They gathered in a run in the first inning and Daley made the circuit. That was all for the beginning, but it was enough to indicate that little Blaine Durbin wasn't putting much on the ball except thumb prints.

Rally in Seventh.

In the third the Angels scored on a hit, a sacrifice and a long fly. In the seventh round Toner walked. Then came a pair of errors, followed up by a two bagger by Howard and Metzger was over for the third run. The final run for the Angels came in the eighth. Daley bunted down the third base line and Heitmuller hung up another buster, putting himself in possession of first and Daley around to third. Whereupon Pop Dillon tried a nice little bunt that squeezed Daley over the plate.

The Oaks scored in the third. Leard singled to left and was out. Heitmuller dropped Hoffman's fly and Coy brought him home.

Baseball Notes

Art Bues, the leading slugger of the Northwestern league last season, has been turned over to the Buffalo team in the International league. Bues will be taken back by the Giants next year.

Catcher Spencer has been released by the Tacoma Tigers. Spencer failed to show any "come back" form.

Phil Cooney, former Beaver, put his fists up against the face of a Spokane crab, the other day and had to be pulled away from his opponent. The fan took delight in calling Cooney names and Phil couldn't stand it any longer. This is the second time Phil has beat up "crabbing" fans.

Bert Coy has fallen heir to $50 as the result of hitting the bull sign in Freeman's Park, Oakland. Coy is the first player in the United States to accomplish the trick this season.

Says J. Newton Colver in the Spokane Spokesman-Review last Sunday: Portland scribes keep claiming that Nick Williams is going to have a better team than he did in 1911. I can't see Nick Williams' present lineup with a telescope. He is too badly handicapped." By this time, perhaps, Newt has heard the news from Seattle.

An eleven weeks' schedule of Sunday games for the Tillamook baseball team has been announced. Leading semi-professional teams throughout the state will be met. Fife hundred a month has been pledged to support the team. T. B. Hanley has been elected manager, and E. T. Haltom, W. J. Stephenson and Walter F. Baker, directors. Work will be commenced in the near future on a new grand stand to be built at the ball park.

(Special to The Journal.)

Cottage Grove, Or., April 20.—The Creswell ball team will play with the home team on Cottage Grove's grounds tomorrow afternoon. There is considerable rivalry between the two teams and the fans are anticipating something lively in the way of baseball.

CALIFORNIA WINS THE ANNUAL TRACK MEET

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Berkeley, Cal., April 20.—California university defeated Stanford university in their annual track meet today 80 5-21 to 41 16-21. The unusual fractions were caused by the ties in the pole vault and high jump, which were unsettled, as California had the meet won. A number of California records were broken, the two mile, Crabbe, 9:55 1-5; one mile run, Fletcher, 4:28 2-5; high hurdle, MacLise, 15 2-5; shot put, Rice, 46 feet 7 3-8 inches; hammer throw, Shattuck 161 feet 2 inches; broad jump, Allen, 23 feet 4 7-8 inches; one mile relay, four men team, 3:22 2-5. Stanford got most points in two events, 880 yard run, 4 to 5, and relay race five points. California did not compete in this event.

TACOMA TIGERS WIN CLOSE GAME, 1 TO 0

(Special to The Journal.)

Vancouver, B. C., April 20.—Tacoma squeezed out a 1-0 victory over Vancouver today in the best game of the series. It was a grand pitchers' battle in which Bert Hall, Tacoma's star hurler, emerged victorious over Bob Smith, the Vancouver twirler recently acquired from the Boston Americans. Every inning was replete with snappy fielding stunts and it was anybody's game right up until the last man was retired in the ninth. Score:

Great Game in St. Louis.

St. Louis, April 20.—The Browns and White Sox battled for 15 innings without a run today. The game was called on account of darkness. Baumgardner, the young recruit, who beat Ed Walsh in Chicago, made the most notable record ever hung up by a youngster when, with his support crumbling behind him, he tightened up and came stronger and stronger in each succeeding inning. He struck out 10 men and allowed only nine hits and the Browns made five miscues behind him. Scott, for the Sox, pitched another tight ball the entire route, allowing six hits while his support was gilt edged. It was one of the greatest games ever seen here.

SACRAMENTO HANDS DEFEAT TO HOGAN

Umpires Have a Busy Time Chasing Vernon Players From the Field.

Los Angeles, April 20.—The Senators slipped over a 7 to 5 victory in today's session with the Naps, but the [illegible] fight argument was merely an incident. The primary battle was a tussel between the players and the arbiters. At the conclusion the umpires were awarded the decision. The indicator men led off by doling out some decisions that were objected to. The players countered with vociferous shouts of derision and continuous wrangling. They then called it. No blows were struck, but the battle royal of words, more words and expulsions places the Washington Park turf as a serious rival of Uncle Tom's Vernon arena.

One by one the various Vernon performers clashed with the umpires and one by one they picked up their belongings and stalked off the field. The only happy mortals at the gathering was Patsy O'Rourke, who sat in the grandstand with a suspension plastered on his person and the uniformed visitors who took advantage of the disturbance to romp away with the coveted scalp.

