INCREASE OF 20 PER CENT IN LOCAL SUPPLY OF HOLIDAY TURKEYS

Express Companies Secure Data, Confirming Earlier Estimates Made by The Journal; Price Is Still an Object of Mystery.

Portland Wholesale Market.
Eggs are firmer.
Chicken trade depressed.
Turkeys are slow.
More cranberries arrive.
Hop market firm.
Oregon cider for St. Paul.
Good grapes are firmer.
Dressed meats easy.
Potato trade dull.

According to information secured by express companies operating in this territory, there will be an increase of 20 per cent in the shipments of turkeys this season over a year ago.

The information comes through the regular agents of the companies, who are in a position where they can thoroughly test the sentiment of shippers.

According to the report, the greatest increase will come from the Idaho sections, although from the Willamette valley a much better showing than usual will be made.

Turkey arrivals continue liberal, but most of the supplies are now coming from Idaho. Quality is somewhat better than the first showing, but receivers are still complaining over the lack of selected stock.

There is only a nominal market for dressed turkeys at this time. Prices are ruling from 18c to 25c a pound for dressed birds, the latter price being exceptional. Most of the shipments are selling from 22½c to 23c a pound.

Increased supplies of live turkeys are coming forward and the market for these is only fair. The entire turkey market is suffering from fright. Many country shippers are visiting the wholesale market to get a line on the situation. The trade has never before been so confused as to what the probable price will be; therefore are unable to impart to their shippers the information they seek in order to buy intelligently.

The chicken market remains weak but receipts are moving off somewhat better at the low prices.

CRANBERRIES REACH MARKET

Two cars of Cape Cod cranberries reached the local market during the past 24 hours and found a very strong demand at $12 per barrel. The trade is again famished, and is waiting the arrival of several more cars, which are a long time overdue.

EGGS ARE HOLDING FIRM

While quoted nominal owing to the small supplies available, the fresh egg market is quoted firm at 45@46c a dozen. Some interests are said to be quoting above this, but as they handle practically no local stock and are placing an artificial value upon the local fresh product merely to sell their icehouse stock for more money, the trade is paying no attention to their claims.

JACKRABBITS ARE WEAKER

So plentiful are offerings of jackrabbits in the local market the last few days that the price has dropped 50c a dozen. Most of the receipts at this time are from Halsey. Sales generally reported at $2.50 per dozen.

SUGAR DOWN 10 CENTS

Pacific coast sugar prices were lowered 10c per hundred pounds today by the various refineries, and the list price was put down that much. By degrees the price of the grinders is reaching the cut values that wholesalers have been selling at. Just now the wholesalers are only 30c under the list prices, while a few weeks ago they were selling at a cut of about $1.

OIL MEAL IS IN MARKET

For the first time in many months the local market is offering oil meal. The Portland Linseed Oil works has notified the trade that it has started to crush flaxseed, and will therefore have oil to offer. The price has been placed at $44 per ton.

1912 SALMON ORDER HAS BEEN RECEIVED BY ONE ASTORIA PACKER

Columbia River Chinooks Give So Much Satisfaction That Business Is Doubled; Small Lots Remain in hands of the Canners.

Fishing operations along the Columbia river are practically suspended for the season. The closing of the year's business shows the salmon industry to be in its healthiest position.

The water is now so cold and muddy that all the seiners and gillnetters have quit, and the last of the traps are being lifted to get them out of the way of driftwood.

Showing how remarkably strong is the condition of the salmon trade at this time, and especially the better varieties, a prominent Astoria canner has received an order for 20,000 cases of chinooks of 1912 pack from a New York wholesale grocer. The grocer purchased 10,000 cases from the same packer this season and was so delighted with the chinook quality that he doubled his next year's order at once.

A few scattered lots of various varieties are being offered by Columbia river salmon packers, but in no case do the offerings reach a carload from any one packer. There are many orders coming forward for carloads of chinooks, chums and silversides which cannot be filled.

Prices on the small lots are firm at opening figures.

Foreign salmon markets remain firm, with deliveries lighter than the demand.

