all over the hall. Questions were being handled back and forth. Finally Allen answered.

"I want to support the business of this convention more than any one else in the convention and I will support the business of this convention only if he secures that nomination honorably and it is not accompanied by fraud or thievery."

Roosevelt Delegates Yell.

The Roosevelt delegates jumped to their feet with a wild yell and a fusillade of cheers. The Colorado and New York delegates were all shouting additional questions when a point of order was raised and a complaint that many delegates could not hear the facts in the contest.

The delegate who made the issue demanded that the temporary chairman rule the interruptions out of order. "The point of order is well taken," said Root, pointing on the table with his gavel.

"There must be fair play for both sides here. I would call the attention of the delegates to the fact that interruptions on one side lead to interruptions from the other. These demonstrations are entirely out of order."

Rolling Pleases Both Sides.

The ruling of the chair seemed to please both sides and Allen continued with his analysis of the Washington cases. When he took up the King county case, saying that Roosevelt received the most votes there, former congressman Herbert Parsons, of New York, arose and demanded:

"How many votes are there in King county?"

"I think about 30,000," was the reply.

"The other speaker said 100,000. Which is it?"

"He may be," was the reply.

Charges Convention Faked.

Allen then declared that the state committee packed the roll of the state convention and issued tickets only to Taft men. "They were afraid that the delegates to the convention would stampede the convention for Roosevelt," said Allen, and so they would not let delegates in. "I have a picture here showing the door of the convention hall with its guard of prizefighters, who kept the regularly elected delegates out of the hall."

Senator Hemenway of Indiana was announced as the next speaker. He stated that he was not concerned with the fight between Roosevelt and Taft at this time but whether the temporary roll was properly made.

"I would see the action of the national committee and argued that its action was proper and legal and in strict accord with the rules of the Republican party. Hemenway held that the action of the state committee for its decisions was unjust and unfair."

Asserts 29 Did Not Sign Protest.

"There were 13 members and one proxy on the committee who signed this protest and there were 29 who did not. Who were they?" demanded Flinn.

"Let me tell you," answered Hemenway. "You say that the majority of the committee have been repudiated by their own committee."

"Let me call your attention to the fact that all the names of the men who signed this protest have not been returned."

"Tell us who they are," again shouted Flinn.

"Let me tell you men in the Pennsylvania delegation who signed this protest. That you do not want to listen to an argument. You want to appeal to passion. You won't hear anything that tells the truth about yourselves. Now I don't say Senator Bush and Frank Kellogg were repudiated because they were not returned. They did not want to be returned, neither did Harry New and I am not anxious to accept the statement of T. Coleman Dupont of the Pennsylvania delegation who said go on the roll. I would rather take the word of Harry New and men like him."

"Shame on such contests," he continued. "They were paper contests anyway."

Expected Only One Contest.

Hemenway turned the laugh on the Roosevelt forces, repeating Colonel Roosevelt's statement that, despite the number of contests held from Alabama, he only expected to win one.

"What he wants," Hemenway declared, "is to reduce the Republican party in Texas only to office holders, so that he can perpetuate his own control."

Charges Lyon Used Fraud.

Hemenway insisted that Lyon voted counties in his state in which there was not a single Republican vote.

"Lyon can no longer work his frauds on the Republican national committee," said Hemenway.

"I'll answer you," said Hemenway. "You ask about Penrose. Well, I'll tell you straight—it's Penrose above Flinn every time."

"If the gentleman from Pennsylvania wants an honest hearing of his charges and his statements," said Root in rebuttal, "he will conduct the proceedings in an orderly manner."

Flinn Shouts His Ground.

Root pounded for order, but Flinn insisted on recognition. Snatching a megaphone from a delegate, he shouted:

"I rise to a point of order. The gentleman from Indiana is not speaking to the question at hand."

Root did not hesitate a second. Pointing the gavel to the Pennsylvanian, he declared:

"The gentleman will take his seat."

Flinn stood his ground.

"Smashing the gavel again and again with his gavel, Root answered:

"The point of order is not well taken. The gentleman from Pennsylvania will take his seat. When quiet is restored the gentleman from Indiana will re-sit."

Flinn sat down.

Ends Argument Amidst Noise.

Hemenway ended his argument amidst rival cheers and boos from the two factions.

Record of Record of New Jersey argued for the Hadley motion, discussing the Arizona and Indiana cases. In the Arizona case he repeated the argument he made personal before the national committee, claiming that the Taft convention was a rump one, while the Roosevelt convention was the only legal one.

Bela La Follette, daughter of the Wisconsin senator, and her husband, George Middleton, took advantage of the record argument to empty a quart bottle of milk which Mrs. Middleton had brought in with her. At the same time they munched crackers which Mrs. Middleton also brought along.

Record could hardly be heard because of the movement of the delegates and audience and Root came to his assistance.

Summing up his argument, Record said:

"The issue between us is clear. We desire to submit the question to the party voters. The opposition desires to submit this to a closed room where only hand-picked delegates can participate. It is simply in a nutshell whether the bosses or the people shall rule."

Record held that no mate where a contest was a rump one, while the Roosevelt convention was the only legal one. Permitting them to be represented, he said, fraud would be perpetrated.
