Sound City Schoolers Cry for More Practice and Game is Off.

The Seattle all-star scholastic football team will not come to Portland and play the local high school team next Saturday, according to a telegram received from Tom McDonald, who is taking care of the Seattle end of the game.

Multnomah will be minus the services of three of her star players, Clarke, Wolff and Hickson, who will be out of the game on account of injuries.

O. A. C. SECURES NEW INSTRUCTOR

Dr. Stewart Elected to Chair of Physical Education at Corvallis.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Dec. 7.—Dr. E. J. Stewart, late of Allegheny college, Pennsylvania, has been secured to take charge of the department of physical education at the Oregon Agricultural college. The O. A. C. chair has been vacant since the resignation of E. D. Angell, in July, 1910.

Dr. Stewart will enter upon his duties at O. A. C. immediately, and his first work will probably be that of coaching the basketball team Stewart graduated from the Western Reserve Medical school in 1903.

The same year of his graduation Dr. Stewart organized, coached and played quarterback on the famous Massillon, Ohio, professional football team, which at that time was considered the greatest aggregation of All-American college gridiron stars ever playing on one team.

Dr. Stewart also spent two years as coach of all athletic teams at Mount Union college, Alliance, Ohio, and during the winter of 1908-9 coached the Perdue university basketball quintet, running Chicago university a close race for the championship.

FORBIDDEN FIGHT TAKEN INTO COURT

Fate of Pugilism in England Hangs on Verdict of Court.

London, Dec. 7.—The proposed boxing match between Owen Moran and Jim Driscoll, which was forbidden by a Manchester court on the ground that it was a prize fight and would constitute a breach of the peace, has been made the subject of an appeal to the higher courts on the decision of which hangs the fate of pugilism in Great Britain.

Does a big purse make the difference between a boxing contest and a prize fight? If so, what is the maximum limit for a legal boxing contest? What is the size of a crowd permitted at a legal contest? Are side bets legal? How must a blow be delivered so as to keep within the law that a contestant is not trying to "subdue" his opponent? What strength must a blow have so as not to constitute "illegal hard hitting"?

PAT M'ARTHUR TAKES UP GRADUATE COACHES

University of Oregon, Eugene, Dec. 7.—The following article by Pat McArthur ('01), a prominent alumni of the University, appeared in yesterday afternoon's issue of the Oregon Emerald. McArthur voices the sentiment of the entire alumni and student body in his views on Oregon's coaching system:

"Oregon has reaped the harvest of a decade of folly in the pursuit of a hit-and-miss football policy. The recent success of the varsity eleven are convincing proofs that our system is altogether wrong and sadly in need of repair.

A review of our football history during the past 10 years shows that our varsity has been coached by eight different men—from as many colleges and that no two of these men fashioned their style of play after the same system. Each coach drilled the Oregon men according to his own notions, undoing, in numerous instances, the work of his predecessor.

The result has been a small number of championship teams and a woeful lack of any definite and well defined system.

Deadly in Few Instances. Only in two previous instances has the same man coached Oregon for two successive years, in 1898 and 1899, when Simpson of California, was at the helm, and in 1908 and 1909 when Bob Forbes, of Yale, directed Oregon's play.

In both instances, the team was noticeably strong during the second year of the coach's tutelage. Simpson's team of 1899 was the best team in the northwest that year, but the 1900 team was even stronger, largely because Kaarsberg, the coach, was also a California varsity man and was able to take up the work where Simpson left off.

"Locomotive" Smith another California, coached Oregon in 1901 and despite the fact that he had only three old varsity men and that his team averaged only 151 pounds, made a very creditable showing. Forbes had a stronger team in 1909 than in 1908 and won all his games except the one with Washington, but in justice to the Yale coach, it must be said that injuries deprived him of a number of good men during critical times and that Washington's team of that year was stronger than her championship crew of this season.

"The writer ventures the opinion that had Forbes been retained or had he been succeeded by some other man from New Haven, the results of the past two seasons would not have been so disastrous. These matters of history are mentioned merely to show that in the few instances where Oregon has clung to one school of coaching, her teams have made creditable records.

Too much blame should not be attached to Coach Warner for our recent failures, for we men of the University, students, alumni and faculty—are more responsible than he. We have stood by and watched coaches come and go, leaving behind them a chaotic mass of work of a good man or his system of play, but always grasping for novelties.

Time to Do Something. It is time for the men of the University to do something. If athletic sports are to be maintained, there should be some correct policies of coaching, schedules, management, etc.—something of a permanent nature. The northwest conference and the system of graduate management are both steps in the right direction, but the most serious question confronting Oregon's athletics of today is the matter of football coaches.

"It has been suggested that we adopt the graduate coach system, and as I have given this subject some consideration, I desire to discuss it in these columns, but do not feel warranted in asking for any additional space at this time. However, I shall outline my views upon the proposed graduate coach system in your next issue."