All through the livestock market there was only a small showing of supplies this morning. Receipts in the cattle yards are beginning to fall off. Shippers have at last begun to realize that conditions are adverse to them at this time. For that reason they are inclined to withhold their stock until assured of a better demand. At the present time there is none in the cattle division. While some sales are made, they are forced, and therefore shippers must naturally expect to receive shaded figures.

On the basis of sales made yesterday afternoon at a late hour, the cattle market has suffered but little from the over full condition of the trade. Had this happened anywhere else but North Portland it is not likely that shippers would have been so fortunate. With fancy steers selling as high as $5.50 on a congested trade, it is not a very bad position to realize when the market adjusts itself again.

North Portland cattle market range:

Select steers	$ 5.50
Fancy steers	5.40
Choice steers	5.30
Feeders	4.55

The only shipper of cattle today was L. Nelson, who had a few head, together with a load of hogs.

At Chicago there was a run of 9000 head in the cattle trade today. Market was slow, with no change in general quotations.

At South Omaha there was a steady tone for cattle, with offerings of 5000 head.

JOHN HENDRICK ABLE TO PROVE INNOCENCE

(Special to The Journal.)

Vancouver, Wash., Nov. 21.—That John Hendrick, in the county jail in Vancouver, held as a suspect in the killing of Brakeman Shores at Butler, Wash., on the night of November 14, will be able to prove a complete alibi, there is little doubt.

Proprietor Swartz of the Woodland hotel was in Vancouver yesterday and positively identified Hendrick as the man who stayed at his hotel Wednesday night, November 15, the night Sheriff Cresap was shot. He registered under the name of J. Murray. Mr. Swartz recognized him first by photograph, and later compared the handwriting and found them exactly the same. He says Hendrick came to his hotel between 5 and 6 o'clock on the evening of November 15. Sheriff Cresap was shot while searching the railroad yards in Vancouver at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. John Hendrick, mother of the man, who resides at 1901 Grant street, Vancouver, said:

"My son came home Thursday, November 9, and when we saw him standing in the door, it was the first time we had seen him in five years. He left home the next forenoon. I am not sure whether he came in over the North Bank road or not. There has been a heap of writing about my son by people who knew nothing about it. Parents have a little feeling that people ought to consider.

CITY HALL ARCHITECT MAY SUE FOR HIS PAY

(Special to The Journal.)

Vancouver, Wash., Nov. 21.—Vowing that he would commence an action against the city to recover $500, his fee for drawing plans and preparing specifications for a new city hall for Vancouver last spring, Architect B. J. S. Cahill, left the council chamber in a huff last night after being offered $100 for his work.

The city council last spring called for plans and specifications for a new city hall and proposed to bond the city for $50,000 for the purpose of construction. Nine architects competed in the plans, and those of Rushforth, Cahill & Wright of San Francisco, were accepted. The bonds were voted down at a special election held and Cahill, for his firm, immediately made a demand for $500 for his work. The demand was rejected by the city council, and Cahill reduced his fee $50, placing his claim at $450. Last night the $450 claim was rejected, and on motion of Councilman Whelan, the sum of $100 was voted, but to become void, if not accepted by Cahill within 10 days.

In voting the $100 it is apparent that the city acknowledged an obligation, and Cahill, acting for the firm, said that he would immediately commence an action through his attorney, P. J. Kirwin, to collect the full amount of his claim. "At the time the plans were asked for," said Cahill last night, "Councilman Weigel said that the successful architect would have pay. Upon this, and a statement from Mayor Kiggins, that $500 was a reasonable charge, I went ahead and drew the plans, put my own money into the work and spent considerable time. I had colored etchings made of the plans to enthuse the voters, and did all that I could to see that the bonds carried. If my plans had not been accepted by the council, I would not ask a cent," he continued.

Mayor Kiggins held that the firm should have pay for its work. Councilman Weigel held that the firm should have pay, but not $500. City Engineer Lotter said that the work was not worth $500 and that all the usual architect does is to draw the sketch and girls at low wages do the drafting. City Attorney Sugg stated that between man and man, the firm was entitled to pay, but to come down to law, they could not collect a cent.

Mr. Cahill pointed out in the specifications, which are on file with the city clerk, a clause wherein the council agreed to pay 1 per cent of the contract price should the bonds be defeated, and 5 per cent if approved and the work carried through. City Attorney Sugg said that that was only an agreement and would not stand in law.
