Railroads Won't Be Losers.

Reason No. 5-Free tolls would tend Reason No. 5-Free tolls would tend to increase the remunerative short haul on, are to have a railway station. This traffic of the rail carriers, relieving the transcontinental roads of low grade Superintendent D. W. Campbell, who as-tonnage now necessarily handled in sures the state rallroad commission that enormous volume at relatively low rates, although this low grade tonnage should logically be water borne at still lower, rates. The larger volume of high grade tonnage, preferring rapid transit to low transportation cost, will continue to move by rall at relatively high remunerative rates. The short haul traffic from cosst to interior and vice versa, stimulated as it would thus be, would tend to compensate rail carriers for any loss in volume of transcontinental business.

Reason No. 6-Free tolls, in last analysis, would save another item of expense to primary producer and ultimate consumer, principally the latter. Every individual in the United States would thus be directly benefited.
