

FORMER DISCIPLE AVERS PRIESTESS SWAYED WIDOW

One-Time Theosophist Important Witness in Thurston Will Contest; Tells of Mrs.
Tingley's Influence.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Diego, Cal., Jan. 10.—The sensational testimony of Arthur G. Friable, formerly a Theosophist, given here during the trial of the Harriet P. Thurston will contest suit, was the subject of discussion in the court room today before the case was resumed.
Friable, who recently resigned from the organization headed by Katherine Tingley, declared on the witness stand that Mrs. Tingley had suggested him as a business agent for Mrs. Thurston and that as a result he was employed in that capacity. He told of attending the "inner circle" of the Theosophists, and said that at these meetings Mrs. Tingley always sat beside the aged Mrs.
Thurston.
Mrs. Tingley declared, Friable testified, that when she first knew Mrs.
Thurston, the spiritualists and Christian Scientists were influencing her and "were after her money." Mrs.
Tingley said it was a "sad case," according to the witness.
Friable related at length the relationship of Mrs. Tingley and Mrs. Thurston before the latter's death and declared that Mrs. Tingley undoubtedly influenced Mrs. Thurston to a great extent.
Friable was on the stand today when the hearing was resumed.
Friable gave the first damaging evidence in the contest of the will of Mrs.
Harriet P. Thurston by her son George L. Patterson, the Newcastle, Pa., banker. When the direct examination of Friable was completed, State Senator L. A. Wright and his associates, representing Mrs. Katherine Tingley, bitterly attacked Friable's testimony, asking him why he transacted business for Mrs.
Thurston when she was old, infirm and perhaps mentally weak?
"Because, I believed she was acting under the advice of Katherine Tingley," was the reply.

DEMOCRATS CHEER WHEN THEY HEAR W. WILSON'S NAME

billed for the banquet were unable to reach Portland because of the storm.
These were Dr. C. J. Smith of Pendleton, W. M. Pierce of Hot Lake and Thomas G. Burke of Baker. About 200 covers were laid, and Democrats were gathered from all parts of the state.

George L. Smith, president of the Jackson club, was toastmaster. After a few remarks he presented Thomas M.
Vance as the first speaker. Vance is a son of the late United States Senator Zebulon B. Vance of North Carolina, was once attorney general of Washington, and is full of southern fire. His ready humor and fervid oratory quickly won the listeners, who burst into frequent applause.

"I am not in full accord with the new democracy," said Vance in one of his opening shots. "The tendency of the times is to sweep away the old moorings. The landmarks of representative government were founded as the result of dire experience, and were set by those who had just emerged from the conflict.

Democrats at Heart.
"Do not let us believe that the founders of the republic did not know the foundations they were laying. Do not tinker too readily with that structure." The insurgent Republicans are Democrats at heart, but they are ashamed to come in and take communion. They want to preserve the principle of the protective tariff. The Roosevelt irregulars want to reform the world by preserving the principle of private graft and public robbery.

"President Taft in his speeches defended his vetoes of the tariff bills without once mentioning the only defensible reason for the enactment of a revenue bill. He did not appear to recognize that the purpose of a revenue bill is revenue. Let us tell the truth, and not play for expediency. The Democrats are for a tariff for revenue only, and if not for that they are not Democrats. The doctrine of protection is to let the strong man feed on the little man's dinner, and the strong man grows to large proportions, so he can protect the little man.

Opposes Judicial Recall.
"I do not like the judicial recall. I have been to too many baseball games and heard the cry, 'Kill the umpire.' This constitution is for the protection of the minority in its individual rights, and we should not stand between the majority and the rights of the individual. When La Follette says the common law remedies are antiquated and outworn, it is to me as the cracklings under the pot.

"The Republican party is still trying to settle the money question. I do not know much about banking systems, but I know the Aldrich plan takes from the government the power of issuing money and puts it in the hands of the banks.
I am not a horseman either, but I know when my horse is stolen.

"What would have happened in Andrew Jackson's day in such a situation as we had in 1897, when the banks that could not pay would not go into the hands of receivers, but issued misdis-cussory money? What would Jackson have said if his secretary of the treasury had proposed to set aside the law and let the banks act in that way? Jackson would have been rich for his part.

Doctrine of Expediency.
"Take care the Republican party does not steal away the power of issuing currency. Stand by the fundamentals of the democracy, and all work together. Quit the doctrine of expediency, and we can meet one year from now and celebrate the election of a Democratic president."

as you can, if you stand in with the gang."

Governor Tells of Work.

Governor West proceeded to tell of his work at Salem, touching briefly on concrete road building, the parole system, reduction in expenses of state institutions, and the Carey land act problem. He said that when the time comes to account for his stewardship he expects to have something to show that will meet the approval of the people.
He commented on his eastern trip, and said that everywhere attention was directed to the governor of Oregon, because of the progressive laws in this state.

"When Democrats disagree, they usually disagree for different reasons, and when they agree, it is for the same reason," was one of the prefatory remarks of John M. Gearin in talking of "Party Organization."

"I believe in party organization and party responsibility," he said. "Party loyalty is consistent with loyalty to the country. There must be responsible leadership, that will answer back to the party and ultimately to the people."

"The Democratic party must show more than the ability to tear down.
What the people demand is constructive ability. In Oregon, by invidious means, politics came to be controlled by a gang of machine politicians.