Between thumps the Sacramentos garnered wallops of all lengths, from scratch bingles to Swain's four base clout, and drove Harry Stewart off the mound. Arellanes was none too good in spite, but he was let out by the fact that the storky Stewart's bad spots were a shade worse. Whalen relieved Stewart in the eighth but the game by this time was lost to the Tigers.

LITTLE STORIES OF THE MAT

BY LLOYD KENYON JONES

Beell Licked the Tar.

When Fred Beell was a cub—just 14, and laid out on the lines of a shingle-block—he was the human jack-screw. Fred was filled with an ambition to lift everything. He was the funeral knell of the law of gravitation.

Among Fred's friends in Marshfield, Wis., were a number of brothers named Mess—sort of Messmates of Fred. They had sway over a meat market—and made good sausage—and knew that the day would come when Fred would make the grappling world sit up and say "How!"

The Mess boys had decided to treat their roof to a new coat of tar and gravel and not having studied dynamics seriously, they had vague ideas of rigging up block and tackle—just as though they needed more mechanical aids with Beell around.

Down on the ground was a half barrel of tar—and there are lighter things in this world than tar. It is heavy in color—and it refused to aeroplane to the lofty reaches some twenty-odd feet above the cold, dank ground.

At the point where the debate was getting torrid, Fritz stepped upon the scene.

"Ah, ha!" Beell exclaimed. "The tar!"

That was the battle cry—and likewise the Injun sign for the block and tackle, that now dangled helplessly and happiessly from the eaves.

Fred stripped for action—that is almost. Then he squared himself on his two-ones and said, "Boys, a lift, please."

When the half-barrel of tar rested on Teddie's good left shoulder, he trundled over to the ladder and slowly began to ascend.

If the Newtos had only seen him then! He made his deductions from a little seven up apple—but here was a barrel of tar rising above the earth with the grace of a balloon!

It was a good ladder—which was well. And at the top was the roof—and upon the roof that tar consignment reposed, with Fred taking a long stretch, and surveying the depth from which the black stuff had been lifted.

Fred didn't make any stump speech and challenge the winner. He simply walked on his heels to the point where the ladder said "good-morrow" to the roof, and then observed—tersely:

"Gee that ain't so worser! I'll bet if I got a good ladder, I could bring up a whole barrel of tar!"

Such is the laconic wisdom of great men.

And the Mess boys arose to the occasion nobly.

Said they in unison, and in the fullness of their hearts:

"Fred, in the ice-box is sausage. Go as far as you like!"

GIANTS REVENGE SELVES ON COLTS

Southpaw Hirsch Is Wild and Seattle Players Wait Him Out.

Seattle, Wash., April 20.—Revenge in large doses was taken by Berry's Giants this afternoon on Williams' Colts, who went down to disastrous defeat, 13 to 4. It was a long and tiresome game featured by two home runs. That by Speas in the fifth was timely and one of the longest drives ever made over the fence of the local grounds. This scored two runners ahead of him and placed the Nicks in the running after Seattle had forged to the front in the fourth, when Mann's terrific drive cleared the right field fence with the bases filled. Speas won a fancy vest for first homer of the season over the left fence. Portland's first run was scored on singles by Williams and Kibble and Harris' sacrifice.

Hirsch, the big southpaw had ample speed and good curves but he was wild as a March hare and the Giants waited him out. Consequently he was in trouble all the time and opportune safeties by Mann, Weed, McMullin and Raymond gave the locals the lop sided score. Williams kept Hirsch at work until the seventh, when Thomas succeeded him and stopped the slaughter, although he forced in one run. Ingersoll, a local amateur, showed up well and although he was inclined to wildness he was in good shape and exhibited fine judgment. He was supported by good fielding but there was nothing brilliant.

Barry shook up his batting list, replacing Chick with McMullin, who fielded perfectly and scored three runs by timely hits. The locals looked better than in any previous game and they gave the visitors the appearance of bushers. Strait, who has been the batting sensation of the week, failed to pick any off Ingersoll's delivery. He had a great chance in the eighth to clean the bases but Mann captured the drive after a hard run. The series now stands three to two in favor of the visitors.

"BAD BILL" DAHLEN STRIKES UMPIRE

New York, April 20.—Plainly angered because the Giants had beaten his team in the tenth inning, Manager Dahlen of the Brooklyns, struck at Umpire Rigler this afternoon and for a few minutes there came near being a riot on the Polo grounds. The crowd rushed on the field but the players, assisted by the special police, kept them in check.

As a result of his action, Dahlen is likely to draw an indefinite suspension from President Lynch.

Claiming that Umpire Rigler was at fault in the mix up with Manager Dahlen, President Ebbetts of the Brooklyn Nationals, telegraphed to President Lynch tonight demanding that the umpire be punished.

PACKEY MAY NOT MEET MATT WELLS

Chicago, April 20.—Packey McFarland was tonight awaiting the posting by the Madison Square Athletic club in New York of the forfeit which is to bind his match with Matt Wells. Unless the forfeit is posted tonight by Matchmaker Tim Hurst in New York, McFarland says he will formally call the bout off tomorrow.

