

RATE MAKING FOR PANAMA CANAL IS CONGRESS' BIG JOB

Senator Poindexter of Washington Favours Early Action Looking to Development of American Marine.

(Washington: Bureau of The Journal) Washington, May 31. — From all indications it will be but little more than a year when the dreams of the century will be realized in a waterway ready for the passage of ships across the Isthmus of Panama.

"Considering the two great essential interests which are primarily affected by the opening of the canal and the amount of tolls charged, there is no more important question pressing for immediate solution by congress than this. The two great interests are: first, transcontinental transportation rates, and second, the development of an American merchant marine.

"The issue of free passage through the canal for American ships has been a subject raised by the minority report filed by Congressman Knowland of California and others from the committee on interstate and foreign commerce of the house of representatives.

"The transcontinental railroads for years have obstructed and delayed the building of this great waterway, and now that its completion is within reach, several hundred millions of the people's money have been invested in this work both as a commercial and a military necessity.

"It is obvious that free passage through the canal for the American people, their ships, goods and passengers, so far as the commercial aspects of it are concerned, is the greatest return they could have from the canal. In no other way can the greatest effect upon transcontinental freight rates be obtained. In the future, if no canal be of equal effect in bringing and binding together in closer relations, socially and commercially, the two coasts of the nation, and all the sports of the Pacific, the Gulf and the Atlantic.
