

IN THE REALM FEMININE

Season's Smartest Color.

FROM the east comes word to the effect that at last the season's smartest color has been decided upon. The message goes on further to say that it does not happen once in a decade that the women of the smart set and the women who set the fashions for the inner circle of society's exclusive few agree upon the season's color. They have done so this year, however, and it is a pink-red. It runs through a gamut of shades, from deep coral down to palest flame, almost yellow. It may be bright, or old-fashioned "light red" but it must escape being a regular red by several shades. It is becoming alike to blondes and brunettes and it adapts itself to the modern wonders of frock-making where layer of gossamer, beading, embroidery, fringe, and metal thread. It shimmers through soft grays and cream and slaty blues. It dashes suddenly into view in startling places. It can be wrought into wonderful sunset and dawn effects, and it has the advantage of combining with black in a way to give distinction. Without a doubt, the season's favorite color has been well chosen this year. Contrary to tradition this fad has not been the proverbial year or two late in reaching the coast. For at the MacMaster debut dance, the most beautifully gowned event thus far marking the social season, the new color was in decided evidence.

Second Concert.

The second symphony concert again drew a representative audience to the Hall yesterday afternoon. Box parties were much in vogue and through the audience were scattered numbers of small parties.

For Mrs. Ellicott.

Mrs. Eleanor Martin, San Francisco's social leader, was hostess a few evenings ago at a handsome dinner at her home to compliment Mrs. J. M. Ellicott, wife of Captain Ellicott, U. S. N., of the Maryland, and her daughter, Miss Priscilla Ellicott. Mrs. Ellicott has only recently returned from Honolulu, where she made an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. Ross Kingsbury.

Invitations Out.

Mr. and Mrs. William John Hawkins and Miss Hawkins have sent out cards for a dancing party to be given the evening of Wednesday, December 27, at their Portland Heights home, 574 Myrtle.

Short Paragraphs.

PARADISE BETTER THAN HONOLULU

Honolulu, Hawaii, December 17.—As our ship neared your beautiful island I thought back a century to the time when these islands were uncharted. It called to my mind the text, "Who hath heard such a thing? Who hath seen such things? Shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? Shall a nation be born at once? Isaiah lxi:8. Then he thought of how your island has been styled the "Paradise of the Pacific." The reality surpasses my expectations. Yet as I think of the glorious conditions which shall prevail throughout the whole earth under Messiah's kingdom, I perceive that even the "Paradise of the Pacific" falls far short of the "Paradise of God."

God has declared that the earth is his footstool, and that in due time, under Messiah's empire, he "will make the place of his feet glorious." He has told us how the wilderness shall blossom as the rose and the solitary places shall be made glad; how streams shall break forth in the desert and the earth shall yield her increase; how then the knowledge of the Lord shall fill the whole earth, until none shall need say to his neighbor, "Know thou the Lord," because all shall know him from the least unto the greatest, how every knee shall bow and every tongue confess Messiah to the glory of God.

It is because God has already dealt bountifully with your island and given you in advance many of the blessings promised to the whole earth, that your island is styled a paradise. Nevertheless, you all need to pray with the remembrance of mankind for the coming of the kingdom of Messiah and his blessings—"Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." Although you have so many earthly good things lavished upon you, you still still reign in your midst, their marks are in evidence. Nature's signs are only man is vile, wrote the poet. Think God that some of the angels have passed away, that Christian civilization has brought to those islands a little at least of the light of the knowledge of the glory of God!

But here as elsewhere the marks of sin are visible. Sin and imperfection are everywhere visible; you need the kingdom of restoration and the Messianic Kingdom.

The Last Enemy Death.

Your countrymen were very in evidence telling that here, in this paradise, men die. Your hospital and physicians' signs tell us that here, too, men are sick. But in the Paradise under Messiah's kingdom, the inhabitants will not say, "I am sick." It is manifestly there will be no more fighting, no more dying, and no more crying, because all the former things of sin and death will have passed away. He that shall sit upon the throne will make all things new. (Revelation xxi:5.) "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." (1 Corinthians xv:26), and every one under its power will be released. There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and of the unjust. Their sleep will appear to them as but a moment, and wonderful will be the changes to which they will awaken—the blessings, the privileges, the opportunities! Verily, our God is a great God; there is none like him—loving, gracious, kind. Although he condemns our race, the condemnation was death, and not torture, and the redemptive plan which he devised enables him to be "just and yet to be the justifier of him that believeth in Jesus."

The Holy Nation Born.

Pastor Russell expounded his text, showing by the context that it refers to the resurrection of the church. He declared that the begetting of the Holy Spirit in the present life constitutes God's people embryo new creatures in Christ; that this begetting and embryo development, according to the Scriptures, concludes in death, and that the resurrection moment, the attainment of glory, honor and immortality as spirits beyond the veil, will be the birth of this new creation of God—the elect church—the bride, the lamb's wife."

Pastor Russell pointed to the declaration of the apostle that Jesus in his res-

Bowed Only Once; Apologies.

Delhi, Dec. 18.—The gawkwar of Baroda today formally apologized to the English crown for bowing only once and then immediately turning his back on King George and Queen Mary during the durbar ceremony. He is in a very nervous state.

