

TVEITMOE READY TO 'FACE MUSIC'; SAYS 'NOT GUILTY'

San Francisco Labor Leader Arrives in Los Angeles to Testify Before U. S. Grand Jury in Dynamite Inquiry.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Los Angeles, Dec. 18.—The determination of Olaf A. Tveitmoe, secretary of the state building trades council of San Francisco, who arrived here today to "face the music" in the alleged country-wide dynamiting conspiracy, without the necessity of a bench warrant, overshadowed in interest the proceedings against Bert H. Franklin, chief investigator for the McNamara defense, who was scheduled to appear before Justice Young today on a bribery charge.

Trailing in the wake of Tveitmoe were the same two secret service men who have watched every movement of the San Francisco labor leader since he left for the east more than a month ago to attend the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Atlanta.

Encouraged to Labor Temple.
Tveitmoe was met at the station by a number of local labor leaders and escorted to the Labor Temple, with the secret service men following. The latter stood on guard outside while Tveitmoe consulted with local leaders.

Although it had been stated that the federal grand jury would be busy today with Chinese smuggling cases, putting over the dynamite probe until tomorrow, Tveitmoe was an early visitor to the office of United States Attorney Lawler. Lawler was also on hand.

Tveitmoe refused to discuss the dynamite cases beyond reiterating that he had never met James E. McNamara, and knew John J. McNamara slightly. He said that he met the elder McNamara in labor conventions. Tveitmoe said that after he had conferred with Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the McNamara, he might issue a statement later in the day.

Another Is Suspected.
A report around the federal building today was to the effect that a local union man suspected of complicity with James McNamara in dynamiting the Times building was being carefully guarded without his knowledge to keep him from disappearing. This rumor could not be verified, however.

Tveitmoe was closeted with Oscar Lawler for only 15 minutes and emerged from the government agent's office apparently in a happy mood. "Well, I am here," he said to the newspapermen, "and will give the federal grand jury whatever information I can. I do not think it will be of much benefit to the jury, however, as I know absolutely nothing about the doings of the McNamara brothers."

Tveitmoe is quartered at the Hayward hotel, where he will await the call from the federal authorities. E. A. Clancy, the San Francisco labor leader who is also to testify before the inquirers, is in Los Angeles, having arrived here yesterday.

Franklin Case Put Over.
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Los Angeles, Dec. 18.—Owing to the illness of Detective Samuel L. Brown, head of the county bureau of investigation, proceedings against Bert H. Franklin, former chief detective for the McNamara defense, charged with bribing Permanent Juror Bain, were postponed until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Franklin's preliminary examination on this charge had been set for today.

Assistant District Attorney Ford, representing the state, asked that the case be set over because Brown, who is credited with having gathered the evidence and worked up the case for the prosecution, was too ill with the grippe to appear.

As former Governor Henry T. Gage, counsel for Franklin, did not oppose the request, the case was set over.

The passengers, engineer and trainmen in the forward part of the train escaped with bruises. Fire broke out in the overturned cars and the flames were subdued by the townspeople. The corpses were brought to this city and laid out in rows. Several women passengers were among the number.

Stop Not Explained.
It is not known why the Columbian Limited train stopped shortly after passing the station here. It was being backed down when the silk train crashed into it. Occupants of the rear Pullmans were caught in their berths and several were killed instantly. Others died while being rushed to assistance within the town. Several of the injured may die.

Odesa is seven miles east of Ortonville, a junction point on the St. Paul road. A relief train from this point arrived half an hour after the collision.

Cars Piled High on Each Other.
When the rescue party arrived they found the rear part of the Columbian train telescoped with the silk train and the cars piled high upon each other and wreckage strewn on both sides of the track. That any one escaped is considered miraculous. Digging through the wreckage the rescuers found many of the injured pinned down by the car seats, still alive but unable to extricate themselves. Work was immediately started to release them. The emergency wreck train arrived and cranes were used to take off some of the cars. This facilitated the work of reaching the victims.

Two persons were found between the crushed masses of windows in the sleeper attached to the train at Aberdeen bound for St. Paul. They were killed trying to jump. Another body was found crushed under a wedge of seats that had been toppled into the aisle. Not two feet from it a woman was found in almost the same position. When extricated she did not bear a mark and the only injury she suffered was from fright. She had fainted and was at first believed to be dead.

cited that the abrogation is due to a "misunderstanding in the interpretation" of the treaty. A resolution approving the act of President Taft was approved by the senate foreign committee. It differs entirely from the resolution of Congressman Sulzer, but as a matter of courtesy it probably will be made a joint resolution, and sent to the house for concurrence.

Taft's Treaty Note Read Before Senate; Pact Obsolete Jan. 1

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, Dec. 18.—Notifying that body of his action in notifying Russia of the abrogation of the treaty of 1832, a message from President Taft was read in the senate this afternoon.

Senator Lodge then introduced a substitute for the Sulzer resolution, as approved by the senate foreign committee, but Senator Heyburn objecting to its immediate consideration, action on the Lodge resolution was postponed until tomorrow.