"Hurst has been trying some bulldozing tactics on us, but they will not work," said the stockyards fighter. "My money is up and he will have to put up his money tonight or there will be no fight April 26. He'll have to show us before we step one foot from home."

McFarland was prepared to depart tomorrow or Monday for Gotham, as his contract calls for his presence there four days before the fight.

This Was Some Freak.

Writing on freak plays that have won important baseball games, Hugh S. Fullerton tells the following story in the May American Magazine:

"A freak play robbed 'Doc' Casey's Toronto team of a game in the Eastern league. The game was at Rochester and Casey's catching staff was so crippled that the plump little veteran was compelled to don the wind pad himself. Casey is short and quite stout. But he was doing fairly well until the tenth inning, when Rochester had a runner on third with two out. A wild pitched ball struck the ground in front of Casey and disappeared. The runner hesitated until he saw Casey making frantic efforts to get the ball from under his protector, then he came home with the winning run just as Casey located the sphere, which had gone under the protector and wedged itself past the elastic belt too tightly."

Construction of Steel Superstructure Commences—Ready by Feb., 1913.

Work on the steel superstructure of the Broadway bridge was commenced yesterday. Eight carloads of steel are on the ground. H. M. Harpe, representative of the bridge engineer, Ralph Modjeski, said yesterday there was every prospect of the bridge being completed on contract time, February 3, 1913.

Mr. Modjeski will arrive in Portland Tuesday morning. He was recently selected as engineer of the proposed interstate bridge over the Columbia between Portland and Vancouver, and Tuesday at noon he will meet the Commercial club bridge committee, of which Frank B. Riley is chairman, in conference. "Art in Bridge Building" will be the subject of an illustrated address which he will deliver in the green room of the Commercial club Wednesday evening. SEVEN BABIES TAKEN FROM PRIVATE HOME

Seven helpless little babies were taken away this morning from a private baby home conducted by Mrs. A. Miller at the corner of Hoyt and Twentieth streets and made wards of the juvenile court. Complaints were filed by State Health Officer C. S. White before the court that the babes were not being properly cared for. Three of the little ones, infants under 1 year, were sent to the Multnomah hospital. The other four, who are between 2 and 3 years of age, are now in the detention home.

The baby home superintended by Mrs. Miller was visited Friday afternoon by State Health Officer White, City Health Officer C. H. Wheeler and County Health Officer E. P. Geary. The health officials found conditions at the home so unsanitary that they at once prepared to have the children removed. The complaints filed in the juvenile court were the result of a conference of the three physicians.

CABLE SHIP READY FOR "BONEYARD"

Unable to Do Service Government Craft Is Tied Up at Seattle.

(Special to The Journal.)

Seattle, Wash., April 20.—Although the war department maintains an expensive organization aboard the United States cableship Burnside, the ship is tied up in Seattle unfit for service. The condition of the old vessel became known a few days ago when the Alaska cable underwent one of its periodical breaks, and for about 10 days communication with Alaska by cable has been cut off. This has resulted in much inconvenience to local business interests, who rely largely on the cable for transacting business with the north.

Unable to make the Burnside fit for service, the quartermaster department this week chartered a tug and scow, on which were loaded the machinery and supplies needed to make cable repairs. The break was found in the Straits of Fuca, and after two or three days of grappling the line was spliced and communication has been restored.

The Burnside has been in the government service since 1898, when she was captured from the Spanish. At that time she was a merchant vessel known as the Rita. She was the first war prize in the hostilities with Spain. Since then the Burnside has done cable duty in the Philippines, and then she was assigned to Puget sound. She laid the Alaska cable, and has since been kept here to make repairs and to do other cable work, which has included repairs in the Columbia and also at San Francisco. Four years ago new boilers were installed in the steamer.

ELECTRIC LINE MAY BE EXTENDED FROM SIFTON

Extension of the electric railroad of the Oregon-Washington Corporation from Sifton, the present terminus of the line, to Hockinson, is said to be very probable in the near future. At a meeting in Hockinson during the week a number of farmers along the route of the proposed extension promised their hearty support and cooperation.

The line runs from Vancouver to Sifton, a distance of eight miles, and possibilities for extending it 15 or 20 miles on a water grade are said to be excellent, and through districts with splendid possibilities for heavy traffic.

A great deal of development has been going on in that direction during the past two years, and it is pointed out that the road if extended would meet with profit-paying patronage from the start.

P. R., L. & P. CO. TO EXTEND LINE IS ANNOUNCED

At the regular weekly meeting of the Killingsworth Avenue Push club, held last Thursday evening at East Nineteenth and Killingsworth, a report was made by the railway committee to the effect that the Portland Railway, Light & Power company stood ready to extend the carline east to East Twenty-fourth street, provided the property owners would bear a portion of the expense. The report will come up for extended discussion at the next meeting, Wednesday evening of this week, and at the same time will be discussed a report submitted by the same committee, suggesting the extension of the Irvington line along East Fifteenth to Killingsworth.

The largest casting ever made in the United States, a 330,000 pound base for a foreign press, recently was completed at a Pennsylvania steel works.
