

Fifteen Elk Begin Last Lap of Journey to New Oregon Home
Leave La Grande This Morning for Cheshimnus Forest

Above—Elk being hauled in crates on sledges from Jackson Hole to St. Anthony. Below—Herd of 15 elk for Cheshimnus national forest, in corral.

(Special to The Journal.)
 La Grande, Or., March 14.—Tamed and "civilized" by constant touch with man since early last week, the Jackson Hole elk that 10 days ago devoured tin cans in wrath of captivity, this afternoon on the last rail lap of the long journey, were content to chew their hands should touch them.
 With "Roosevelt" and "Tati" regally positioned at the doorway of the car, the other 13 elk are unafraid and their big bull leaders have become so accustomed to the presence of man that today hundreds patted the big bulls. A steady stream of people climbed up the box cars today and viewed the elk on their way to Wallawa. The herd arrived last evening at 10 o'clock and 12 hours later commenced the next to the last lap of their journey ere they reach the Cheshimnus range, 40 miles from Joseph. They are in perfect condition, but have a hard sledge ride yet before them.
 "Thousands have viewed the herd since we left St. Anthony," said Game Warden Finley. "At every stop streams of people have come."
 "All night in La Grande and up to train time people were eager to get a glimpse of the herd. Everything is in first class condition and we will soon have them on their future pastures. Roosevelt and Tati are the biggest elk that have ever been shipped out of the Wyoming pastures. The antlers have been cropped."

OPPOSE ANY CHANGE IN FERRY LANDING

A petition signed by 80 persons living near the west approach to the St. Johns ferry was filed with the county court yesterday afternoon asking the court not to change the ferry landing on the west bank of the river. Attorney J. A. Middleton presented the petition and promised the court to present further evidence that the county has a right of way to the river's edge.
 The property adjoining the river at the ferry landing is owned by Campbell & Swiger, who ask $100 a front foot for a strip sufficiently wide to allow the landing. The testimony of pioneers, it is said, will show that the county has always held a right to a highway to the wharf at that point, and still maintains the land.
 The county court allowed the vacation of Springville in 1908, thereby shutting off from the river a right of the public to a ferry landing, unless it can be established that the old Springville road could not be vacated.
 County Commissioner Hart declared the county still has a right to the highway, and that he will not consent to the purchase of land until the court has passed upon this right. The commissioner and K. C. Couch, former mayor of St. Johns, this morning investigated the ferry slips and the old approach to the west side landing. Couch agreed to put the west side slip in shape for temporary use.
 Commissioner Lighner expressed yesterday his idea that the old Springville road did not go to the harbor line, therefore the county may have to purchase a narrow strip for a landing. However, he said the county should force a landing if possible. Judge Weston has asked Attorney Middleton for further information relative to the old route to the river.

SINGLE TAX PROVING SUCCESS IN EDMONTON

Mayor G. S. Armstrong of Edmonton, Alberta, in a letter to a Portland citizen, declares that the single tax, which is in operation in that city, has proved a complete success. The following extract from the letter tells something of its operation there:
 "One city is now on absolutely the single tax basis, and has been for some time. The provincial government, so far as I can learn, has never been anything else but single tax. The system adopted is as follows: The school rate in each district is levied at so much per acre, the rate being just sufficient to cover the cost of that school district for this current year, and there has been a rate of 5 cents per acre levied on the land for the upkeep of roads. The government does the rest of the improvements. Nearly every city, town and village in the province of Alberta has recently declared for the single tax and is adopting the same. We think it the only just system of taxation that can possibly be in existence, as taxing improvements is simply placing a barrier against the upbuilding of industry."