Substance of Resolution.
The resolution says in part: "Whereas, on the 17th day of December, 1911, President Taft caused to be delivered to the imperial Russian government by the American ambassador to St. Petersburg an official notification on behalf of the government of the United States announcing the intention to terminate the operation of this treaty upon the expiration of the year commencing on January 1, 1912; and

"Whereas, the treaty is no longer responsive in various respects to the present principles and commercial needs of the two countries; and

"Whereas, the construction placed thereon by the contracting parties differs upon matters of fundamental importance and interest to each; therefore, be it

"Resolved, by the senate and the house of representatives that the notice thus given by the president to the government of Russia to terminate said treaty, in accordance with the terms of the treaty, is hereby adopted and ratified."

Russia Not to Object.
The senators are assured that Russia will not object to the new resolutions. Culberson of Texas uttered the most discordant note when he asserted that the action of the president in submitting the resolution only to the senate as the only "treaty maker" was an affront to the house.

The objection made by Heyburn was to the consideration of the resolution in open session. He thought it should be considered in executive session.

been sent to the commanders in chief of both rebel and imperialistic forces, but reports of scattering engagements arriving here are delaying the movement toward peace.

Rebels Stand Firm.
While everything in China is problematic, it is not believed here that the rebels will concede anything to the imperialists, and on the other hand it is not thought possible that Premier Yuan Shih Kai will yield a single point to the revolutionists.

While the envoys are trying—or pretend to be trying—to effect a peace compact here, the rebels are active near Nanking. Mobilization of troops there in preparation for a march on Peking is being hurried. The minute word reaches Nanking that peace negotiations have fallen through a vast army, freshly equipped and encouraged by its success at Nanking, will march on the capital of the empire, and what probably will be the last great battle of the revolution will begin.

BIG FACTORY AT BAKER WILL BE BUILT IN SPRING
(Special to The Journal.)
Baker, Or., Dec. 18.—Material is being placed on the ground and preparations are being made for the construction of the new plant of the W. H. Eccles Lumber company in this city. The Sumner Valley railroad, on which road's right of way the plant is being erected, is already constructing the bridge across Powder river for the sidetrack to the mill. The new sawmill which will furnish the lumber for the finishing plant here is ready for operation. Work on the building will be rushed, as the machinery and equipment has all been ordered and a part of it on the way. The new industry will employ 150 to 200 men, and will add considerable to the payroll of the city.

Chinese Assailant Held.
(Special to The Journal.)
The Dalles, Or., Dec. 18.—Chong Sid, the Chinaman who made a murderous assault on Lee Ching, a local restaurant man, Thursday morning, was given a preliminary hearing in the justice court and held to the grand jury in bonds of $2500.

Chaff and Old Birds

BY HERBERT H. BUSHNELL

You can't catch an old bird with chaff. Old birds have found out, and husks don't go with them, any more.

You can't fool a wise man twice. The wisest of them are deceived once, but once only.

Old birds and wise men—wise women, too—learn their lessons from the best teacher—Experience. The tuition rates are high, but the course is worth the price.

It took Marshall Field, the great merchant prince, twenty years of experience as a clerk, before he knew how to be a great merchant.

It took Moses forty years of sheep herding before he knew how to do his great life work.

Just think how long it took the Columbia river to wear its wide thoroughfare through the Cascade mountains.

A good tree is known by its good fruit; an evil tree is known by its evil fruit. Every tree furnishes its own test.

A good hen lays 200 eggs or more in a year—big eggs—eggs in the winter time. Don't kill that hen. And don't feed her on chaff.

The best men, the best hens, the best trees, the best clothing, the best food—all supply their own irrefutable proofs of quality.

What is the proof?

The proof of a tree is its fruit; the proof of a hen is her eggs; the proof of a man is his deeds; the proof of cloth is its wear; the proof of a pudding—or anything edible—is the eating.

And what do we eat most—more than any other sort of food? Bread, of course.

What kind of bread?

The kind that is handed to us, usually. We are careless. We take what is given us, and let it go at that.

There is as much difference between breads as there is between men—as between scrub hens and hens of a laying strain—as between a crabapple tree and a Spitzenburg—as between Chaff and Wheat. Some breads are made of Chaff. Be an Old Bird. Be a Wise Man. Don't get caught.

Some bread is unsanitary and unfit to eat. No man should put it in his mouth—much less give it to his family.

There is bread which is clean, pure and wholesome.

It took years of Experience to learn how to make it. It took Honesty to keep on making it. It took Patience to withstand untruthful assertions made by the ignorant. It took Courage to meet and surmount innumerable obstacles on the road to Success.

Why doesn't everybody eat that bread? They don't know about it, or they are careless in ordering. Careless of their own health, mind you.

Everybody's business is nobody's business. But it is your business to know about bread.

There are ways of finding out. There are tests. There is plenty of proof.

Facts prove. Investigation convinces.

There is the test of the senses; smell it; taste it. The proof of bread is the eating.

There is still another way—look on the bottom crust. If the word "ROYAL" is imprinted there, you are safe.

It is the best bread!