It is thought here that he did not intend to insult the English sovereigns, but felt embarrassed in their presence as a result of the scandal hanging over his head in London.

The gawkwar was in England as one of the representative rulers of India during coronation week. Since his return to India he has been publicly named as co-responsible in an action involving the name of a woman of the English nobility. This is thought to have had something to do with his confusion during the durbar ceremonies, causing his inadvertent actions.

There is a strange thing that women whose lives are sweet parodies of saintliness at home often have no conscience in the business world. Dishonesty, without doubt, is the most glaring vice of the modern woman. Many a woman who would hold up her hands in a perfect simulation of horror at the mere mention of a streetwalker, will cheat her dressmaker or her corset maker out of her eyes. She will brazenly cheat the shopkeeper. She will play the most dishonest tricks on her grocer or her tailor. She will impose upon her servants. She will lie to her friends. She will repeat the most invidious scandals. She will tear an unfortunate woman's reputation to shreds.

Yet she lays claim to "virtue," and "morality." She is a pure, noble woman, according to her own rating. Why? Because she is true to her husband, because she does not indulge in soul-mate-

To that holy nation will be given the control of the world under the supervision of her Lord and Redeemer. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne." "I will give him power over the nations"—"he shall rule them with a rod of iron." Through this nation blessing is to proceed to all the families of the earth.

Look Now at Our Text.

Verse seven pictures the church as a mother, and pictures Messiah as a man—the head of the church which is his body. This is the great deliverer referred to by St. Paul in Romans xii:5. It is that coming out of Zion, who shall be the deliverer of Israel; who shall "turn away ungodliness from Jacob." Verse 9 connects the resurrection birth of the church with the resurrection birth of the body. "When God brings forth the head, Jesus, and then fall to bring forth the church, his body?" Nay, verily! His faithful shall share in "his resurrection" as promised.—Philippians iii:10.

NURSE THREW UP HER HANDS

From a letter from Mrs. Bessie Anderson, 104 Georgia street, Vancouver, B. C., we condense the following:

Your kind letter to bind this a m. and comforted me with much pleasure. At the same time the credit is due to the Compound, and not to me, for the recovery of Mr. H. I certainly was pleased to hear that he is doing so well. When I went to see him I found him much improved and almost ready to give up. I told him that I could get well and strong after having been apparently so much worse than he seemed to be there surely was hope for him, for I never will believe anyone could be any worse than I was and get well. "I enjoy myself like a girl of twenty. Isn't it marvelous? My old nurse called a few weeks ago. She had not seen me for six months, and when I answered the door, took one look at me and went on saying that she held her hands up in wonder." We recall vividly Mrs. Anderson's case. A dozen physicians had given her up. She had had convulsions and was bedridden with one of the hardest cases of Bright's disease ever reported to us. At what seemed the very last moment the treatment was changed to Fulton's Renal Compound. Her recovery was very slow, but about the sixth month she was up and around. Her recovery was so wonderful that she reports that scores of people called on her and wrote her about it.

The Mr. H. that she refers to was also in the last stages of Bright's disease, and he, too, changed treatment, and is now out of the hospital and recently passed through this city on his way south for the winter. How can physicians and patients overlook these results when failure is certain under the orthodox treatment? Druggists supplied by Clark-Woodward Drug Co., and Blumauer-Frank Drug Co.

CITIZENS OF UNION, OR., JOIN ELGIN PHONE PLAN

(Special to The Journal.) Union, Or., Dec. 18.—A mass meeting of the citizens of Union was called Saturday for cooperating with the people of Elgin in the extension of the eastern Oregon Cooperative Telephone association's lines to be extended from Elgin to Union. President LaStoop, Secretary Jesse Crum, Treasurer J. A. Masterson, Manager Thomas Fleming and E. H. Flagg, director of the association at Elgin, were present. The proposition of the extension of the Eastern Oregon Cooperative Telephone association's lines from Elgin to Union was unanimously accepted by the people here. Stock was subscribed and the system at Union will be started immediately. The new phone company is due to disaffiliate of the subscribers of the Home Independent Telephone company because of a raise in rates.

The Eastern Oregon Cooperative Telephone association, which was formed some two months ago, has over 50 miles of poles set in the Elgin vicinity and expects to have that central completed by the first of January, 1912.

STREETCAR ON FIRE; 5 ARE SEVERELY INJURED

San Francisco, Dec. 18.—Leaping panic stricken from a burning street car, which burst into flame as a result of a "short circuit," five persons are suffering with severe injuries today. The most seriously injured is Anita Hadler, 18. The accident occurred when the motorman threw on too much power and a flash of electricity set fire to the woodwork of the car.

THE CORRUPT PURE

Written for The Journal by Darra More.

THERE has been such a harping on the bodily virtue of woman of late, that the woman who admits to that distinction considers herself possessed of all the virtues on the calendar. She becomes, in her own mind, a professional saint. There are such a lot of women who lay claim to perfect morality, and by that token, superiority. "I am a pure woman," says such an one, "nothing else matters."

