What Writer Calls Falsehoods Pointed Out: Who Is Behind Aspirant for Dairy and Food Commissioner?

Banks, Or., March 23 .- To the Editor of The Journal-In the Pacific Homestead of March 14, a farm paper printed at Salem, appears an article intended to boost the candidacy of A. H. Lea for the nomination for dairy and food commissioner. The article contains many misleading statements as well as out-right falsehoods. The Homestead gives lane. credit to the Salem Statesman for the of that article had accused this cream-article. Both the Homestead and the ery combine of indorsing Mr. Lea inarticle. Both the Homestead and the Statesman being published by the same people I suppose the Statesman in turn gave the Homestead credit for it. This is surely a novel way of shifting the responsibility, and the character of the article is such that it needs shifting.
"He (A. H. Lea) has been indorsed by granges all over the state, by the con-sumers' leagues and by the Portland Ministerial association," says the Homestead-Statesman. Now since the granges do not indorse political candidates at all, that much ink has been wasted. Report Was Palse.

What consumers' league indorsed Lea? The Portland Consumers' league has not and never will. Possibly it was the consumers' league of Salem or Eola Lincoln. The Portland General Ministerial association did not indorse Lea or any other candidate. It is true that a newspaper report a few days ago stated that Mr. Lea and others had been indorsed by the Ministerial association but it was a false report. However, we will not charge this last named error to the Homestead-Statesman combination for they have made enough erchances of errors rather than miss an would the voters flock to his standard opportunity to boost for his friend.

Who Are His Friends? The article also states that Mr. Lea's friends have been so insistent upon Lea becoming a candidate that he finally-had to accede to their wishes. Now who are these friends? The Homestead-Statesman would like to have us believe that they are as numerous as the stars of heaven. The fact of the matter is that in January 1911, while the grand jury and the legislature were both investigating the affairs of J. W. Balley, the present dairy and food commissioner, and it became apparent to Mr. Builey that he could not not be reelected, the scheme was hatched to elect Lea in his stead. I suppose this they will construe into a sort of Damon and Pythias affair—one willing to die for the other. The friends referred to then in the Homestead-Stateaman article of March 14 are J. W. Bailey, E. T. Judd. his chief deputy, and the writer of the Homestead-Statesman article.

Plans Are Hatched, In the assembly chamber of the dairy and food commissioner's office this asembly gang, consisting of Lea and the above named friends, at that time laid their plans for the present campaign. If the voters want the present administra-tion in the dairy and food department of the state to continue why not reelect J. W. Balley? I believe he is more hon-orable than Mr. Lea. Besides it is un-just to ask Mr. Lea to divide his time between the management of his cream-ery and duties of the office of dairy and food commissioner for the measiy sum of $2000 a year. of $2000 a year,

The Homestead-Statesman scribe also says: "The Portland creamery combine is massing its forces to fight him to the last ditch." Possibly he got the language from some military code. Yes, the Portland creamery combine and Les are fighting just like two lovers arm in arm slowly lottering down the shady Call that fighting? If the writer stead of fighting him he could have made a reputation for truthfulness. But his chances are spoiled now. Mr. Lea has always been identified with the large centralized plants and quite likely always will be.

Misbranding Butter. The writer for the Homestend-Statesnan promises for Lea that he will if elected put a stop to the misbranding of butter. If so why does not Mr. Lea discontinue it now, at least while the campaign is on? Only two weeks ago the owner of a small creamery up the valley complained that Mr. Lea is selling his (the small creamery man's) butter as his (Lea's) own. Yet this is one of the "outside" creamery men who the Homestead-Statesman writer says are "flocking to his standard by the thousands." The language used by this creamery man in denouncing Lea would not sound well in the "flock."

"There is a law now on the statute books which forbids this, passed at the last session of the legislature," says the misinformed scribe, the words having reference to seiling eastern butter as by the thousands as the scribe says.

Commendable Paragraph. The last paragraph of the Homestead-Statesman article is a real commendable production. It is a very unfortunate and regretable incident to have this paragraph hopelessly spoiled by having it come trailing after such a jumble of in which every person in Oregon who buys food is interested and the voters should study this question carefully, and be prepared to vote intelligently as it is one of the most important matters which will come before them at this election. It is the old fight of the plutocratic interests for profit at the expense of the health and pocketbooks of the masses." This paragraph, with Lea playing to the plutocratic interests would have been timely if placed by tself and not robbed of its real merits by that which precedes it. M. S. SHROCK.

Government Gave Hand.

As a consequence, it was recommended to the government by the department here to allow these Indians lands, which was done about 15 years ago. Every Indian man, woman and child was given 160 acres to be held in trust for 25 years, no disposition of this land to be made by them only under the direction of the President of the United States. If at the end of the 25 years the land has been cultivated and improved patents were to be issued. For about four years Dr. Marsden and Wm. Farre, register of the local land office, have been endeavoring to get the government to make disposition of the Indian lands, both for the benefit of the Indians, and also to benefit the country by putting the holdings in shape for development.

About two years ago Prof. Rakestraw, in charge of the Indian school at Ft. Bidwell was instructed to come to Burns and carry out the government plans.
