Hints for Easter Brides.

As the days of Lent are slipping by the Easter brides are naturally busy making plans for their forthcoming weddings. Gradually fancy and ingenuity are adding fresh features of interest to the cast iron form of English weddings. A step in the direction of novelty was taken some months ago, when a bride went to the altar accompanied by a best girl, and on more than one occasion since this example has been copied. Matrons of honor, as well as brideamaids, are also beginning to figure in English weddings. This novel note was struck in a recent wedding. Three little flower girls strewed flowers before the bridal pair, who were followed by no fewer than 1 attendants. Another novelty is one that will be of real use to poor brides as well as rich. Every girl who has gone through the ordeal of changing her name in a public place of worship remembers the difficulty with which she got off.

All San Francisco today is eagerly awaiting Madame Tetrazzini's reply to this challenge. It is generally expected that Tetrazzini will accept, as her press agent says "the diva is a woman of spirit"

There is considerable rivalry between the song birds, because Madame Chambellan's manager advertised the latter as the equal of Tetranzini. This is said to have peeved the latter, and when Chambellan applied for tickets to the Tetrazzini concert yesterday she was denied them. This angered Chambellan and she promptly issued the chal-