But there is more for a woman to attain than a clean and pure body. She must have a clean mind; she must be honest; she must be just; she must be loyal; she must be truthful; she must be charitable. For "virtue is not to be considered in the light of mere innocence or abstaining from harm; but as the exertion of our faculties in doing good." There are women who covertly indulge in vices from which so called immoral women would recoil in disgust.

It is a strange thing that women whose lives are sweet parodies of saintliness at home often have no conscience in the business world. Dishonesty, without doubt, is the most glaring vice of the modern woman. Many a woman who would hold up her hands in a perfect simulation of horror at the mere mention of a streetwalker, will cheat her dressmaker or her corset maker out of her eyes. She will brazenly cheat the shopkeeper. She will play the most dishonest tricks on her grocer or her tailor. She will impose upon her servants. She will lie to her friends. She will repeat the most invidious scandals. She will tear an unfortunate woman's reputation to shreds.

To Advise Women in Financial Matters Is Duty of Miss Harriet E. Moorehouse

Written for The Journal by Fay King.

"WORK with women is especially interesting," said Miss Harriet E. Moorehouse, superintendent of the woman's department of the Portland Trust company. "You see, one woman understands another woman," Miss Moorehouse went on to say. "Men never understand women in business. The business phrases of a man are foreign to a woman, and half the time she doesn't know what he is talking about. Now this department has encouraged a great many women to start savings accounts. During the six years that I have conducted this department it has been a great pleasure to me to explain and help the women who have come to me. The average women know little or nothing about banking and they are timid about consulting the men. I can tell by the expression on a woman's face whether she understands what I am explaining, and I explain it to her until I know she understands. And, anyway, a woman never likes to sit and talk business in a long stretch; she likes to stop and talk about something else for awhile and then go back to business again," and the "Bank Lady" smiled patiently as she added, "Why, sometimes right at the most important part of a business conversation a woman will stop and talk about her baby, her new dress, or something like that, but a woman can understand her moods, and doesn't mind."

That's what is so nice about Miss Moorehouse, she is so sweet and patient. Her face is the kindest I've ever seen, and you just feel she "understands" you. Her beautiful white hair dignifies her young face, and lends a gracefulness to it. You just want to tell her everything; her very soul is in sympathy with you, you just feel it, with your "woman's intuition." While I was waiting to see her a little woman was there, seeking her advice, and from what I heard I know the little woman is a widow, and has such faith in the "Bank Lady" that she wouldn't think of drawing a dollar, let alone investing it without Miss Moorehouse's advice and approval.

Advice of All Kinds Sought.

"Yes, they confide in me, and I always respect their confidences," Miss Moorehouse continued. "Sometimes I am surprised at the things they tell me, and my help has been asked in selecting much of everything from a husband to a dress pattern."

Through correspondence Miss Moorehouse has established a woman's department in two banks in Chicago, and the women in charge voluntarily report to her, as they feel she was to a great extent the founder.

"It is so nice for young women to have savings accounts," Miss Moorehouse went on. "I met a young girl on the streetcar once, a stenographer, and I encouraged her to put a part of her salary in the bank each month, which she could easily do as she lived at home and didn't have to pay room or board, but did contribute toward the maintenance of the family. So out of the $40 she earned, she put away a bit every month until finally she had $700. Of course, it took some time, and she didn't stint herself paying for helpful entertainment, that could develop her. Her father helped her invest it, and now she is an independent young woman. Another stenographer who had a good position saved $500, and then asked us to loan it out, which we gladly did. We got her a safe mortgage, and now every quarter she gets her interest. A savings account can be started with $1.00 and you draw interest on $5, so there is no excuse for one not saving something."

"A great many business men bring their wives down here and have me

5 SYMPATHETIC DOCTORS OPERATE ON POOR RUSS

(Edited From Leased Wire.) Seattle, Wash., Dec. 18.—Joseph Putia of Vladivostok Siberia, was operated upon by five surgeons in the smoking room of the steamer Kumerik, lying at pier 5 last night. While working on the Canadian Pacific Railway near Vancouver two weeks ago a premature blast destroyed Putia's sight and fractured one arm. Other Russian workmen raised a purse to send him home, but there was not enough money to pay for an operation on his arm. The ship's physician and four others interested in the case, performed the operation out of sympathy for the man.

SMART FASHIONS FROM THE FOREMOST DESIGNERS

Velvet Costume for Afternoon Wear With Black and White Furs.

For smart afternoon wear velvet bids fair to be one of the most favored fabrics this season, and the newest models for these frocks are seen trimmings of Persian embroideries or of tarnished metal embroideries and not infrequently of Persian and metallic effects combined. The model shown to-day exemplifies this. The material used is one of the new pliable velvets in the shade known as twilight gray, which is exceedingly popular with the Parisian couturiers. The design is simple and the decorative effects secured by the use of dull silver buttons and of triangular medallions of tarnished silver lace mingled with threads of dull red, orange, and blue, which are put in above the high belt. The muff is of white fox with a centre band of black fox, a combination seen in several of the new sets. The stole in this set is all of white, but in some sets are seen stoles made of one white and one black skin.
