Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore., June 11.—The morning at 10 o'clock the forty-third annual commencement exercises of the Oregon Agricultural College were held in the college gymnasium at which 118 degrees of Bachelor of Science were conferred by President Kerr and two members of the faculty.

The commencement address was delivered by Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford Junior University, who chose as his topic, "The Case Against War," and a stirring appeal for universal peace was made by Jordan in an international address on the world peace movement.

The graduating class this year showed a great advance in numbers in the engineering courses, 37 taking Bachelor degrees and one taking a Master's degree in that department. The domestic science and art department followed second, 23 being graduated. Twenty-seven were graduated in agriculture, eight in commerce and seven in pharmacy, while five diplomas were awarded in the school of music.

CHARACTER ACTOR ORPHEUM TOPLNER

Frank Keenan Bright Star—Cleopatra Dance, Musical Skit.

A bill of unusual excellence is the offering of the Orpheum this week. Frank Keenan, character actor, topped the flood of popularity last night, when he was forced to respond with a certain speech at the close of his gripping playlet, "Man to Man." No finer bit of acting has been given at the Orpheum than Mr. Keenan's portrayal of a poor wretch from New York, toward the end of which he meets the rich owner on an unexpectedly equal footing, and triumphs over him and his wealth in a surprising and excited manner. Mr. Keenan is superb. His characterization is a thing of life, not of the stage and he sends forth an appeal which touches the heart strings of every auditor. He is supported by a cast of individual excellence. His youngest daughter is the very clever office girl.

From tears of emotion to tears of laughter in a moment was the transition caused by Ed Wynn, his hat, and Edmund Bussey, who followed the playlet. Mr. Wynn has been here before and his act is little changed by virtue of not needing it. He was just as funny and scored the same abundance of laughs.

Of the many vaudeville dancers Princess Rajah is in a class by herself. As little and stoups as the big serpent she danced with, she gave a fascinating and beautiful Cleopatra dance with special scenery. This was followed by the Arabian chair dance which is unlike anything seen here and which makes tremendous demands on strength and grace. The princess is beautiful, with lovely costumes, and her act was nothing short of a sensation.

Boudini Brothers are back with their accordions and again prove themselves wizards of that humble instrument. They are artists and their playing brought forth storms of applause. They do not stop after a second act almost stops the show but that was the approval voted out to Carl de Marest, the dancing violinist of the many violinists. De Marest is among the very best, playing with a clean-cut technique and feeling which won him instant success. He playing and dancing stunts was a riot.

The bill is opened by Maren and Delton Brothers in a series of athletic surprises which proved skilful and entertaining. Their comedian made a hit of his own, and the act went big. Louis J. Winch and Josephine Poore Gustav Peter Wangstrom, Mist, Maynard Andrew Young, Collins.

EUROPEAN PACT REPORT'S SUBJECT

Rumors of Alliance Between France and England Feel Direction of Wind.

(United Press Landed Wire.)

Paris, June 11.—Rumors of an alliance between France and England continue to hang on with some persistence that statesmen here today freely state their belief that the reports have had high origin and were launched to see which way the wind blows.

Coincidentally with the rumors comes the announcement that Prime Minister Poincaré of France will pay an official visit to Russia in August, where he will meet the Russian foreign minister, M. Sazonoff. It is stated that the visit is merely a polite "party call" but as an entente already exists between Russia, France and England, and an alliance between France and Russia, political circles here are whispering of a probable second triple alliance to offset the original—that between Italy, Austria and Germany.

RAIL CHIEF PROVES SELF GOOD BOOSTER

Determined that the Rose Festival crowds should realize that the Northwest Development special was in the city.

Mr. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern railway, and one of the staunch supporters of the league, hits upon a plan to make the general public ask questions about an organization which he says is one of Oregon's greatest assets.

When on his travels about the country Mr. Hill carries an automobile for his own use, which he takes great delight in driving. Unbeknown to the rest of his party, he made a trip to the suburb yesterday afternoon, secured a plentiful supply of evergreens and the department stores were then searched for Christmas decorations, bright ornaments and tinsels.

About the time that business men of the Twin City and other portions of the northwest were inquiring for Mr. Hill the blast of trumpets and the tooting of horns announced Mr. Hill's arrival at Fifth and Washington streets in a gaily decorated automobile, with the banners of the league streaming forth to be read by everyone who crowded about to inspect the automobile.

Thinking that perhaps the usual decorations might not prove the greatest possible drawing card, Mr. Hill tied two large oriental masks over the lights and the papermache heads of departed mandarins served to get the attention of the crowds along Washington street. After the banquet at the commercial club to the visitors Mr. Hill ran his machine about Washington street for more than an hour.

This afternoon Mr. Hill prebared the services of several small boys with lusty lungs and had them accompany him about town. The youngsters wore the oriental masks and with their shouts to the accompaniment of bells and horns kept the name "Northwest Development League" before the crowds all day. This evening Mr. Hill may enter his machine in the electric parade as a section from the Great Northern's Oriental Limited.

The state church of Norway was officially represented at the ceremonies by the bishop of Trondjem and Hans Nielsen Hauge, a grandson of the reformer.

CROWNING OF KING SEEN IN KINEMACOLOR

The most gorgeous and inspiring pageant in the world's history. "The Durbar in Kinemacolor" reproduces in motion and natural color the dazzling splendor attending the coronation of King George and Queen Mary as emperor and empress of India, comes to the Helig theatre, Seventh and Taylor street, Portland, for six afternoons and evenings, opening last night.

Kinemacolor pictures are not merely moving pictures—they are the thing itself, and the immense value of the new natural color photography as applied to Kinemacolor is demonstrated in the fact that the authorities offered the Kinemacolor camera corps at the great Indian Durbar.

The Durbar lent itself admirably to color. The arrival of the king and queen at Bombay in the royal yacht and the royal procession through the city—a prophecy of the brilliant grouping in succession of the British and Indian troops to follow in subsequent scenes. The pageant is presented in an ascending scale of interest. Their majesties arrive at Solimgarh by train, following which is the grand state entry through the elephant gate of the Delhi fort, affording a wondrous spectacle of the native princes in their equipages of scarlet, silver and gold, inset with dazzling jewels; the elephant and camel corps with their magnificent trappings, the review of the famous Black Watch of Scotland and in all over 5,000 British and Indian troops, the ruins of ancient Delhi, the horse races at Calcutta for the king's cup; the ascent of the king and queen on their thrones robed in royal regalia and in all it is the real Durbar brought to America, where we do not feel the blinding sun or blinding dust of India, but are privileged to enjoy all of its grandeur from an opera chair without the discomfort of a fatiguing journey to the orient.

A special lecturer and an augmented orchestra, which will render oriental melodies and stirring marches composed for the Durbar, will add to the beauty and fascination of the production.

Water Supply Threatened by Fire.

(United Press Landed Wire.)

Carson, Nev., June 11.—Fire fighters are trying vainly today to check a forest fire which is raging through the thick underbrush near the Elizabeth mine, about five miles from this city. Thousands of acres of growth timber have already been swept. The fire is devastating the watershed upon which Carson depends for its domestic supply, and a shortage is feared.
