Popular Education and Popular Government

By F. I. Foreman. A hundred years before our war for American independence, Governor Berkeley of Virginia, said in a sudden fit of gabernatorial zeal: "I thank God there are no free schools nor printing. and I hope we shall not have them these hundred years." What did the old scamp mean? Just this: That educated people will not tolerate such an old tyrant as he proposed to make of himself in the colonies and he was afraid of education.

There can be no such thing as indi-vidual education or individual progress. By the very condition of things we must all move together. What may it profit state or nation even though your boy be a college graduate, if his class mates do not receive enough of ele-mentary schooling to fit them for the obligations and responsibilities of citi-senship? He can't make a state or na-tion by himself, and these ignorant mates are quite as apt to thwart his plans for the advancement of the common welfare, as they are to help him.
Only by chicanery can he hope to outstrip them and to have the good things of life for himself. Are you willing that he should? I am talking to fathers and mothers now.

Your neighbor's children growing up unlettered and untaught, are just as much a menace to you as your own would be. How?

says, "He who is not for me is against me," and in nothing on earth is this so true as in popular government.
We, as individuals, should insist that every normal child in our state should complete the elementary school work. He cannot meet his obligations as an active member of a free government with any less equipment.

Get these boys and girls into school!

Keep them there! You would better, by far, buy books and clothes and food for them now, and so turn them out creditable citizens, than fo be supporting them a few years later in penal instithem a few years later in penal institutions and poorhouses and bread lines —or works still, to have them overturning all your plans for decent and same government, by neglecting to sustain our common interests at the polis, or by falling into the hands of the ever alert and eager grafter and vote getter.

This appeal is to you, dear reader, Do you know of any children who are not in school regularly? What is the reason for their absence? Is it any reason that you could remedy? Could you give clothese or books or food to keep the children in school? Remember that in the next decade they will be making laws for you! School or no school—there you shall find them at the polls beside your boys and counting

Don't you think we would all better work for the enforcement of our present and also for better ones? Can't you see that these unlettered people are just as much a part of our national af-fairs as the most highly cultured? And by unlettered, I do not mean the grossly ignorant. I mean the people who do not read well enough to enjoy the current literature of the day and to be with another, and compare one argument with another, and to choose for themselves what they think is right.

We are building our nation day by day. We have before us all the material that we have. Shall we permit raw and unfinished materials to go into that precious structure-like unbaked bricks that crumble in the first cainor shall we prepare all our terials for use so that our stately edifice may endure forever?

MULLEN ENDS 11 YEAR TERM IN LAND OFFICE

(United Press Lessed Wire.)

Juneau, Jan. 2.—P. M. Mullen, a receiver of the United States land office, has resigned. His resignation is an outgrowth of the government's presecution of the coal lands claimants at Seattle. It was alleged that Mullen showed little interest in the prosecution. Recently the interior department intimated that his resignation would be acceptable. Mullen served in the United States land office in Alaska 11 years.
