

IN THE REALM FEMININE

Entertains (With Musicals).

DELIGHTFUL affair of yesterday and one of the smart events of the week was the musicale given at the home of Mrs. Frederick Alva Jacobs. Mrs. Jacobs was assisted in receiving her 75 guests by her mother, Mrs. Bolens Jacobs. Yellow chrysanthemums decorated the drawing room and the library was charming with pink roses. The dining room was especially attractive, with the color scheme of red and white developed in the decorations. The table, centered with a cluster of red carnations, was presided over by Mrs. C. S. Jackson, Mrs. C. F. Adams, Mrs. O. R. Menefee and Mrs. James D. Honeyman. Floating about the rooms were Mrs. Wells Gilbert, Miss Dorothy Morrison and Miss Katherine MacMaster. Dainty hand-painted programs announced the numbers given by Miss Ruth Allen, vocalist, and Miss Jane Sanders, pianist.

Dinner for Visitor.

Percy Blythe, of England, was the guest of honor at a dinner presided over last evening by Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Howard, Jr. Covers were laid for Mr. Blythe, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Shepard, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Burrell, Miss Martha Hoyt, Miss Von Destinson, Mr. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Howard.

Portland Heights Assembly.

Most delightful was the opening dance of the Portland Heights club assembly series given last night at the club house. The guests were welcomed by the patronesses, Mrs. J. H. Page, Mrs. Frank I. Fuller, Mrs. A. D. Charlton and Mrs. W. D. Jeilison. The stairway was attractive with decorations of flags and downstair an attractive feature was the canopy of green. The only color upstairs was the pink of the chrysanthemums used in tall vases about the mantle, which was dressed with trailing vines.

Several tables of cards were made up downstairs, where dainty refreshments were served. The floor committee was made up of E. L. Thompson, Henry Labbe, Adolph A. Dekum, Coe McKenna and F. I. Gollighur. Mrs. Fuller wore a stunning gown of white broadcloth and Duchesse lace. Mrs. Charlton was gowned in a creation of pink chiffon over brocade of the same shade, and Mrs. Jeilison's gown was fashioned of blue brocade with lace. The date of the next assembly is February 9.

The next card party of the club comes Tuesday evening. The card evenings have been meeting with unusual success this year. An interesting work on hand in the club at present is the preparation for the Christmas tree. Heretofore it has been the custom to have the tree for the children of the club, but this year the children will give the tree for 30 little people who would not otherwise have such a treat. Each child will select a gift for some one visitor, so that a delightful personal element will enter in. The club is also planning for a New Year's party.

Arts and Crafts Exhibit.

Continuing until Sunday, the Museum of Art is housing the very attractive exhibit of the Arts and Crafts society. Beautiful pieces of hand wrought jewelry, weaving from the Peoples institute and posters go to make up the exhibition. Almost all of the work is that of Portland people. The hours are from 9 to 5 except Sunday, when they are from 2 to 5.

Five Hundred Club Met.

"The 500 club" met last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Corcoran. Four tables were made up and prizes captured by Mrs. W. W. Terry, W. W. Clifton and W. W. Terry. Additional guests of the club were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Abbott. The club has the distinction of having met for the last 17 years, which is probably the record for such an organization in the city.

Coming Dates.

Tomorrow is "Portland day" at the Portland Woman's club, which meets in the Women of Woodcraft hall. The business meeting will be called at 2 o'clock and at 3 will be given the program. Mrs. A. Gleitsch will have the current events and the address will be given by Frank S. Grant on "The Commission Form of Government." Mr. Grant has just returned from the east, where he has been making a further study into the question, and all members are expected to come prepared to ask questions.

ONE MAN'S CODE

Written for The Journal by Darra Mora. IT IS the same old thing in the same old way. It is a story so common that we shrug our shoulders in boredom at its recital. A little 18 year old girl from an Illinois mining town met a Chicago millionaire. The girl was beautiful, but poor. The millionaire was old and fat and repulsive. The girl hated her poverty and the uncouth people who surrounded her. She wanted to chase the baubles of pleasure. The millionaire was more than willing to provide the means.

There was a promise of marriage and a Paris education, followed by five years of illicit companionship as man and wife. Then the man of millions became bored, oh, very bored. There were other little village flowers blossoming for him. He had long since refused to marry the girl, and he wanted to rid himself of her entirely. So he hired a good looking young chap to marry her. And the good looking young chap, being wise and covetous, and thoroughly disreputable, at various times extracted money from the millionaire by means of his pretty wife. One day he sent the wife to Europe for a little vacation with the man of millions, therefor receiving the trifling sum of $1500. Of course the woman wasn't worth much.

And the woman came home and there was much trouble. But all the time the millionaire assisted the woman financially. A lot of ugly and pressing demands were made upon the woman by her cad of a husband, who had meantime contracted consumption. And one day, to silence him forever, she sent a few bullets into his body. More trouble followed. The law took the matter up, and put the woman on trial for murder.

But where was the central figure in the little tragedy? Where was the man who paved the way for the miserable affair? Where? Nobody knows. He cannot be located. He was not at the scene of the trial, that's sure. He did not stand beside the witness for the defense, that's certain. He has been strangely silent ever since the woman shot the man he had hired to marry her. The last time he was seen in public was with an exceedingly smartly coiffured young bloom of girlhood in an exceedingly smart restaurant. Then he promptly disappeared. You see, his debt was canceled. The woman out in Denver was paid. Had he not educated her? Had he not provided her with a husband? Had he not paid her bills? Had he not paid handsomely for her companionship? According to his code, that ended all responsibility for him. In the little matter of murder, he is not at all concerned. There was no binding tie of love or friendship or loyalty; it was a mere business arrangement.

It is such a common story that it is, possibly, bad taste to mention it at all. But, as I read of Gertrude Gibson Patterson, village beauty, and Emil Strouss, millionaire, I wonder if the full significance of this man's code fully dawns upon our men and women.

ENGLISH SCHOOLS MAY TEACH SCOUTS

General Powell's Experiment May Be Incorporated Into Curriculum.

(United Press Landed Wire.) London, Dec. 7.—If an experiment which General Baden-Powell has approved is successful, scouting will be incorporated into the curriculum of the public schools of Great Britain. The originator of the idea is Ernest Young, head master at Harrow, who said:

"A great many subjects in the curriculum, such as geography, surveying and mathematics, are associated with the work done by the boy scouts. I believe that the movement promotes a corporate spirit among the boys and does great good from the physical and moral points of view. Therefore, next spring and summer my boys will do their studying in camp instead of in the classroom. Instead of classes, we will have patrols. The boys will prepare and cook their own meals. "By fall we should be able, by mental tests, physical examinations and so forth, to determine whether it will be advisable to make 'scouting' a permanent fixture in the schools."
