extended her hospitality to a considerable number who came in for tea. Many stunning gowns and chapeaux were worn by the guests. Invited were Mrs. John K. Rollock, Mrs. William Warren, Mrs. K. A. J. Mackenzie, Mrs. Robert Wilson Forbes, Mrs. Charles F. Beebe, Mrs. James A. Dougherty, Mrs. John C. Lewis, Mrs. William MacMaster, Mrs. Morris H. For Bride-Elect.

Mrs. Fielding Kelly was hostess at a luncheon today in honor of Miss Gladys Felt, the sister of Mrs. Sanderson Reed, whose marriage will be an event of December 2. The guests at the luncheon today were Miss Felt, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Thomas Robertson, Mrs. Edmund Lincoln Devereaux and Miss Marion Jackson. Tomorrow afternoon Miss Jackson is complimenting Miss Felt with a matinee party and on Friday Mrs. C. A. Bell will be a luncheon hostess for her.

Luncheon for Miss Beals.

Miss Nancy Beals was the honored guest at a luncheon given yesterday by Miss Agnes Corcoran. During the afternoon Mrs. Raymond Sullivan (Miss Elizabeth Harwas) delighted the guests with her singing as did Miss Carmel Sullivan and Miss Irene Studly. Those who made up the party were Mrs. Sullivan, Mrs. D. Gildner, Miss Irene Flynn, Miss Mary Monks, Miss May Jessop, Miss Jennings, Miss Loretta Quinn, Miss Carmel Sullivan and Miss Studly.

O. E. S. Invitations.

The O. E. S. club has issued attractive invitations for a dancing party to be given, December 4, in Masonic Temple. The patronesses for the event are Mrs. J. P. Menefee, Mrs. H. T. Donivan, Mrs. R. Schaefer, Mrs. Paul Chamberlin, Mrs. E. B. Guerin and Miss S. E. Enos. The members of the club are Miss Margaret Howatson, Miss Eleanor Menefee, Miss Edith Schaefer, Miss Mabel Beckett, Miss Josephine Stapleton, Radford Shawcross, Thomas Coyer, Frank Guerin and John H. MacGregor.

Oregon City Item.

Most entertaining and delightful was the 500 party given last Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Dr. L. G. Ice of Oregon City at their residence on Eleventh and High streets. The grand prize was awarded to G. B. Gerritson and the second was given to Miss Jennie Kelly. The house was beautifully decorated and refreshments were served after the enjoyable games. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Vatcher, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Tietze, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Reddick, Mr. and Mrs. G. Gerritson, Miss Jennie Kelly, F. S. Bradley and Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Ice.

Random Notes.

Mrs. C. A. Dotph, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Hazel Dotph, is leaving this evening for a stay of three weeks in California. Miss Ella Parker of Seattle, who has been the house guest of Miss Irene Flynn for a week, is returning today to her home. Mrs. C. W. Sherman, who has been in the east and abroad for the last year and a half, arrived in Portland on Friday and for the present is the guest of Mrs. P. L. Willis. Mr. and Mrs. Newton Bissinger have taken apartments at the Carlton for the remainder of the month until they

12 SUFFRAGETTES JOIN WILSON CLUB

Fair Coeds of Stanford Are Admitted to Membership in National League.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 21.—Twelve fair coeds at Stanford were admitted to membership in the National Woodrow Wilson League of College Men at a meeting held on the Stanford campus. The supporters of the candidacy of Woodrow Wilson for president met and laid aside their books long enough to organize a Wilson club as a branch of the National League of College Men, now being formed in the universities throughout the country by the adherents of Governor Wilson. The by-laws of the Stanford club, which provide for a membership of "men only," had to be stretched when 12 suffragettes appeared at the meeting called to launch the club and demanded to be admitted. Since the ballot was put into the hands of California women the Stanford coeds determined to storm the meeting and see if they were really as democratic as they professed. They won out.

Then, just to show the feminine division that there was no "front," the office section of the club elected to the office of vice president Miss Felita Mary Smith, a German "major" from Fresno. Miss Smith is an active member of the Stanford Women's league, and gives promise of setting a hot pace for the men workers of the organization. It is a matter of conjecture what action will be taken by the national organization when a mixed delegation from Stanford seeks affiliation. Since the Stanford coeds determined to storm the meeting and see if they were really as democratic as they professed. They won out.

PERSONALS

Justice of the Peace Fred L. Olson, who has been suffering from fever for several days, is reported as feeling much easier at his home. The fever is the result of overwork and fears were held at first that it might develop into typhoid. The fever is receding and he expects to be back on the bench within a week. W. W. Part of the entertainment for the bankers while in the south will be a trip to Panama and an inspection of the Panama canal. Mr. Alnsworth expected to be a member of the party that will visit the canal.