Initiative, Referendum.
"This the people resented. Finally came the progressive legislation, and people took matters in their own hands.
While the Republican party is entitled to full credit for the support it has given, it was the Democratic party that stood sponsor for the initiative and referendum, always stood for it and advocated it."

"It was good Democratic doctrine before the movement for it was organized, and we must uphold that legislation." R. G. Smith of Grants Pass aroused enthusiasm by his denunciation of the tariff, and said that while he had once been a Republican, he wrote the only Republican platform in which indorsement of the tariff was left out. He said he is not afraid of popular legislation and not afraid of the rabble. He honored Andrew Jackson, he said, because Jackson opened the White House to the rabble. He spoke for the recall and pointedly referred to Senator Bourne's following of Aldrich in voting on the tariff bill.

Dr. Lane Speaker.
Dr. Harry Lane, discussing "The Duty of the Party," said its highest duty is to hold itself to its full duty to the people. If it fails, it will be because it fails in duty to the popular interest.

"I believe the people are to be trusted," he said. "It is better for the people to govern themselves than to be governed by any man set over them. Insofar as this lines up with the principles of Jefferson and Jackson, I believe with them. Whenever they depart from that, the line of cleavage begins. No question of expediency should count. It is the right of the people to be supreme."

"Any provision of the United States constitution that does not fit the exigencies of today and the needs of the people of this time should be changed."

State Senator M. A. Miller of Lebanon traced briefly the career of Andrew Jackson, whom he was assigned to eul-ogize. He declared that the spirit of Jackson is to extend the power of the common people and declared that the Democratic party is for direct nomination of president, as it is for direct nomination of United States senators.

Denounces Tariff.
"Judges are made of the same clay as the rest of us," said the speaker, and if false to his trust should be recalled. A judge of the supreme court changed his mind over night and declared the income tax unconstitutional.

Should not a judge like that be recalled?"

It was near the hour of midnight when Senator Miller concluded his remarks and the Democrats scattered to their homes.

BORROWED MONEY GAVE TO CARNEGIE START IN BUSINESS

that he could build a plant at Connant that would save $10 a ton on manufactured steel tubes. I told him to go ahead."

Chairman Stanley and Carnegie engaged in many witty sallies. As the evening left the stand Stanley thanked him and said that he regretted the necessity of serving him with a subpoena.

Glad to Have Document.
"I am delighted to have that odd official document to hand down to my heirs," retorted Carnegie. "The signature of Chairman Stanley may be worth something in the years to come."

"I'm mighty glad some one values it," was Stanley's reply.

"You must have a quantity of bills payable out for collection," suggested Carnegie.

"No," said Stanley, "I am a poor man head over heels in debt."

"Will you accept a library," said Carnegie with a smile.
Stanley shook his head and Carnegie closed the exchange with the declaration that it was a "disgrace to the country that its public servants are paid so poorly."

Calls Schwab Genius.

Carnegie then told of bringing the Bessemer and Open Hearth steel processes to America from Scotland and called Charles Schwab "the greatest genius I ever knew."

Carnegie has prepared a lengthy statement for the committee, suggesting the creation of an industrial commission to solve trust problems. He said:
"It should be modeled after the interstate commerce commission. But it needn't fix all the prices. This body should examine all details concerning manufactured and natural products, ascertain the cost of production, fix the minimum selling price, based on the average cost of production to a well managed and up-to-date works. If, however, the works happened to be both poorly constructed and conducted, it should be permitted to reach a standard of perfection or suffer the consequences of mismanagement."

BRITISH MINERS READY FOR STRIKE

611,000 Coal Workers Vote Unanimously to Demand
Minimum Wage Scale.

London, Jan. 10.—Voting almost unanimously in favor of the establishment of a "minimum wage scale in British collieries, a strike of 611,000 miners on March 1 seems inevitable today.

The miners are voting on the minimum wage proposition and if two-thirds favor the proposition, as seems likely, they are prepared for a long fight in case their demands are not met. The balloting will close Friday.

The collieries at Cardiff already have suspended all domestic and commercial deliveries on account of the great demand made on their supply by the British navy. The supply of coal now on hand will not last England a month.

Radical labor leaders predicted today a civil war in the event of the government attempting to operate the collieries, should the miners decide to strike.

Convict Shot Down.
San Quentin, Cal., Jan. 10.—Shot down by a prison guard, Frank Revere, sentenced for three years from Kern county, is at the hospital today with a bullet through his leg. Revere and C. Schwatka, a contractor in charge of road work, had an altercation. Revere ordered Schwatka to fight. Then he rushed at Schwatka. Another guard fired, and Revere fell.

Good Price for Land.

(Special to The Journal.) Albany, Or., Jan. 10.—One hundred acres located near Tangent, owned by A. D. Hudson of Tangent, was purchased today by J. A. Howard of this city for $12,000. Mr. Howard states that he will cut this up in small tracts and put it on the market.

Spirits for Rheumatism

The use of spirits in the treatment of rheumatism has proved an innovation among the medical profession.
When mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly it is said to be an almost infallible cure for rheumatism and backache. Here is the formula: "From your druggist get one ounce of Toris compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of asyrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime." Results come immediately. If your druggist does not have Toris compound in stock he will get it in a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take some patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Toris compound in the original one ounce sealed yellow package.