PASSENGERS LAUGH AND THE LAUGH IS ON THE CONDUCTOR

Many who have taken the street conductor's number on a certain Montavilla car and threatened to have him discharged, to say nothing of the times they have inwardly sworn at him and looked scornfully upon him, will now laugh a rich, ravenous laugh and clap their hands in unholly glee. For conductor No. 104 on Montavilla car No. 146 has met his Waterloo. Not that conductor No. 144 is any wiser than the rest of them; not that he is any more maligned than other conductors; it's merely because he is a conductor. Anyway, this morning the crowd was particularly peevish. He told them to "step up in front" until they would have to crawl up the wall if they did. "What's the matter up there?" he yelled. "Somebody in front got the smallpox!" The crowd howled when the car reached Grand avenue and East Ankeny street. Most of the passengers alighted. There was a considerable jam. The conductor jerked the bell, the car started, and No. 104 reached for his watch. The car was a trifle late. The watch—and this is the climax—was missing. The crowd—one member of it had maliciously picked it from its resting place. It was a good watch, too. Hence the laugh.

HOW MOTHERS ARE SELFISH

Written for The Journal by Darra More. HE WAS a fine, clean cut, ambitious young man. He lived with his parents in a southern town, and was the light of their hearts. Being a boy, his mother was especially devoted to him. And, being a boy with normal ideas, he fell in love with a pretty young girl and wished to marry her. The wedding day was fixed for November first. The bride to be was preparing her trousseau. But the young man was facing a terrible problem, a problem that he could not solve. His parents opposed his marriage. They said he was too young. He must wait. They were old. They needed him. They loved him. He must remain with them and give up the girl he loved. One night there was a bitter scene in the disrupted home. Afterward, as the young man lay in bed, he could hear the anguished sobs of his mother. But in his heart was the face of the beautiful young girl that he loved. All night he wrestled with his problem. And the next morning they found him stark and cold with the muzzle of a shotgun in his mouth. He couldn't choose between mother and sweetheart, and he—committed suicide. Parents often make mistakes when they oppose the marriage of their sons. When a young man has reached an age when he is self-supporting, as this young man was, it is time for him to

Fads and Fashions

New York, Nov. 21.—Notwithstanding the often repeated prophecy that blouses would soon be a thing of the past, they continue season after season to retain their popularity. It is true, blouses have to some extent changed their character during recent years, but their greater beauty and elegance has in no way seriously interfered with their usefulness. As in former seasons blouses are still an important factor in every well dressed woman's wardrobe. It was to be expected that in a large measure the kimono waist of the summer would be supplanted with the beginning of the cold season by the long-sleeved and high necked waist or blouse. After having stoutly insisted for several seasons past that only through a blouse matching the coat and skirt in color could a two-piece costume be saved, Paris women have gone to the other extreme, this season, by adopting with enthusiasm white and cream colored blouses. But these blouses are chiefly of one particular kind, the models of fine net, daintily embroidered, wrought with fine hand tucks, sometimes lace trimmed. These have taken the place of the fine lingerie blouse and are worn by Parisiennes even with the heaviest of wool or velvet suits, offsetting to some extent the excessive warmth of the woolly and furry and fleecy materials which the tailors are exploiting this fall. These net blouses most often open in front under some sort of frill, though this is not obligatory and an appearance of front opening is often combined with an actual back opening. The sleeves are invariably long, with cuffs of some sort, possibly only tucked around the arm and with clusters of tiny horizontal tucks, on the inner arm seam at the elbow to give elbow fullness and with enough vertical tucks in the sleeve to give it some slight substance or body so that it will not be too limp. Very often a plaited frill of the net falls over the hand, finishing the close fitting cuff, and sometimes there is a smooth or the top of the high tuck collar. There are also very many modish blouses in soft white satin and white crepe. These are on the lines which the French call tailored, though, like the French tailored costumes, the modish model which is seen with variations in almost all of the exclusive-importing houses, has a plaited frill of fine lace.

erately successful on this side of the water, though their popularity in Paris is very great. Ribbon trimmings are still in high favor for millinery. FLORENCE FAIRBANKS. The Easiest Way To Remove Fuzz (Boudoir Secrets) No longer is it necessary for women troubled with hair on face or arms to submit to the torturous electric needles, or experiment with injurious preparations, for it has been found that a very simple and delicate, mixed with water to form a paste and spread on the hair surface, will remove every trace of hair or fuzz. After leaving the delatone on for two or three minutes, it should be rubbed off and the skin washed. Not only will the hairs vanish, but the skin will be left white, soft and firm. Even though druggists charge a dollar for an original one ounce package, no one will hesitate an instant to get it, as it is unfailing.
